THE BEST PLACE FOR A HORSE.—
"Gossipper," in the Rural World, says: "Winter or summer, except in a stormy time, there is no placeso comwork horse as a good pasture lot. To tie up or tired horse at night in a narrow cell, with a plank floor to stand on, is a species of cruelty that civilization ought to be ashamed of. If the poor animal must be confined like a convict in a dungeon, for pity'ssake let, him have his head free, and give him at least twelve feet square, with a soft dry floor to stand or

In the large cities land is worth more a money than horses; but on the farm there is no excuse for any such wicked economy. Ask the horse what he wants, and he will tell you that a place where he can walk around, lie down and stretch his tired limbs and roll over from one side to the other, gives him more ease and comfort, after a day o hard work, than the most costly plank stalls, with all the accompaniments of curry-combs, stifi bristle brushes, rub-ber cloths and dexterious hostlers that can be produced.

HOW TO GET WORK DONE ON A FARM. Every farmer is at times oppressed with a sense of the overwhelming number of things that requires to be done. with a sense of the overwhelming number of things that requires to be done. We have seen a nervous man in such circumstances commence one job and before he had got fairly started, abandon it for something that seemed more pressing, merely to leave this in the same unfinished state; and when night came he had accomplished little or nothing, and passed hours to sing about on a sie-pless bed thinking what he should do on the morrow. A young farmer could not adopt a better rule than to repeat to himself every morning. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," and act uping. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," and act upon it. When a job is commenced, flaish before beginning another; but at the same time, attend to the little things. But if you happen to get behind, strike a lively gait, do one thing at a time, and when it is done, take a little rest by immediately commencing another, and in this way you will pull through in good time. through in good time.

THE CABBAGE FLEA.—An exchange says: "This destructive little insect is says: This destructive little insect is becoming very abundant, and considerable care is required to keep them in check. Young cucumbers, cabbages, tomatoes, and several other kinds of vegetables, are its natural food, and while the plants are young this fleat does the much injury, even if it does not entirely destroy them. We have tried many remedies, but none have been so nearly effectual in destroying or driving away the pest as dry wood ashes scattered over the plants in the morning while wet with dew. Two or three applications have usually been sufficient. There are several species of these insects that infest our gardens, but the small one that infests vegetable plants can easily be controlled with ashes or lime, applied as directed. becoming very abundant, and consider THOUGHTS FOR YOUNG MEN.—The way to get along in the world is to make every step one that is ahead, and each to follow its predecessor. Full fifty per cent. of the effort in the world is absolutely wasted in indirect, diffuse, indefinite labors. Young men start out in life without purpose or point, neither casting a thought of their fitness or unfitness for a particular calling; now doing this thing, now that, and after that nothing; one day going on, another on the right or left, the next backward, and then not going at all, which is, perhaps, as bad as the whole combined. The straight line in life is the one that leads straight ahead. This almost always secures success. almost always secures success.

When first putting a new whetstone into use try water upon it, and if this keeps the surface from being glazed or burnish, oil will not be needed.—Some stones work better with water than oil. A dry stone is very apt to give a wire edge. It has been said that a little carbolic acid added to water will increase the friction on either a whetstere or a

In order to amuse the children, a lady was engaged in reading to them from the bible the story of David and Goliah, and coming to the passage in which Goliah so boastingly and defiantly dared the young stripling; a little chap, almost in the first trousers, said; "Sister, skip that—skip over that; he's blowing, I want to know which licked."
