The potato is one of the most important of cultivated plants, and is in universal cultivation in this country and the temperate parts of the globe. It is a native of America, and is found growing wild in Mexico, Chili and Peru, but it is difficult to desire where it is indicated. it is difficult to decide where it is indiit is difficult to decide where it is indi-genous, and where it has spread after being introduced by man. The wild potato differs very little from the one cultivated. The latter has been plant-ed and used for food in America long anterior to its discovery. No food plant is more invaluable for human and animal food, for various purposes in the arts and it is only sur-human and animal food, for various purposes in the arts, and it is only surpassed by wheat and corn in its nourishment. It grows in tropical countries, and struggles for an existence in gardens; even within the Arctic circles yielding small, watery tubers. Yet the effects of late springs, or early autumnal frosts upon its foliage, often proves that it is a plant belonging to a milder climate. The cultivation of the potato has exercised a beneficial influence on has exercised a beneficial influence on the welfare of our people, increased our national wealth, and owing to the fact that however productive it may yield for a time in any section of country, yet it finally fails. It has shown that the exclusive, or almost exclusive, depend-ence of a people on one source or means of support is in direct violation of the laws of nature. There are so many different varieties grown, that it is almost impossible to give any commeration or classification of them. New ones are constantly apof them. New ones are constantly appearing, and old ones are passing away. Those most advantageously cultivated in particular solls or ellmates are often found to degenerate in a few years, and especially if taken from one part of the country to another, as they will not climatize. The newest and latest specimens brought before the public are those sent out by the great practical experimenter, Dr. Goodrich, dee'd, of Utica, N. Y., and by Dr. Hoffern, of the same place, Dr. Goodrich's successor.—A change in the varieties is also created A change in the varieties is also created by crossing the wild and other potatoes and some of them are sent out as the Early Goodrick, Calico, Gleason, Cusco, Garnet Chili, Pink Eye, Rusty-coat, and many others, all proying very produc-tive, but not one has yet gained the standard of a No. one edible. Neither are any of the above as good as a Main Castor or Mercer for table use unless the Hurrison or Early Rose shall carry off the prize. The early Rose comes with flying colors, at three dollars per pound, and is said by those recommending it, that it has reached perfection as a table potato. The Early Rose is a seedling of the Garnet Chili, originated in 1861, by Albert Breese, Esq., of Vermont, and Dr. Hollern says it is the best early potato that he has yet grown. The skin is thin, tough and of a dull bluish color; the potato is flesh white, solid and brittle, boils through quickly, and is very mealy. The Harrison is a good, late and productive potato of large size, smooth, flesh white and of a high cooking quality. The white-skined peach blows and neshanock are good edible potatoes. flying colors, at three dollars per pound.

The potato is subject to a number of diseases, the most destructive of which is the "potato disease." Before it began to prevail, the chief affections of the potato were those called curl, seab, dry and wet rot. The principal cause of of these diseases, however they may be combined with other causes, is the exhaustion of the vegetable powers of the haustion of the vegetable powers of the plant, from frequent propagation by tubers or cuttings. It must be born in mind that propagation by cuttings is not reproduction; but one potato is divided into small parts, and the whole anology of nature scens to show that although it may live longer in this way, and more healthfully than if left in the spot where its seed first germinated, its existence will come to an end, and the species must be preserved by reproducspecies must be preserved by reproduc-tion.

The curl, the first disease that attacks the potato, affects the foliage, and is caused by planting weak sets. The scab is a disease of the tubers, which become covered with brown, ob-long and finally confluent and cup shaped spots, whilst under the surface is a powdering of minute, olive-vellow s, and a fungus called tuberch

Dry rot is also ascribed to the growth of a fungus of the same order, and attacks the potatoes when stored for win-ter use. Wet rot differs from dry rot in the potatoes becoming soft and rotten instead of hard and dry, and is charac-terized by the presence of a fungus, tuterized by the presence of a fungus, tubercina scabies, caused by covering the potato in the ground after becoming ripe—the wet earth and hot san causing the brown spots, and with a white fungus to grow on the potato, which produces the rot when the potatoes are stored for winter use. By mixing lime one part, and ashes three parts, and sprinkling over the potatoes, the tungus will be destroyed, the moisture in the fungus will be taken up and the rot to a great extent will be prevented. The farmer should be ready to take up the potato crop as soon as ripe, and store in a dry, cool place.

HOED CROPS

Heod crops are the most costly in labor of any which the farmer grows.—
Therefore, they should be the most profitable. The greatest difficulty which the farmer in this country has to contend with, in order to make his business profitable, is the price of labor; and as he is obliged to bestow a great deal on his hoed crops, he should take care, by judicious management and use of the products to make this outlay of capital remunerative. How to do this should be a subject of much thought.

Corn and potatoes are the two most largely grown and important of the class of product. One rule which will apply to both, which the wise farmer will act upon, is to obtain as large a vield as possible from each acre planted. This will diminish the amount of labor in proportion to the product obtained. Every bushel will, therefore, cost less than when the yield is small. The next important point is to get the best return for the crop. As corn is the great reliance of the stock feeder in this country, and as much manure from stock is essential to grow continued large crops, it is obvious that shilful feeding to stock is the most remunerative disposal that can be made of the corn crop. Hence, good breeds, ample shelter,, and proper care, and indispensable adjuncts. In short, if labor costs too much resolve to plant less ground, but raise more per acre. This can easily be done if you will only set about it.—Next, determine that your corn shall produce more pound of much per bushel than heretofore. This you can accomplish by a timely and judicious selection of improved breeds of stock, and more skill employed in handling them. No farmer should be satisfied if he cannot improve every year on his past method. Thought and energy applied to your business will do this.

The potato crop is always sold for cash, and this produces no manure for the land. For this reason, it is a very exhausting crop, and no farmer can persist long in growing it largely without impovert-hing his land. On account of their bulk, potatoes cannot be grown profit

A gentleman in Jefferson City, Missouri, kicked a negro prowler out of his house the other night—the rascal protesting, as he cleared the front door, that he wasn't a member of the Legislature, and didn't want to steal anything.

PHOTOGRAPH REUSING NITERUS

Has stood the test of seven years before the public; and no preparation for the hatr has yet been discovered that will produce the same beneficial results. It is an entirely new scientific discovery, combining many of the most powerful and restorative agents in the VECET-ABLE KINGDOM. It restores GREY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL YOUTH-FUL COLOR. It makes the scalp white and clean; cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair; and will make it grow upon baid heads, except in very aged persons, as it furnishes the natritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft, and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a HAIR DRESSING. It is the cheapest preparation ever offered to the public, as one bottle will accomplish more and last longer than three bottles of any other preparation.

It is recommended and used by the First Bledical Authority.

The Wonderful results produced by our Sicilian Hair Renewer have induced many to manufacture preparations for the Hair, under various names; and, in order to induce the trade and the public to purchase their compounds, they have resorted to falsehood, by claiming they were former partners, or had some connection with our Mr. Hall, and their preparation was similar to ours. Do not be deceived by them. Purchase the original: it has never yet been equalled. Our Treatise on the Hair, with certificates, sent free by mail. See that each bottle has our private Revenue Stamp over the top of the bottle. All others are imitations.
