

Agricultural.
THE BEST BREEDS OF CATTLE FOR A FARM.
The question which breed of cattle is the most profitable for a farm, will depend on where the farm is located, on the purpose of the farmer to supply a particular market, whether a milk, butter or cheese dairy; whether for raising stock for working oxen, or feeding to the butcher. These different purposes require different breeds of stock.
Within a convenient distance of a town or city, the milk business will yield the most money, clear profit. The butter business, whether in pounds or pound lumps, next. Cheese and flocks should be made at a greater distance from the market and brought in at time.
For these purposes we recommend the Alderney and Ayrshire as the best milk producing machines, converting all the milk-producing food they are able to digest into lactical cream. This is impossible for other breeds without first drying them up, and this is no easier matter. Their milk, too, is of the richest quality for either cream, butter or cheese.
In some sections of the country, when the farms are large, and stock raising and feeding is made a business, the short horn Durham and the Devonshire are the most profitable; for taking on fat and weight of carcasses, the short horn breed can compare with the short-horn, either for pure blood or grades.
For working oxen, the superior is superior on account of their activity—they are good leaders.
We would by no means undervalue the Devons and short-horn milkers—Many of both breeds as well as their crosses, prove to be excellent milkers; but we still adhere to our former opinion, that the Alderneys and Ayrshires are their superiors in manufacturing milk out of a given amount of food. Some of our most discriminating dairymen differ in opinion as to which of these two breeds are the best milkers; in this account we are decidedly in favor of the Alderney, but our preference, based upon our own judgment, is in favor of the Alderneys.
CARE OF YOUNG STOCK IN WINTER.
All kinds of young stock are tender and require more protection and care than older ones.
Cattle that have been weaned in the sheltered from storms in the day time, their stables should be well ventilated, and the manure removed frequently, the fetter the better. Eyes and limbs should be kept clean by washing with warm water, and the head of the calf should be kept clean by using a skin brush and wooden comb. If the calf is used in the stable, it should be used very gently as not to hurt or irritate the young animal. Feeding and watering should be regular at stated times, and only such food as is good for the calf should be given.
Calves and young cattle should be treated as above stated if you wish them to grow fast and keep in good condition, and you keep a cow constantly milking, if they once get stunted it costs almost more than they are worth to give them a good start.
The truth is that many of our calves and colts get a "stunt" while young, which they do not recover from for years, if they ever do. A perfect animal can never be obtained unless its wants are liberally supplied. In regard to food, another and comfortable accommodations. Some animals are fed well but are so cramped for room that, like the sign on the stone wall, they are scarcely grown without pushing the barn over. Others are fed well, but are so exposed to cold and storms that they grow very slowly, or die little milk.
To liberal use of grain for young animals is undoubtedly injurious. No farmer of good judgment, need err in this particular.
FARMERS' CLUBS.—These should abound in every agricultural district, and where there is none to be formed, the reason, by looking around, is soon explained. "Oh," says one, "who is to be gathered by a farmers' club?" These clubs are not intended to reach how to raise a crop of potatoes, of oats, corn, wheat, rye, buckwheat or barley? Why have we seen all my life at it, and I am ignorant of my business at this time of day, I may as well give it up." The old proverb, "It is not the size of the man, but the size of his mind," is applicable to the farmer. He is unwilling to assist in instructing and helping along others who are more successful, experienced and superior than themselves.
The truth is, these are the very people to take the lead in getting up such clubs, and if they had the desire, they could do more than any others.—They possess the knowledge, means and position to make themselves felt in their instruction, example and experience. These clubs should be organized liberally, and should be held at a convenient place, and the place should be as convenient as possible. The weekly expense of meeting at one another's houses should be small, and the place should be as convenient as possible. It is necessary that there should be an intelligent secretary. Any proposition to take a matter at these meetings, which they possess any interest, will find a ready welcome in these columns.—Geo. W. B. T. T.
CHEESE.—Horatio Seymour, late candidate for the first office in the United States, has recently been elected President of the American Cheese Association, and a short time since delivered an address upon the subject of cheese. Mr. Seymour asserted that "cheese ought to be no more a luxury than it is in this country. The American people have lost the cheese-making propensities of our forefathers. Cheese is the cheapest of all articles of food that can be used. Compared with meat, there are very few articles so nutritious connected with it. It requires no cooking, and it is more nutritious, and we must look upon it as a substantial article of food. It is not a cheap luxury, but a cheap necessity. The help of a woman would be taken to prevent cheese as an article of common food to the favorable consideration of the poor of our cities. The attention of our government should be called to the value of cheese as food for our armies. There is no article so cheap for soldiers' rations; no article so nutritious; no article so easy of transportation."
GOOSE WHEAT.—Some years since, a wild goose was shot in Washington Territory, and a few grains of wheat were sown from his seed. It is now a full crop, and the yield was found to be so great as to lead to the propagation, and this wheat is known in the Territory as the "Goose Wheat." It has become a standard in that section of the Territory, and the Agricultural Department at Washington, upon examination, has sent to the museum, of which there are some 2,000 varieties, the same wheat was found, being one of the varieties from the Paris Exposition, and grown in Cuba, in Spain.
A GREAT GREENBACKS.—On Saturday a citizen paid his current bill regular weekly wages. After receiving them she walked into the yard, and while hanging clothes upon a line, she dropped the money without her knowledge at the moment. A goat that was browsing in the yard saw the tempting roll, and was engaged in leisurely eating it. A half-dollar note was hanging out of its mouth when the frantic servant discovered her loss. She succeeded in saving the currency note. The others have gone where special payment will never be resumed.—Phil. News.
