MRS. THOMPSON'S WHITE WARE.

MRS. Thompson's WHITE WARE.

Mrs. Thompson stood by the kitchen table paring plates for dinner. Something was evidently wrong with the lady, for there was an unmistakable air of "spite" in the way she tossed the potatoes into the pan of cool spring water, waiting there to receive them. It was a sultry July day, and in the open window came the sound of mowers whetting their scythes, blended with the call of the robin, and the faint notes of the cuckoo in the shadewood. But it only irritated Mrs. Thompson, indeed everything irritated her that day. Looking out from the back door, one saw a lovely landscape, with broad reaches of meadowland, fringed with graceful belts of birch; and softly rounded mountains lifting their velvety foreheads to the white, fleecy clouds, that went slowly sailing across the exquisite ether, like huge drifts of thistle down. But this also irritated her; everything could be beautiful save her life, and that was cold, and rude, and barren.

But to begin at the beginning. Jane

MAJ. GEN. W. B. FRANKLIN IN THE

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' NATIONAL CONVENTION. MONDAY, JULY 6, 1868.

Fellow Soldiers and Sailors: I thank Fellow Soldiers and Sailors: I thank you for this high and undeserved compliment. Never having presided in any body regulated by parlimentary law, I shall have to claim your indulgence for any mistakes which I may make. But I hope that no serious questions of order will arise. If they do I shall decide them as impartially as I can, and I look confidently to the fairness and justice of the Convention for an endorsement of the decision of the chair. (Applause.) It is, I hope, not amiss for me to give in a few dently to the fairness and justice of the Convention for an endorsement of the decision of the chair. (Applause.) It is, I hope, not amiss for me to give in a few words what are my ideas of the uses and duties of this Convention. Since the commencement of this Government, secret societies of military men who have served, have been viewed by the people with intense jealousy. This view is a natural and proper one. It is the duty of military men in a free country, when no longer in service, to return to their peaceful avocations (applause), and if they desire to be heard in the eivil councils of the nation, to take their places with other civilians, and by legal and usual means exert the influence which their positions as citizens give them. They have no right (and I mean it in the broadest sense of the term) to attempt to exercise influence or gain power from their positions as military men. (Prolonged applause.) The exercise of such influence will in the end be subversive of free institutions, and will surely prepare the grave of liberty, pawing the way for a milatary despot, who will rule this whole country with the sword, just as one-third of it has been all the influence of secret military societies, elections will in a short time become the merest farce, and Prectorian bands will designate our Mayors, Governors and Presidents. (Voices—"That's so.") If I am correct in these assertions, and I believe that history and good sense will bear me out in them, It may be properly asked what we are doing here in Convention, and are not we acting precisely in the manner which I have deprecated. The question is pertinent and must be answered. In the first pace our Convention is no secret association. Next, there is now existing in the North-

must be answered. In the first pace our Convention is no secret association. Next, there is now existing in the Northern and Western States, and for aught I know, in the Southern States, as secret military, organization which has its ramifications in every corner of the land. It is numerous and powerful, assumes to itself all of the patriotism which carried men into the field on our side during the rebellion, and its objects are unknown to any outside its ranks, unless we can judge of them by its acts. I refer to the self-styled Grand Army of the Republic. (Hases). Whatever may have been the object of the originators of this organization, and I will admit that it may have been a good one, I hold it to be dangerous to civil liberty at present, for wherever it is felt it has for its object to gain success for one side in politics. (Applusus, 1) The natural effect of this military partizanship is to band together

nee. It is exasperating that men like these I have mentioned (and the list could be much extended) should be rejected by the honorable Senate, and immaculate Callicotts (hisses) confirmed in their stead. And yet, if I am correctly informed, no less a number than over 2,000 soldiers and sailors of all ranks have been nominated to the Senate for civil offices and have been rejected by it. When any seldier has been saved in this ordeal, it was "as it were by fire." The conservative men of this country to-day recognize the fact that the war to preserve the Union has had results which must be acknowledged. They also recognize the fact that there is now, or ought to be now, peace between the two hostile sections. (Prolonged applause.) The Conservatives of both parties have, since the war, acted in a kind and concillatory manner towards their old enemies, to whom kindness and concillation are as necessary as the air they itreathe. On the other hand, the course of the Radicals has been revengeful and insulting. The dearest rights of man have been trampled upon in all their dealings with the conquered rebels, and judging of the future by the pagt, the reign of terror will last as lon as the Radicals rule this country. (Applause.) It is therefore any duty, fellow soldlers, to hold up the hands of the Conservatives who go into Political Convention to-day and to bid them God-speed in their good work. (Cheers.) They have before them the most responsible task which has ever fallen to the lot of a political convention in this country. Hey have before them the most responsible task which has ever fallen to the lot of a political convention in this country. They have before them the most responsible task which has ever fallen to the lot of a political convention in this country. They have seleves means to defeat the Rudical party in the coming election. I believe that it is in their power to attain this end. (Great applause.) Let it be our part to honesty assist them to achieve success, believing as we do that a continuance of

was in our power to avert or postpone the cricis which will sooner or later arrive if the Radical party succeed, which end may God avert. (A voice—"Amen."—Applause.) I do not think that we ought to pay much attention to mere politics in our resolutions. Two hundred years ago Admiral Blake said: "It is not our business to meddle with State affairs, but to keep foreigners from fooling us." (Laughter.) So, to-day it is not our business to meddle with State affairs, but to keep Radical politicians from fooling us. (Laughter and cheers.) The political Convention is fully competent to meet all such issues. We wish to see nominated a man whose name will assure all sailors and soldlers by its mere mention that the Nominating Convention is alive to all the issues presented at this day to the country, and that its nominee is and has been a friend to those who have imperilled their lives for the Union. Such a name this Convention will, as one man, indorse. Without such a name we will as surely go to defeat, as with that name we will certainly march on to an easy victory.— (Prolonged cheering.)

Thirty Millions a Year for a Privileged Class We have no hostility to the National Banks nor to any other well secured and honest institution. In our present confused financial condition some such aid is necessary; but why should they be regarded as a privileged class? Why should the industry of the country be taxed to something like thety millions to support a class of monied gentlemen? We do not legislate thus for any other interest, and we cannot therefore see any jusor equity in the policy. The New York Herald in an article on "Congress on the National Currency." expresses our views on this subject. That paper concludes its article thus: We have no hostility to the National article thus:
"With the existence of the nationa

"With the existence of the national banking system as it now stands we may look a long time for specie payments; for this organization will find it more profitable not to return to a specie basis and will have power enough, probably, to control the action of Congress; but should the greenback circulation be withdrawn and that of the national banks be increased correspondingly till it reaches four or five hundred millions, we regard resumption as indefinitely postponed. WASHINGTON, June 30.

Col. Jas. O. Broadhead.

DEAR COLONEL: In reply to your inquiries, I beg leave to say that I leave you to determine, on conclusion with my friends from Missouri, whether my name shall be presented to the Democratic Convention, and to submit the foliowing, as what I consider the real and only issue in this contest.

The reconstruction policy of the Radicals will be complete before the next election; the States, so long excluded, will have been admitted; negro suffrage established and the carpet-baggers installed in their seas in both branches of Congress. There is no possibility of changing the political character of the Senate, even it the Democrats should elect their President and a inajority of the popular branch of Congress. We cannot therefore undo the Radical plan of reconstruction by Congressional action; the Senate will continue a bar to its repeal. Must we submit to it? How can it be overthrown? It can only be overthrown by the authority of the executive, who is sworn to maintain the Constitution, and who will fail to do his daty it the alternative Gonataction to portish under a series of Congressional enactments which are in palpable violation of its fundamental principle.

If the President elected by the Democracy enforces or permits others to enforce these Reconstruction acts, the Radicals, by the accession of twenty spurious Senators and fifty Representatives, will control both branches of Congress, and his administration will be as powerless as the present one of Mr. Johnson.

There is but one way to restore the government and the Constitution, and that is for the President elect to declare these acts until and void, disperse the carpet-bag State Governmets, allow the white people of recognize their own governments, and elect Senators and Representatives. The House of Representatives will contain a majority from the North, and they will admit the Representatives will control as a submit once more to the obligations of the Constitution of the President to submit once more to the obligations of the Constitution before we can

You Do Eh?
