ship was alike honorable to both contestants. Alike eminent for legal ability, general culture and social standingendorsed in every district as two of the very best men who could be named for the position-the vote of Mr. Miller was cast by those who, while they recognized Judge Graham's ability, yet felt that they would like to see a change on the bench-while that cast for Judge Graham was cast by those who believed that his distinguished services for twenty years on the bench, were rather an argument in favor of his renomination for a third term than a reason for his retirement. Of Judge Graham we need scarcely speak to the people of this judicial district. They seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of his renomination and election; and if after twenty years' service, in one of the most trying positions in which any man can be placed, he continues to have a hold upon the affections of the people which cannot be broken-this fact speaks tenfold more strongly in his favor than any mere words of ours could do. From present indications he will get the conferees of

Perry without a contest. We are peculiarly fortunate in our nominations for Associate Judges. Robert Montgomery and John Clendenin, are both men of high character and standing, and they have been nominated by such a decided vote, that their election is assured by a large majority. The party has done itself an honor by placing them in nomination, and may well feel proud of their elevation to the Bench.

In the nomination of Mr. Peffer for the Senate, Cumberland county has done itself credit. He is a high-minded, honorable Christian gentleman, has had some experience in legislative life, is a public spirit will soon prove to be one the capital, she had better abdicate, or of the working men of the Senate, in whose hands the interests of the people her son. of the district will be entirely safe .--Backed by the fact that the county he represents has a standing Democratic majority of 700 or 800, we think there ought to be no difficulty in his receiving the unanimous nomination of the Senatorial Conference. Muhlenberg Williams, Esq., our nominee for Assembly, is a rising young lawyer, of Newville. Six years ago he next Presidential election. was a candidate for District Attorney, and was second only to the successful candidate. He has superior qualifications for the position, and we believe has laudable ambition enough to try to make his mark, and to prove an attentive, courteous and efficient member. Probably more interest was felt in the contest for District Attorney than in anything else. It was a struggle by three young members of the Bar, each of them well qualified to discharge the luties of the office, and each ambitious sion. While Mr. Beltzhoover has born way the prize, after a close contest, we rust that Messrs Herman and Emig, by a more extensive acquaintance with the people, resulting from the canvas, will be so fortunatess largely to increase their practice. Mr. Beltzhoover is a loge student of the law, possesses exof honorable distinction in his profes-

The whole amount thus far taken is short of ten millions, and nearly all this sum has been subscribed for by the national banks under certain pressure. The sav-ing of interest is exactly one hundred thousand dollars, but, per contra, it has cost the government, it appears, nearly eight hundred thousand dollars to effect the conversion of those ten millions from six to five per cents.
