Breakfast Relish.—In Massachusetts we had frequently partaken of a simple and palatable relish made in the following way: Chop tender butter, mix with mashed potatoes and season. Fry until brown.

Imported Gingerbread.—Rub six ounces into three-quarters of a pound of flour; then mix six ounces of treacle with a pint of cream carefully, stir it should turn into a paste; mix a quarter of a pound of double-refined sugar, half an ounce of powdered ginger, and one ounce of butter, and stir cut into shaps, and stick out candied orange or lemon peel on the top.

How to Pick Potatoes.—Grate three large raw potatoes on a coarse grater, pour into it a quart of water, boil until the water is nearly gone, then mix six ounces of treacle with a pint of cream carefully, stir it should turn into a paste; mix a quarter of a pound of double-refined sugar, half an ounce of powdered ginger, and one ounce of butter, and stir cut into shaps, and stick out candied orange or lemon peel on the top.

To Drain and Make Coffee.—Having picked over the coffee wash it nicely, parch it evenly in the oven, when thoroughly browned (not burned), let it stand until lukewarm; then in a water when eggs to a froth; stir it through this warm coffee, and set it in the oven to dry.

To Soak Corn for Horses.—A correspondent of the Prairie Farmer writes as follows: One of the best farmers that I know says one-third of his corn by soaking it before he feeds it to his horses. His plan is this: he places two hogheads in his barn cellar, secure from frost, fills them with corn, and pours water over it until they are full. When water soaked he feeds one to his horses, and by the time this is exhausted the corn in the second hoghead is ready to feed. The corn becomes so soft that the horses eat them with as good a relish as they could eat any other corn. It requires about two-thirds as much water as when fed without soaking.

In digging drains for pipe, experience has demonstrated that the cut for the tile should be made deep enough to admit laying them correctly, as they will thus be less liable to get out of place, and there will be much less danger of water getting into the drains and obstruct the flow of water. The ditch should be filled as fast as practicable, so that nothing will disturb the level of the drain or obstruct it by displacing even one tile. Where good tile can be had at twelve or fifteen dollars a thousand, it is worth the extra cost. It will lay a rod, farmers and others who have used both aver that the tile is cheaper than stone, where the stone costs only the quarrying and picking up, drawing and laying, leaving out of the question the better quality of the drain laid with the aldrin.

CORN SHIRKING.—A correspondent of the Davenport Gazette says: In 1895 I received as my share of the crop of one of my hundred bushels of corn, that selling in Davenport at 50 cents per bushel. The corn was put in a sack, and weighed, and was in excellent condition when sold. I have just had it hauled to town, and sold for 30 cents per bushel. The present weight was exactly 152 bushels, showing a shrinkage of 48 bushels; or 24 per cent. discount from the original weight. This was due to the fact that the corn was not shirking, but was of the profit and loss of holding over.

The Horse.—Yonatt, in his book entitled, "The Horse," writes in his usual way, and in a very readable style, within reach; that he will leave clear, transparent hard water for a pool of soft water. When cold it will be detected with mud. Very cold water from the well will make the hair rise up, and not unfrequently cause an attack of eczema. Give soft water if practicable, especially if the animal be ailing. This is a valuable hint.

To Protect Horses from Flies.—Take two or three small handfuls of nutmeg leaves, upon which pour two or three quarts of cold water; let it infuse one night and then boil for a quarter of an hour. When cold it will be found to be very effective. Before the horse goes out of the stable, let these parts which are most frequently smeared over, viz: between the ears, on the neck, the flanks, etc., be smeared with the infusion.

San Francisco is happy.—The luxury—the necessity—is brought from the Summit (near Nevada) and sold at two cents per pound. It is hereafter to be sold at one cent, and cost ten cents per pound.

They studiously avoided inventing during the high prices, and patiently waited the falling out of the bottom before attempting to refill their shelves, and now that things have been reduced to a low level, they are prepared to guarantee to their friends and customers a low price as any market outside the city. They especially invite the attention of mechanics, farmers and builders. Our stock is complete and none need fear meeting with disappointment in acquiring anything in our line.
