How TO FARM .- Horace Greeley thinks that if land cultivated six inches deep is worth $100 per acre, it would be worth $200 if cultiva ed twelve inches deep, and $250 per acre were it worked eighteen inches deep. He thinks the way for a farmer to get rich is to dig for it. It is probable that Horace is a better editor than fa mer.

OUR ROADS .- About fifty thousand doltars expended upon the public roads of this county would enhance the value of real estate more than triple that amount. Wouldn't it be a good idea to have each township pike a mile or so of its public roads every year, instead of the temporary repairs now made ? By this method, in a lew years, the entire county would be supplied with passable rous and the townships would be subject to no preater expense than they now are, while the value or real estate would be Distrie t : considerably enhanced.
