HOW TO KEEP YOUNG CHICKENS.

The best way to keep young chickens is to allow the mother to ramble with them where she pleases. They will thus secure, according to their wants, the heat of the sun, the cooling of the shade, exercise, air and variety of suitable food. The next best thing to follow the long established custom of confining the hen in a coop near the dwelling house and now to children to run out and in at their pleasure. In many places, you cannot confine the hen in a coop and let the chickens run at large, without risking the loss of them. A friend near us constructed large coops six or eight feet long, and four feet high by two feet wide, all made with slatwork, and kept the hen and chickens together therein, and got a pretty good thing and saved his chickens. This year we thought we would improve our plan. We made a frame work of similar size, and instead of covering it with slatwork, we covered it with netting, putting boards in the front and rear, and leaving the top open eight or ten inches and this was in a light airy place, partly under the shade trees. A box was placed in one corner for a shelter. We put in a hen and her brood of twelve chickens, and never saw anything so better. We had a good deal of pride in our new arrangement, and the cats and dogs were picking in our young flock. For several days everything went well; but this, as in all such cases, was not the world, we soon found that we could not be sure of avoiding annoyance, and disappointment. One morning we found that six of our chickens had been killed during the night, and nothing was left behind to indicate the cause. We presume our wretched friend was not so kind. It must have gone through the meshes of the netting, less than one inch square. We propose now to use a netting of strong twine with very small meshes, and we believe we shall then have the best and safest arrangement for raising chickens that can be found, the great object being to obtain for the brood the greatest amount of light and air, without which we are convinced they do not prosper well.—Albany Cultivator.

Experiments in Feeding Pigs.

GREEN CO., O.
To the Editor of the Cincinnati Gazette:
In turning over the leaves of my day book, I came across the record of an experiment I had with a sow and pigs—1881. I had a sow of good constitution, stock which had seven pigs on the second day of January. On the second day of April, I had a litter of twelve pigs, which were weighed and found to be 471, 421, 39, 352, 281, 284, lbs., collectively 2541 lbs. The pigs were separated from the sow and the corn and common slop from the kitchen once a day. The weight of the high quality corn was 471, 421, 39, 352, 281, 284, lbs., collectively 2541 lbs. The pigs were separated from the sow and the corn and common slop from the kitchen until the 25th of July. They had eaten seventeen bushels of corn since they were weaned, and weighed collectively, 455 lbs. This was a mere experiment to ascertain how much pork a given quantity of corn would produce.

R. VESLOR.
In the above experiment it will be seen that from the time the pigs were weaned, April 21, up to the 25th of June, seventeen bushels of high quality corn, together with the kitchen slops, gave an aggregate increase in weight of 2003 pounds. That in one hundred and thirty days, with the aid of the kitchen slops, made nearly twelve pounds gross weight of pig pork. Our correspondent fails to state whether the kitchen slops were split up, or had the run of a pasture, whereby grass formed a part of the diet. It may be a valuable experiment, showing a fair profit in raising pigs, even when fed on corn. But if the corn had been cooked, twelve bushels would have gone far as the seventeen bushels, thus showing a much larger profit.

How to Have Pigs Every Year.

A Canada correspondent of the Country Gentleman says: "Our plan runs as follows: In the first year, we select a sow that we observe the following directions: Put about a bushel of green manure around the root of each tree, and then a peck of wood ashes on the manure as soon as the manure is off. Last year there were no plums on trees in this neighborhood except yews. I do not know the names of the soil we have, but they are some of them dark yellow with a little pink on the sunny side, some red with a yellow shade on under side of fruit, and some dark yellow, with red, irregular marks on them. The trees stand on a hillside, facing the east, and have red currant bushes between. We see many plums drop off, stung by the currant, but plenty remain on the trees all ripen."

SWISS CAKE.—Take butter, flour, and sugar, of each the weight of four eggs. Beat the yolks with a cream of tartar, and add the sugar, and beat until thick, then add the flour, and beat until smooth. Add the butter, and beat until smooth. Bake in a tin for half an hour.

TO CURE WARTS.—Warts are very troublesome and disfiguring. The following is a perfect cure, even of the largest, without leaving any scar. It is a Frenchman's recipe, and has been tested by the writer: Take a small piece of wax, steep it all night in vinegar, cut as much from it as will cover the wart, and tie it on it, or if the excrescence is on the forehead, fasten it on with strips of sticking plaster. If not removed in the day, and put on every night. In one fortnight the wart will die and peel off—the same prescription will cure corns.

THE PEACH BLOW POTATO.—A correspondent of the Practical Farmer writes from Valparaiso, Indiana, who has been growing the potato for a number of years, and has grown all the varieties well spoken of, has through his own experiments, and those of others, nearly all except the white and peach blow. The red is a good potato; but one great objection to it with him is that it never stops growing. Cured in two months, it is a good potato. The white yields much better with the same culture and treatment. And as it is equally for the table, he pronounces it far superior to the red.

227.—A man surprised by the approach of a railroad train on a bridge, dropped between the sleepers and grasped the rail, expecting that the cars would pass over him. They did so, cutting off all his fingers and dropping him into the water.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.—Cough.—Syrup of popple seed, of equal weight, simple oxymel, of each two ounces. A teaspoonful when the cough is troublesome.

CHAPPED HANDS.—Wash the hands with oatmeal and soap, and after each wash, take a little dry oatmeal, and rub over them, so as to absorb any moisture.
