

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY MORNING BY JOHN B. BRATTON. OFFICE—SOUTH MARKET SQUARE.

The American Volunteer.

BY JOHN B. BRATTON.

CARLISLE, PA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1872.

VOL. 58.—NO. 38.

Rates for Advertising.

ADVERTISEMENTS will be inserted at Ten Cents per line for the first insertion, and five cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

CHARLES, HANDBOOKS, CIRCULARS, and printing with description of Job and CARD PRINTING.

Poetical.

Manifest Destiny. (From the Atlas for February.) Nothing is so common as to find...

OLD-BITTERLY COLD!

Old-bitterly cold! The moon is shining bright, And the snow is white...

Political.

FOUND WANTING. THE ADMINISTRATION WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE. A NIGHTY SPEECH BY CARL SCHURZ.

Political.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 20.—The Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution to investigate the alleged sale of arms to France...

not desire to devote a very few remarks to one thing said by that Senator. WITH AN AIR OF TRIUMPH he held up a pamphlet purporting to contain one of my speeches...

It is that cabal which exposed those abuses and rendered necessary their reform; and let me tell the Senate that those speeches of ours would have produced the least effect upon the Republican voters of New Hampshire...

GROUND FOR SUSPICION OF CORRUPT PRACTICES connected with the transaction? In discussing the first he said it was absurd to assert that these sales were made under the ordinary circumstances surrounding previous sales...

LEARNED BY ACCIDENT that the sales were to take place. Upon making the discovery Baker came to Washington and notified the Prussian Minister...

SALES OF A LARGE AMOUNT OF ARMS to several firms were completed, and according to a despatch from France, all of those arms had been already partly paid for by the French government...

RE-ELECTION OF GEN. GRANT, and is sure to have it. (Laughter.)—The Senator from New York (Mr. Conkling), when I very sincerely regret not to see in his seat after his gallant exploit of yesterday, followed in the footsteps of the Senator from Indiana...

THE RECORD SHOWED, however, that the business could not have been done in that way, because some effort was necessary in order to secure the concurrence of the War Department about the propriety of making the cartridges, and it showed, also, that that effort was made, not by Richardson in person, but by another gentleman—Mr. Remington...

same transactions, for which he (Remington) had been ostentatiously driven out of the War Department; the difference between the amounts paid by the French and those received by our government; the jopardizing of our national relations; the risking of our internal harmony; the flagrant and confessed violation of law by the War Department; and the mysterious disappearance of large sums of money...

IT WAS THE DUTY of the government to investigate this matter, and if the wrongs charged upon the Executive Department have been committed it was the duty of the legislative department of the government to frankly and boldly disavow the conduct during the rebellion...

CRACKING THE PARTY WHIP, but those who made that attempt grievously mistook the time and the spirit of the people. The people could be no longer deceived by misrepresentations of the motives of those who were fighting against corruption...

A GROSS INSULT TO THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT, by assuming that the agitation of this question might affect the decision of the German Emperor as arbitrator between the United States and Great Britain, and now the Senator from New York was going to insult the French government also...

NOT THE MAN who had given Mr. Schurz the first information on this subject. (Laughter.) But, continued Mr. Schurz, what is the spirit of this amendment? I have said that I regretted that the gentleman had introduced the amendment...

PREPARATION WORSE THAN LYING. Mr. Conkling said he had not given Remington a letter of introduction to France; he had merely addressed a note to Mr. Remington himself, the purport of which he had stated on a former occasion...

THE HONORABLE MEMBER'S REPLY. Mr. Morton said that the only new point in Mr. Schurz's speech was the passage quoted from the testimony of Leese, and insisted that the statements of Remington and the admissions of Mr. Schurz were not in any way inconsistent...

TROW MUD AND SHIRT on the President and his administration from that time up to the next election. He (Morton) was independent enough to support the preamble. The Senator from Missouri had also asserted that the Senatorial cabal had forced investigation into the New York Custom-house...

THAT HE LIED. Mr. Morton was not convinced by that statement. The object of those who had taken this debate upon the Senate was to draw the crowds to the Senate chamber and to make capital again at the Republican party. The whole affair was gotten up by a long previous arrangement...

KNOW-NOTHINGISM IN ITS WORST FORM. Mr. Schurz said that no man in the country had more earnestly or steadily opposed the formation of any political or...

As to John Newton, he certainly did much good in the latter part of his life, but whether enough to compensate for the evil he did in the first part, and for the evil his example has been made to do since, I do not think can be positively asserted. The fact, as it is stated in his biography, that he continued four years in the African trade after his conversion, has been long to the heart and marrow of the bones of all slave-traders, slave-breeders, and other systematic wrong-doers for more than a century...

As for Col. Gardiner, all I have to say is that his biography did not commend him as an outstanding or a young man, but as a man who was not only a man of strong and noble character, but as a man who was not only a man of strong and noble character, but as a man who was not only a man of strong and noble character...

But you have said that my doctrine is irrational, which I do not see. Certainly one who speaks of the evil of slavery, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character...

But that is hardly to the point which I raised, which was that a man who speaks from experience speaks with more power than it is possible for one without experience. Certainly he does; and, therefore, the man who from his own experience from his youth up can testify to the advantages of a pure and virtuous life, is—other things being equal—the most powerful possible advocate of purity and virtue...

Well, you are the first Carlisle man I have yet seen who is willing to compare his name with the old Carlisle man, and to his old Alma Mater. I am not prepared at this moment with the proof you demand, but I don't mean to surrender my conviction till I am compelled, which I hope I shall never be...

I will answer that question by asking another: Is this a new doctrine, which you have learned in the Church, under the teaching of your friend, the Bishop? No, it is an old conviction which I received while yet a child, and which has been evolved out of my own consciousness, and found it confirmed by reason and the scriptures...

Neither; I am neither a Ritualist, in a partisan sense, an Anti-Ritualist, in a partisan sense, nor a High Church man, nor a Low Church man. I read two books which I gave you this morning and you will see exactly where I stand. I take no part in theological controversies or Ecclesiastical quarrels...

I have not spoken without reflection. My opinion needs no revision. I repeat what I have said, and in view of your reply, with added emphasis, your doctrine is unscriptural, irrational and simply damnable. To claim Paul as authority for a fallacy so monstrous, is to misrepresent the great Apostle of the Gentiles and pervert his teachings...

by intimating that the Episcopals were worldly and unprincipled, and took no interest in the advancement of vital religion. The quarrel was high and at last found its way into the State Legislature. A Committee of Investigation was ordered, the report of which led to the withdrawal of the annual subsidy on which the College had depended for existence; and in a few years the institution found itself unable to go on for want of funds...

But you have said that my doctrine is irrational, which I do not see. Certainly one who speaks of the evil of slavery, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character, and of himself as a man of strong and noble character...

But that is hardly to the point which I raised, which was that a man who speaks from experience speaks with more power than it is possible for one without experience. Certainly he does; and, therefore, the man who from his own experience from his youth up can testify to the advantages of a pure and virtuous life, is—other things being equal—the most powerful possible advocate of purity and virtue...

Well, you are the first Carlisle man I have yet seen who is willing to compare his name with the old Carlisle man, and to his old Alma Mater. I am not prepared at this moment with the proof you demand, but I don't mean to surrender my conviction till I am compelled, which I hope I shall never be...

I will answer that question by asking another: Is this a new doctrine, which you have learned in the Church, under the teaching of your friend, the Bishop? No, it is an old conviction which I received while yet a child, and which has been evolved out of my own consciousness, and found it confirmed by reason and the scriptures...

Neither; I am neither a Ritualist, in a partisan sense, an Anti-Ritualist, in a partisan sense, nor a High Church man, nor a Low Church man. I read two books which I gave you this morning and you will see exactly where I stand. I take no part in theological controversies or Ecclesiastical quarrels...

I have not spoken without reflection. My opinion needs no revision. I repeat what I have said, and in view of your reply, with added emphasis, your doctrine is unscriptural, irrational and simply damnable. To claim Paul as authority for a fallacy so monstrous, is to misrepresent the great Apostle of the Gentiles and pervert his teachings...

KNOW-NOTHINGISM IN ITS WORST FORM. Mr. Schurz said that no man in the country had more earnestly or steadily opposed the formation of any political or...