Mrs. WARD, the widow of the late C. C. Ward, Esq., of Towanda, Bradford county, died at that place on the 22d of April, mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. She bequeathed most of her large estate to her grand-children.

RECENT Mexican dispatches report Trovino's forces reduced to 700 infantry and 400 cavalry, the rest having deserted. His troops are said to be "completely demoralized and destitute," and unable to face Cavallos, should he appear. The general drift of the reports from the interior is that the rebellious forces have dwindled into small predatory bands in the various States.

The New York World of Sunday says: "The first shipment of strawberries from the South, was received yesterday by steamer from Charleston, South Carolina. They are of a new variety, which will stand the length of time in transportation. The wholesale price realized for them was $2.50 to $3.00 a quart. But for a late frost they would have reached here early in March. Charleston last year sent to New York 10,000 quarts of strawberries, and with this new variety, it is expected that the future crop will be largely increased. The first shipment last year was received on the 23d of March."

UNIONNATI NOMINATIONS.

In our last we published, without comment, the proceedings of the great Republican Convention held at Cincinnati. Beyond question it was the largest political gathering that ever assembled in our country. It was largely composed, too, of men of intellect—the brains of the Republican party—the men of character, who feel alarmed (as well they may) at the unscrupulous villainies of the weak and treacherous Grant administration. These men hesitated long before they consented to break from the party they loved—the party they had made. They, therefore, remonstrated with the administration, reminding it that its wanton disregard of the laws of the land—its usurpations of power not granted by the constitution—its notorious corruption—its use of its powers to enrich relatives and friends—its tyrannical arrogance in the political affairs of States and municipalities—its acceptance of thousands of public positions in exchange for lucrative offices—its deplorable weakness and want of dignity—in fine, its irreparable proclivities—must be abandoned. These defects in the administration, it was contended, must be remedied, and a higher standard of morality and patriotism practiced.

Did Grant—the poor, greedy creature of circumstance—did he heed these admonitions? Did he give ear to the advice of these upright and unselfish men of his party? Did he heed the counsel of these honest and patriotic patriots, such as Cameron, Morton, Ben Butler, Wilson, Scott, brother-in-law Dent, and the Ring politicians about the Custom-house of New York, and to whom he gave ear, and by them he was encouraged to go on in his usurpations. It is the interest of but men to keep up a constant irritation between the North and the South; it is to their interest—but at the same time death to the country at large—to harass, annoy and bedevil the South at all times and under all circumstances, to deny representative men the elective franchise, to disqualify them from holding office, and to place their rich and powerful section of our country in the hands of uneducated negroes and corrupt-brokers, who are not only permitted but instructed to steal. It is the interest, we say, of such men as Cameron and his allies in crime, to keep up this speculative scoundrelism; and Grant is their willing tool, listens to their advice and shares their stealings.

The statements of the Republican party, finding entirely useless as their object was to draw out from the political conspiracy and to set up for themselves. Hence the Cincinnati Convention.

The nominees of this Convention, as our readers are aware, are Hon. HORACE GREELY, of New York, and Gov. B. GRAZ BROWN, of Missouri. They are both great men. Not only are they great in intellect and soldierly manhood, but they are honest and God-fearing men, whose hearts have no smell of corruption. He might, had he felt disposed, and been governed by the same motives that governed Grant, been worth his millions. During the war he was a merchant and broker with all other men in a daily game of cheats; with politicians and soldiers played into each other's hands, prolonging the war unnecessarily for places and profit; the pulpits became the arena for blowhards and casuists; the press, already partisan, became sectional, and the very Devil of mischievous absolute sway all over the land. Grant was elected, and the chair which has known gentlemen, statesmen and patriots, became the seat of a low-born, ill-bred fellow, whose every thought is selfish, who springs upon his time in low pursuits, and has done more to disgrace our country in the eyes of the world than all his predecessors combined. His policy nettles the entire South, keeps finance in a ferment, disaffects the great thinkers who counsel the party, and which he was elected, and has led it to the brink of destruction.

Mr. GREELY will be supported because he has ideas of his own, and knows how to express them. The people have been mortified long enough by the "man who smokes," and they (the dissatisfied Republicans) feel like giving their votes to a man who don't smoke. With many of Mr. GREELY's theories the people do not agree, but who, at all events, understands what he wants, and is not indebted to subordinates for his brains.

What will the Democrats do? We have been asking this question hundreds of times during the last ten days. We can't answer it at present. No man can tell what the Democratic National Convention (to assemble at Baltimore on the 9th inst.) will do. Many of the most prominent Democrats, North, East, West and South, favor the adoption of the Cincinnati ticket; thousands of others, again, "good men and true," oppose this policy. One thing, we think, we are safe in saying. Should the opinion prevail in the Baltimore Convention that Mr. Greeley is the only man who can defeat Grant, then GREELY will be taken as a choice of evils. If elected at all, he must be elected by receiving the votes and active support of the Democrats of the country, and the Liberal Republicans must appreciate and admit this fact.

For our part, we shall be governed in our course by the action of the Democratic National Convention. We feel sometimes like adopting as our motto, "anybody to defeat Grant," for we consider the country in imminent peril. The Baltimore Convention, we doubt not, will be largely composed of the best men in America, and under the guidance of an all-wise Providence, will be able to arrive at conclusions that will give satisfaction to the great body of the Democratic family, and peace to the country. So mote it be.

—Hartman, the Radical nominee for Governor, joined that party in 1865—He was immediately nominated for Auditor General; re-elected in 1868, and now he is put forward as the "ring" candidate for Governor.

DEFAMING THE DEAD.

However meritorious the Young Men's Christian Association may be, as an organization, it is very palpable that some of its more noisy members have been guilty of a very reprehensible course in their unchristian feelings and folly in various other ways, too numerous to mention, and do more to injure the cause which they profess to love than the open enemies of Christianity. A notable instance of the meanness and malignity of these "Young Men" occurred at a recent local option meeting at Gettysburg.

At this meeting, one George D. Stroud, a prominent member of the religious organization referred to, foolishly suggested that the decision in the case of Parker vs. the Commonwealth (involving the constitutionality of the Legislature's delegating its powers to the people) could be explained by the fact that "a bottle of brandy was passed up to the Chief Justice (Gibson) on the bench, during the argument, and the liquor was drunk by the Chief Justice." Stroud, according to a report of his speech printed in a Germantown paper.

This George D. Stroud is a lawyer, and a son of the estimable Judge Stroud, and that he should thus have slandered the memory of the late Chief Justice Gibson is, therefore, the more reprehensible. He not only asserted that the Judge Gibson publicly drank brandy on the bench, during an argument, but insinuated that, in consequence of having done this, or from partiality to a liquor-selling interest, he rendered a decision against the constitutionality of the law in question. A more foul imputation against the character of a Judge could scarcely be conceived, not to say publicly uttered. And when we consider it in connection with the well-known character of Chief Justice Gibson, as to high moral integrity, and profound knowledge of and respect for the law, this slander assumes the character of absolute moral atrocity.

A more base or cowardly act could hardly have been committed than this defaming the character of the pure and good man, sleeping in his hitherto universally honored grave, to say nothing of the unparalleled meanness of thus wounding the surviving relatives of the deceased Chief Justice. Is there a man outside of the Young Men's Christian Association capable of this basely slandering the dead and wounding the living? We hope not.

What good does the Association in question think such men as Stroud can do the cause of Christianity and morality? Are slander, falsehood and a disregard of common decency necessary to the successful propagation of religion. Even the Local Option people ought to know that such advocates of their cause will follow most bringing it into public contempt.

This young Stroud, we are informed, edits the organ of the Young Men's Christian Association, the semi-blasphemous motto of which is "Stand up for Jesus!" We submit that he is a beautiful specimen of a Christian to fill such a position.

INSTRUCTED FOR GRANT.

Every delegation yet chosen to the Republican Convention which is to meet in Philadelphia next, has been "instructed" to vote for Grant for the Presidential nomination. It might be inferred from this that the masses of the Republican party are quite unanimous in favor of re-electing the man who now occupies the "White House." And that would be a fair inference, provided the several State delegations were really chosen and "instructed" by the people. But the notorious fact is, that the delegates, in every instance, have been appointed by those who hold office under the Administration, and that these office-holders have "instructed" their creatures to nominate their patron and master for the first place on the Administration ticket. Now, as the office-holders make and control the delegations to the Philadelphia June Convention, and as Grant owns and rules the office-holders, it follows logically, on the principle that he who acts through others acts himself, that Grant practically elects and instructs the Convention to nominate him for a second term.

Is not this a strange and disgraceful proceeding? Would it not be more in accordance with the "theory" of our political system if those who are to exercise so grave a trust as that of naming a candidate for the Presidency, were to be selected by the people of their respective districts and States, rather than the professional demagogues and subservient dependents and villains of the Administration at Washington and throughout the country? Whom do the people of the United States want to see President of the country? Do they want the man who is the most of our enemies, and the least of our friends? Do they want the man who is the most of our enemies, and the least of our friends? Do they want the man who is the most of our enemies, and the least of our friends?

It is certainly not extravagant to estimate the future railway construction as amounting to 10,000 miles a year, which would require an annual consumption of 20,000,000 ties. We shall therefore be able to appreciate Mr. Halleman's correctness in his estimate that the annual consumption of ties for the purpose of forest destruction of the wood-quantity in the fencing of these railroads will be 20,000,000 ties a year, and the vast amount of destruction of forest by flood and fire, which will be the result of the conviction that whole provinces of woods which have required a hundred years to grow, are being done by either public authority or private zeal, to supply the place of that which is destroyed, or which will be so destroyed, which exists." It should be added, that besides the interest which we in Pennsylvania have in the subject, it has been recently asserted and apparently upon unquestioned authority, that the lumber fields of the United States are becoming rapidly depleted, inasmuch that in a very few years we shall be forced to depend on the West, and the Pacific coast, for our regular supply of boards. To a manufacturing State like ours, no calculation of the future date of exhaustion of any important natural resource by us can be unimportant. We need have no anxiety regarding our coal, our iron, our oil, or our timber, so long as we have the means to secure them. We need have no anxiety regarding our coal, our iron, our oil, or our timber, so long as we have the means to secure them.
