EXPERIENCE IN POULTRY-RAISING. For several years I was very unsuccessful in raising chickens and little turkeys. They would hatch out nicely; I was very careful of them, fed them well and gave them plenty to drink, but before they were a week old, most of them would droop and die. If an old hen-mother was so wise as to steal her nest, and keep her brood away from my generous dish and spoon, she would raise more chickens than those that I helped about. For a few seasons I just let them take care of themselves, but that was trouble—they would raise the mischief in the garden, and wander off, and get mixed up with the neighbors' poultry; and chicken-raising was a losing busi ness with us.

I finally set about investigating the business in earnest. I knew of course something was wrong. My first discovery was that the food I gave the chickens swelled in their little crops and burst them; so I commenced mixing their food every twelve hours, thereby giving it time to swell to its utmost capacity before feeding it. But all was not yet as it should be; they would die occasionally in spite of me. Finally, by observation and inquiries into the digestive organs, I discovered the cause. I found that the gizard was not supplied with material for grinding the food, and it was therefore eithe undigested and remained dormant, or hardened in the crop. Since then I have, for the first meal I give them. pounded up glass or broken crockery as fine as convenient, and they will pick up the atoms and swallow them before they will touch any nourishing food. Regularly three times each week, I give them a supply of pulverized crockery: and I would not ask for better success than has attended my raising of poultry. When they are about four weeks old, I mix a little sulphur with their food twice a week; it prevents the pip, and also keeps them free from lice. Through the winter, I give all my poultry a supply of material from grist-mill once in about two weeks; they will rush for it with great eagerness, and swallow pieces as large as a five-cent piece, without any trouble I also mix cayenne pepper with their food occasionally; give them hot drinks, and penty of earth or ashes to roll in. There is work in raising poultry, but if it is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well; and there is nothing more discouraging than to have a fine brood of chickens hatch out, and in a few days to have them all gone, and the poor hen go clucking around you, as if reproaching you for your neglect. I do not think people generally keep their poultry quite clean enough for health. A little whitewash on their roosts is a good luxury to them; also fresh earth, quite often renewed on the floor of the henneries; the nests cleared out often, and fresh straw or hav furnished. It is really pleasant to hear them prate their thankfulness for such favors.—Country

PREPARE FOR SPRING WORK.

In these "idle" winter days, the industrious, thoughtful man can find plenty to do to keep him busy; and work which can and should be done now will save valuable time when the busy days of April and May press hard and fast upon the tiller of the soil.

It is not too soon now to begin your stable manure heap which is intended for the hotbed, which is to force on rapidly and safely your early vegetable plants. Don't throw the manure from under shelter, where the rains and snows will injure and ruin it for your purposes, but pile it in some sheltered place, and about the latter part of February make your hotbed, and let it stand a few days before sowing the seed. After this, sow cabbage, tomato, egg-plant, celery, peper, &c. and put on your sash. On warm, bright days give air and a little tepid water.

Gather bean poles and pea brush now from the woods and thickets. Haul into the garden any old half-rotted straw you can get, which has no seed in it .-This you can throw over your Irish potatoes when you plant them in March, and mulch your strawberry and raspberry beds and orchards. Your vegetable and fruits will be larger and better for it, and the yield greater.

Go to the hollows and sinks in the forests, and haul up a few loads of leaf mould and dry muck, to be used on your small fruits, flowers, vegetables, for kitchen garden, &c. It will pay you 50 per cent. for your trouble.

Cut scions of fruit trees, currants, goosberries, &c., and bury them until April, then take them up and plant them in rows two feet apart, and six inches apart in therows. Take only the wood of last year's growth.

Haul up flat rock for walks to all the out houses. Lay them about a foot apart, in a single row; and your wife and others who have much traveling to do about the premises, will thank you for such a comfort.

Do not say that nothing can be done _in_winter.-Life-is-too-short-for-us-to spend an hour in idleness. We should be up and doing. Not that we should never play any-for 'all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.' Certainly we should have days of recreation; but make them the exception, not our rule. Many other things will suggest themselves to the thoughtful and industrious man; and we have only aimed to throw out a few seasonable hints. which, taken and acted upon, will result in good to those who view them as does your correspondent .- Country Gen-

SOAP FOR BORERS .- The Praire Farmer says that in order to make the ap. plication of soap to the trunks of apple trees entirely effectual for the exclusion of the borer, it is necessary to take very thick soft soap, without diluting, heat it to the boiling point, and then paint the trees freely with it, especially near the ground, and thence up some distance among the branches. It strikes into the bark when thus put on hot, so that one application about the first of June protects the trees for the season, June protects the trees for the season, killing the young borers or eggs which happen to be at the surface of the bark. We have never tried this mode, but have used the old one of rubbing with cold soft soap, which always proved useful, but never entirely effectual; and it was always necessary, in order to effect complete extirpation, to go over the trees once or twice a year with the knife and flexible wire. Our readers understand that the soap has no effect the trees already in the wood.

These Pills are the the most delightfully pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, saits, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated, whether arising from impudence or disease. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Finid Extract Calawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated, from the fact that sugar-coated Pills do not dissolve, but pass through the stomach without dissolving, consequently do not produce the desired effect. The Catawba Grape Pills, being pleasant in taste and odor, do of necessitate their being sugar-coated. Price IFTY CENTS per box.
