MILKING IN SILENCE.

At a Farmers' Club in West Cornwall Connecticut (U. S...) a farmer said that no talking should be allowed while milking was going on. He said he discharged one of his servants who persisted in talking during milking time, and that in three days the increase of milk was equal to the man's weekly wages. We fear an increase to such an extent must have been due to other causes besides the one assigned. If the enlarged yield followed solely from the dismissal of the man, we suspect his presence affected the supply of milk in some way apart from his log activ.—We have frequently found a change of servants prove beneficial. It may be that talking prevents hens from laying also. We know we have often experienced a vast increase in the number of eggs brought into the house after the removal of a too locacious individual from our employ. Besides, on' cows have sometimes improved in produce by the same means, but we renerally attributed it to cleaner, milking by fresh and more industrious hands. It is, however, well known that caws are peculiarly sensitive to sights and sounds during the time they are milked. Unless they are at perfect ease, they will not give their milk feely.—They should be daily milked as ler the same conditions. Cows that are fed at milking time require their mal meal, or they become restless and massatisfied, and put a stop to their bounty. Many of them will only allow some special favorite to milk them. In those parts of the country where women are solely employed to milk, we frequently find one or two tuneful lassies singing at their work, and many cows become so pleased with the rustic harmony as to show evident signs of their approval of the loud sweet voice, by giving their milk only by being sing to. Everything that distracts the attention of the cow and ruffles her placidity, should be avoided when she is called upon to yield her milk. Her nervous system should not be excited by strange noises, unwelcome objects or rough treatment, or the effect will be apparent in a diminished supply in the m

A REMEDY FOR CROUP.—We have been interested in reading the following statement made to us by an intelligent statement made to us by an intelligent mother. We give our readers the benefit of it, or at least give them the opportunity to test whether it has any benefit: "A remedy for croup was given me by a sister who heard it from Prof. Bronson, a physiological lecturer, since deceased. Let a healthy person with burse with pure air, then slowly since deceased. Let a healthy person fill his lungs with pure air, then slowly breathe upon the patient's throat and chest, commencing at the point of the chiu and moving slowly down to the bottom of the windpipe. Repeat for a few minutes, and it will give relief in cases where all other means fail. My few minutes, and it will give relief in cases where all other means fail. My boy was always subject to croup; came near dying with the rattling, noisy kind, at about eleven months old. I saved him with water, and, even after, prevented a serious attack by watchfulness and water. But when three full between the proof of the proof. fulness and water. But when three years old I let him play in the brook one warm, rainy day, and he took a severe cold, and had the still kind of croup, the first and the last time he ever had it. In spite of all I could do, he grew constantly worse, until he could only gasp and breathe with his head thrown back. We thought his last moments had come, when I thought of, and applied Brooson's remedy for a and applied Brosson's remetly for a minute. When I stopped, he looked up and said, 'Do so again, mother, do!' though he could not speak when I began. You may be assured a did so again, and I believe it save a life."

COOKING POTATOES FOR SVINE. As the season for feeding phand, it is well to consider the season for feeding phand, it is well to consider the small ones. Often farmers a sasto save them for the state of ie most i .istaken the seed is, so will the cropsmall potatoes, and the crossmall potatoes." Small p Plant be fed to hogs in such a mer as to return a fair value. But it y must not be fed raw. The result of the experiments we have heard or read of, as well as those made by ourselves, show that potatoes are much more profitable when fed cooked than when fed raw. The extra labor and fuel are well paid for. A good plan is to boil tuem in a large iron kettle, set in an archway of rough stone, which economizes fuel, and boil a few bushels at a time. When cooked they are dipped out, with all the water, into a jarrel, and a peck of corn meal mixed with each bushel of potatoes. The meal is thus thoroughly scalded. When the mess is cold, it may be considered the constant of the con scalded. When the mess is cold, it may be fed. If two barrels are kept, one will be always cool, and will be somewhat fermented, while the othe is preparing. We would not advise any warm feed to be given to hogs. It has generally resulted in producing a diseased state of the liver, and, cuse-mention which the content of the liver, and, cuse-mention which the content of the liver, and, cuse-mention which the content of the liver and cuse the content of the liver and cuse the cuse of the liver and cuse the custom quently, unwholesome pork. Fermented food, on the other hand, seems to be agreeable to them and wholesome.

A HINT TO FARMER BOYS.—If a farmer kept as nice and exact accounts with the cattle, the fields, the orchards, and the crops with which he has his usual dealings, just as his more careful brother merchant does, he would find a spirit of business working into all his habits, and progress and push would inevitably follow. The loose notion seems to be that here are fields and there are the buildings, and a living there are the buildings, and a living must somehow be got out of them.—But that will not do in these days. Every agriculturalist is bound to know what his farm yields him for his own consumption, and how much for sale; and then he will be able to get at any profit by cyphering the difference less the cost of cultivation.

A HEALTHFUL SUBSTITUTE FOR TEA,—As a healthful drink, in place of tea Dr. Thompson, in a late work of his, recommends the use of the dried leaves of the Red Ra-pberry. They cleanse the system of canker, and thus continuously the system of the red in the system of the red in cleanse the system of canker, and thus act beneficially to the health. The leaves should be gathered on a warm day, and may be spread in a good airy chamber, on clean beards or paper, to dry. When sufficiently dry, they may be kept in sacks. A small handful is sufficient for several persons. This tea does not require the addition of milk or sugar, and is quite as pleasan as othertea, and much cheaper and health-ier.

To USE PIECES of DRY BREAD,— Many that have small families generally have some bread that gets dried up ally have some bread that gets dried up so that it cannot be eaten with a very good relish. My way of using it is to soak it in cold water until perfectly soft, then drain the water all off and mash with the spoon till soft; then to a quart of tread add two eggs, best well together, then add one cup of excet milk, one cup of sifted flour, stirled together, and fry. Serve with butter, sugar and autneg. They are very been. Try it, ladies, and if you have as good success as I do, take my word for it, you will never lose any dry bread.

A Waiten in the Prairie Farmer advises to ekecoing of pumpkins in the celler for winter use. The largest and ripect are selected and handled with care. They should be gathered before hard frost injure them. If the stem cleaves from the pumpkin, or they get unioch bruised, they will decay and should be rejected. He says, they may be kept in this way till February for stock or family use
