BAD EXAMPLES TEMPTED HIM.

Previous to receiving his sentence of four years and six months to hard labor in prison, John L. Martin, the defaulting bank teller at West Chester, asked the privilege to say a few words to the court. He confessed his crime and plead "guilty," and then stated that he was induced to rob the bank and go into speculation from having seen other men "make fortunes in a day." It was seeing other men engaged in dishonest transactions that tempted Martin.

What a commentary is this upon our public men and others who have "made fortunes in a day?" No honest man—no man who deals fairly with his fellow-man—makes a fortune in a day. Many young members of Congress, we doubt not, have been tempted to receive bribes for their votes by seeing their leaders and older colleagues engaged in this despicable business. When such men as Vice President Colfax, Vice President-elect Wilson, and Patterson, Logan, Kelley, Scofield, and scores of other equally prominent politicians in the Radical ranks are known to have received bribes and "made fortunes in a day," is it to be wondered at that younger men and men of less pretention are sometimes seduced by the example set them? These Radical leaders have been looked up to by those of less experience, and their example has had a most pernicious influence. They are the men who have "made fortunes in a day," and why, ask those in the more humble walk of life, can't we do the same thing?

Martin, the defaulting bank teller, was seduced into crime by the strong desire he felt to become "rich in a day." Others, all around him, were becoming rich by their wits—by corruption, fraud and villainy—and why should he not become rich also? Poor fellow, young in years, and but recently married, he tried his hand, and—landed in the penitentiary. Had he been a high officer of the government, a Senator, Member of Congress, or even a Contractor, or politician of marked influence and power, his crime might have been, indeed would have been, covered up in some way or other.—When it was shown, some time since, that Harlan of Iowa, bought a seat in the Senate, he did not deny it, but confessed, and, with a defiant air, said, in almost as many words—"True, I did bribe members of the State Legislature of Iowa; I did buy my way into the U. S. Senate, but whose business is it, I would like to know. Everybody knows that millions were spent to elect Grant to the Presidency; why then should not a few thousand be spent to elect me (Harlan) to the Senate?" That's the way Harlan talks. He puts public opinion at defiance, but then Harlan is a man of power. He is rich, a U. S. Senator, and editor of the President's organ at Washington.—There is no punishment for men like Harlan. If there was, one-half of our U. S. Senators and two-thirds of the Members of Congress would be in the penitentiary.

GENERAL UPROOTING.

From the general uprooting of manifold corruptions we may anticipate a better growth of men and measures. Dishonesty became fashionable so long as it was secret; but now that the veil is off, and all fly before the hideous reality, there is rather an aspiration to a higher and purer standard.—Forney's Press.

As soon as it becomes manifest that the people desire a "better growth of men and measures," then indeed we may take it for granted that the days of the Radical party are numbered.—The great object of that wicked party from the hour it was first organized, was plunder, and most persistently has that object been pursued. Never, perhaps, in the history of the world, has robbery been so completely systematised as in the United States for the last ten or twelve years. From the highest official of the government to the lowest, from the oldest Senator and member of Congress to the youngest, this principle of Radicalism has received recognition. "General uprooting," indeed! No—the revelations that are now being made are bad enough, God knows, but they are the mere drippings from the corruptions behind them. Could we get at and expose the one twentieth part of the villainies that have been practiced by Radical leaders during the last few years, the people would be struck dumb with astonishment. They would then see what all these loud professions about "loyalty" meant. They would then be convinced that the greatest pretenders were the greatest rascals.

If the editor of the Press, then, desires to see a "better growth of men and measures," he must come out and repudiate the foul party with which he has been acting. True, he did oppose Hartranft in the late struggle, and for this he deserved credit, but Hartranft, bad as he is, is an angel compared to Grant. We regard Grant one of the worst men in America, if not in the world. Ignorant as a mule, selfish, avaricious and dishonest, he is capable of any mean act. Talk about the corruptions in Congress. Did not Grant know all about them? Did not he sign the bills that had been bribed through Congress? And if Colfax and Wilson were paid a hundred thousand dollars each for supporting bills voting millions of acres of the public lands to rammouth corporations, how much was paid to Grant for signing those bills? Millions, no doubt. Ah, if the people could get at the whole truth, what a spectacle we would see? This Credit Mobilier party, then, must go down—down to the eternal perdition it deserves. If not, then the country goes down. Choose ye, people of America.

GEN. GORDON, who has just been elected United States Senator by the Legislature of Georgia, receives his promotion to that body solely on the ground of his services in the rebel army during the rebellion.—Republican Ex.

We know not how that is. But will our cotemporary please inform us on what ground Gen. Longstreet, one of the most prominent officers in the rebel army, and Lee's right-hand man, received an office from Grant which pays him a salary of $12,000 a year? Grant also tendered a fat office to the guerilla Mosby. On what ground, pray?

The Fall of a Christian (?) Statesman.

The poetical time and tide that makes all things right has overtaken Mr. Schuyler Colfax, and that eminent Christian statesman stands before the country today covered with a disgrace and shame such as never before was the fate of an American legislator to bear. To his peculations in jobbery and prostitution of his official position, is added the greater crime of blasphemy and perjury. When during the last presidential campaign the Credit Mobilier story was started in the columns of the New York Sun, the State Journal—as did a majority of the press of the country—refused to believe the tale, and strenuously defended the men who were likely to be injured thereby. We have now the grim satisfaction of knowing that in defending the Credit Mobelier Congressmen we have taken the part of as sorry a set of scoundrels as ever disgraced a nation. Pre-eminent among this set of men stands the Christian statesman, Schuyler Colfax. The only speech this man made during the last campaign was at his home in South Bend, Indiana, some time in September last, and he concluded his remarks as follows: "Fellow-citizens, one word more. I have been charged with being a stockholder in a corporation known as the Credit Mobilier, and I wish to say—and I call God to witness it—that I never was a stockholder in the Credit Mobilier or the Pacific railroad." Nay, more than this; when he first appeared before the investigating committee at Washington, he swore that for a few days, at least, he held stock in the Credit Mobilier Company; but thinking that it might be wrong in him to do so, had returned the stock to Mr. Oakes Ames, and had not asked the repayment of the $500, the price of said stock, the sum he had paid for it. Such is the tale of Schuyler Colfax. Now, what is the other side. Mr. Oakes Ames testifies under oath, that not only did Mr. Colfax take the stock, but held it and received the dividends, and produces the checks made payable to "S. C., or bearer," in proof of his assertion. From the Sergeant-at-Arms, N. G. Ordway, received the dividends on the checks made payable to "S. C. or bearer." Mr. Ames further testifies that before the investigation commenced, Mr. Colfax called upon him at his room, and asked him what he was going to testify, in order to make his (Colfax) testimony agree with the testimony, in this not only contemplating perjury, but by demanding of Ames that he must spare him, guilty of the crime of subordination of perjury. The scene in the committee room when Ames was giving this testimony was a fearful one. Colfax, pale as death, with the big drops of sweat running down his cheeks, attempted in vain to break the force of the testimony that revealed his guilt. So great was his perturbation that a number of the committee told him he had better select some friend to represent him and cross-examine the witness, as his questions were irrevalent and foolish. The scene closed by the remark of Ames to Colfax, that he could not swear himself out of the guilt fastened upon him by the production of the dividend checks payable to "S. C. or bearer." Such is the history of Schuyler Colfax, connected with the Credit Mobilier. Peculation and robbery, blasphemy, subordination of perjury, and lastly perjury itself. From this man's connection with the Union Pacific railroad and its offshoot, the Credit Mobilier, it is asserted that he made the sum of two hundred thousand dollars! It is what the country should have expected. The Union Pacific railroad was the largest swindle ever perpetrated on any government. Its land grants, subsidies and indorsement on its bonds by the government, made a sum total so gigantic, that it is almost impossible that the truth can be got at. Now the men responsible for this robbery of the tax-payers are the Credit Mobilier tax-payers. They stood in the halls of Congress and carried by their votes and voices all the swindling bills presented by this corporation—they robbed the government and shared the plunder. And now when the foul thing is revealed—and as yet but half the truth is known—they have the temerity to say to the people, "We had a right to do as we have done—it is nothing new!" Colfax's prayers are more serious than ever, his ardor in the cause of temperance is unabated, and he still hopes that the artifices that gave him the name of the Christian statesman will serve him in this dilemma. Yet for things that he has done men have suffered long years of imprisonment, while the same church of which he is a shining member teaches that the perjurer never enters the kingdom of Heaven. In view of the facts already alleged and proven against Schuyler Colfax, and in view also of his exposed perjury, the country demands his impeachment. The Representative who moves for this action against the disgraced Vice President, can do the country no greater service in this hour of its humiliation.

THE Hagerstown Mail deplores the loss of many citizens, who are leaving that place to seek employment elsewhere. The same is true of most of country towns, because business is dull and "nothing doing." These Radical times are not what they were "cracked up" before the late election.

THE Harrisburg State Journal states that it is boldly asserted by reliable men that two hundred thousand dollars can and will be raised to defray the expense of repealing the Local Option law. If this be true, and we have no reason to doubt that it is true, repeal will come.

DEATH OF EX-GOVERNOR GEARY.

He Drops Dead at his Breakfast Table.

The magnetic telegraph has already flashed the sad news of Ex-Governor Geary's death to all parts of the country. On Saturday morning Governor Geary arose in comparatively good health and was noticeably cheerful, and in conversation with his wife, he said that he proposed attending the funeral of his old friend, Judge S. S. Woods, at Lewistown, in the afternoon. He ate a hearty breakfast, after which he prepared some food for his little boy, who occupied a seat beside him. With a startling suddenness his head fell on the shoulder of his son, and then assumed a backward movement, and Governor Geary's heart had ceased to pulsate! His wife hurried to his assistance, but only to find that his spirit had fled.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Owing to the fact that the friends of the deceased were considerably scattered the place of burial was not selected until Saturday night. Colonel Logan, of Pittsburg, brother of his first wife, and other friends arriving during the evening, it was determined, after consultation with Mrs. Geary and them, that the remains should repose in the Harrisburg cemetery. Sunday afternoon, Colonel Frank Jordan, Secretary of the Commonwealth under Governory Geary, selected a lot on the brow of the hill facing the city for the interment of the deceased. On Wednesday, at such place at the capitol, and at such time as the Legislature may designate, when it shall assemble, the remains of the Governor will lie in state. The funeral obsequies will be under the general supervision of the State authorities. On Thursday morning at 11 o'clock services appropriate to the occasion of burial will be held in the Presbyterian church in Market Square, preparatory to the solemn march to the grave. At the request of Governor Geary, made at one of their recent meetings, the services at the cemetery will be conducted by the

of which order he was a member and entertained the highest regard for. Governor Hartranft is in cordial sympathy with the movement to make the funeral of his predecessor a State affair, and on the re-assembling of the Legislature he will submit a message to that body on the matter for its consideration. Governor Geary belonged to a large number of orders—Masons, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Sons of Temperance, &c., all of which will be largely represented at the funeral. The Union League of America, of which Governor Geary was president for a number of years, will also have a large delegation in the funeral procession. The military will also be largely represented.

GOVERNOR GEARY'S ILLNESS.

Dr. Goodman, of Philadelphia, Governor Geary's family physician, who has arrived in Harrisburg; gives it as his opinion that he died from heart disease. Dr. Goodman, with the consent of Mrs. Geary, will make a post mortem examination of the remains. Wm. L. Geary, son of Governor Geary, and Wm. Henderson, a step-son, arrived on Saturday night from West Point, where they are attending military school. The

was a stirring and eventful one. In some of the most striking events in the history of the country it was his fortune to occupy a prominent position. At the breaking out of the Mexican war he had already acquired sufficient influence to enable him to obtain the lieutenant colonecy of his regiment, a rank in the volunteer army of invaders that was eagerly coveted. Promoted to the rank of Colonel, he was flattered by the appointment of second in command of the citadel of Mexico in recognition of his services. At that early day disputes concerning his character and qualifications had already commenced, but Geary triumphed over his enemies, and returned from the Mexican war with the reputation of a hero, and with the resolve of clearing his way to higher distinction. Appointed Postmaster of San Francisco in 1848, a reverse of political fortune soon threw him out of public employment for a brief time. Colfax's prayers are more serious than ever, his ardor in the cause of temperance is unabated, and he still hopes that the artifices that gave him the name of the Christian statesman will serve him in this dilemma. Yet for things that he has done men have suffered long years of imprisonment, while the same church of which he is a shining member teaches that the perjurer never enters the kingdom of Heaven. HOW THE NORTHFLEET MET HER FATE

The Startling Cry From the Officer of the Watch "A Steamer Into Us!"—Struck Amidships—Description of the Heartrending Scenes That Followed the Collision—The Shrieks of Women and Children—Men Swearing as They Fight Their Way to the Boats—The Gallant Conduct of the Captain—At the Last moment—The Ship Goes Down Head First, With Two Hundred and Twenty-seven Souls on Board.

The London Times of January 25, publishes details of the terrible disaster to the ship Northfleet, from which it appears that at half past ten at night the captain and others were alarmed by a cry from the officer of the watch—"A steamer is right into us." The captain and pilot rushed on deck, but before they got there the steamer had run into the vessel, and cutting her below the water mark. The carpenter reported her nearly half full of water. The pumps were started promply and the crew worked hard at them for some minutes, but when it was found that the water was rapidly gaining, a panic seemed to seize both crew and passengers, and the officers could not keep the latter in check. A crowd of men and women had rushed up from the berths,

STRIKING HER AMIDSHIPS,

MANY ONLY HALF CLOTHED.

The passengers had mostly retired; but few were undressed. The noise of the collision is likened by one of them to a peal of thunder, and such was the violence of the shock that those standing were knocked down.

It appears that the steamer rebounded, and came a second time in collision with the Northfleet; water began to pour in, and in a very short time the passengers' quarters were swamped.—The women were slower to rush on deck than the men, and many were not in a condition to go till the water rose threateningly around them. No one on board the steamer was heard to speak, although loud and eager shouts from the Northfleet must have made her crew aware of the terrible danger that existed. She backed for two or three minutes, and then steamed rapidly away and was soon out of sight.—For half an hour the scene on the deck of the Northfleet was appalling.

WOMEN SHRIEKED, MEN CURSED

and swore and fought their way toward the boats, whilst the captain and first mate roared out commands to keep back and allow the women to get to the side of the vessel, but apparently without success. Rockets were fired and blue lights burned. The gun was loaded, but the screw of the ramrod became detached from the handle, and the piece could not be discharged.—Signals of distress were seen by several vessels, but appear to have been regarded as signals for a pilot, for no assistance was rendered. Meanwhile the scene on deck baffled description.—The captain finding the men determined to leave the vessel, went below, armed himself with a revolver, and ascending the poop declared his determination who tried to leave the vessel before the women were saved. The first boat launched was lowered by a number of passengers by cutting the ropes. There being no ladder at hand, the only way of getting into it was by leaping or dropping some twelve or fifteen feet. As there was a terrible rush toward the boat the scence was one of distressing confusion, and a man and boy fell into the water and were drowned. The officers did all they could to force the men who first got into the boat to leave it, that the women might be saved, but to no purpose. Even firing with a blank cartridge, it is supposed, at first, was unavailing. About thirty persons having got into it, the boat was pulled off, with not one of the crew in it.

ANOTHER LIFE-BOAT WAS LAUNCHED,

when a man got into it and was ordered to leave. He refused, and the captain shot him in the calf of the leg. Captain Knowles placed his wife in the boat, and said to the boatswain, who had already got in. "Here is a charge for you; take care of her and the rest, and God bless you!" Wringing his wife's hand he bade her good-bye, saying, "I shall never see you again!" It is impossible to describe the panic that raged all the time. Heartrending scenes were witnessed on all sides. One of the passengers seeing the captain's wife in the boat, threw his own wife in, tossed the baby to her, and entered the boat himself. A little girl was thrown into the boat by her father who tried to save the rest of his family, but the seething, maddened crowd pressing towards the side of the vessel prevented, and, with his wife and two other children, he went down with the ill-fated vessel.

THE FATE OF THE ENGINEER.

The engineer, who made frantic efforts to save his wife and children, was jammed between the cook house and the gunwale, receiving such dreadful injuries that though afterwards rescued he is still in a precarious state. Only two of the seven boats aboard were launched, owing, no doubt, to the panic, and one was seriously injured as the tackle was cut and the boat fell into the sea. When the second boat had got off it seemed to become a question of moments. The quarterdeck was still crowded by some crying, swearing and praying.—The captain and pilot were together, and the lattor was heard saying, "If you want to save yourselves make for the top-mast," to which many people rushed. In a quarter of an hour a tug picked up the second boat with thirty occupants, and then steamed for some time round the spot, where, about three-quarters of an hour after being struck head first, with awful suddenness, with 227 souls on board. At that moment the first boat was one hundred yards and the second only twenty or thirty from the vessel. The first boat, after landing the women, put out to the scene of the wreck, and saved five men who were trying to swim to shore. A lugger took off the occupants of the second boat, 34 passengers and a pilot. The cutter rescued a pilot and ten men, who, having went down with the vessel, rose to the surface and clung to the maintopmast rigging. The vessel lies in eleven fathoms of water.

The survivors say the captain displayed the greatest heroism, maintained his presence of mind from first to last, strove hard to put an end to the panic, and did his duty bravely to the end. He was at the last moment going across the deck in the hope of enabling some of the crowd crushing round the boats on that side to get away from the ship. The survivors say other boats got adrift and express the belief that if the passengers had allowed them to be lowered properly, at least one hundred more lives could have been saved. Unfortunately the women could not climb the masts, although we did all in our power to help them, consequently all the women and children, with the exception of the captain's wife and another, and two children, were drowned.

LOCAL ITEMS.

OUR night school is well attended.

THE sewing machine men are on their rounds.

SUICIDES have become frightfully prevalent in some counties in the State.

WHAT a nice place it makes to have the snow left on the pavements to thaw and then freeze again!

PLEASE drop into the VOLUNTEER office when you come to town, and give us the news of your township.

AN exchange asks: Where does the cotton go? We know where a great deal of it goes, but don't like to tell.

THE new hundred dollar greenback will soon be in circulation. When we get one we will describe it.

AN Indiana county man walked barefooted through the snow, on a wager of seven dollars. The doctor thinks he can save one of his feet.

DUNCANNON, Perry county, is to be favored with a new paper, to be called the Duncannon Record. The material arrived a week or two since.

RENTS high, money scarce, business dull, is the universal complaint in our exchanges. Well, have we not the good times the Radicals promised the people before the elections last fall?

A MAN jumped on a can of nitro glycerine, at Altoona, the other day, to see how the "old thing worked," and the last seen of him, his legs were riding a cloud.

AT the railroad meeting held at New Bloomfield, on Wednesday evening of last week, one-third of the funds necessary to build a road from that borough to Bailey's Station, was subscribed.

OUR devil says he don't see any difference in a fellow standing out at the gate without any invitation to go in, and being taken into the parlor where there is no fire.

A FELLOW who faltered and fell in front of our office, while the sidewalk was slippery—rose to question of privilege as to what the pave-ment.

THOSE who are in a fair way of recovering from the evil effects of liquor, are getting a good head on for a regular temperance dyspepsia. The above alludes to those who quit drinking on New Year.

THE statement of the receipts and expenditures of the county, printed on the opposite page, will be of interest to every tax payer. The account has been carefully and accurately stated by the present very competent board of Auditors.

THE sale bills turned out at this office attract universal attention. Bills printed with us and advertised in this paper, are certain to result in successful sales. We make a reasonable reduction for advertising, when we print the bills. All interested should call.

A COUNTRY customer entered a well-known shoe store on Hanover street; and on being asked by the gentlemanly proprietor what number he wore, replied, "Why, two, of course," and seemed inclined to be indignant with the storekeeper for asking such a foolish question.

To prevent calico from fading while washing, infuse three gills of salt in four quarts of water, put the calico in while hot, and leave it till cool. In this way the colors are rendered permanent, and will not fade by subsequent washing.

WOLF KILLED.—On Thursday afternoon, a party of hunters in Centre township, Perry county, shot a she-wolf in the neighborhood of Newport, and succeeded in securing seven pups, which the mother had concealed in a ledge of rocks.

A WIFE asked her husband for a new dress. He replied: "Times are hard, my dear—so hard I can hardly keep my nose above water;" whereupon she retorted, "You can keep your nose above water enough, if you'd a mind to, but the trouble is that you keep it too much above brandy."

WHEN a horse is running through the streets with the wreck of a sleigh or wagon at his heels, always be sure to run out and heave a bat (that being the handiest,) at him. It has the effect of accelerating his speed, and running him on the pavements, or into some other vehicle.

A YOUNG lady writes to an exchange, giving a receipt for having fun. She says, invite a half-dozen boys and girls to your house when your pa and ma are away; put a half-dollar silver piece in a dish with molasses an inch deep in it, and offer it to the boy who gets it, with his mouth. The more the boys try to get it, the more fun there will be.

REMEDY FOR CROUP IN ONE MINUTE. This remedy is simply alum. Take a knife or grater, and shave or grate off in small particles about a teaspoonful of alum; mix it with about its quantity of sugar, to make it palatable, and administer as quickly as possible. Its effects will be truly magical, as almost instantaneous relief will be afforded.

WE are informed, says the Mechanicsburg Independent, that our genial friend, Maj. T. J. Kerr, met with an accident while at Mt. Union. He was enjoying and making use of the "beautiful snow," when by some means he was thrown out of the sleigh, breaking one of his arms. We are sorry for the Major, but hope he may soon recover from his misfortune.

IT is never safe to get on a moving train of cars. Ninety and nine times you may reach the platform in safety, and the hundredth time you may reach the track, and have the whole train pass over your body, and all the glory of your former success will be swamped in the single failure.

UNION FIRE CO'S. COURSE.—The third lecture of this course will be delivered by Prof. C. F. Himes, in Rheem's Hall, on Friday evening, February 14. This is an experimental lecture on the subject of "Light." A lecture of this nature is a novelty, and should be attended by all. The lecture fever has somewhat abated, and we think our citizens will now appreciate a good lecture. Let all attend. Tickets to be had of Committee of Arrangements.

LEG BROKEN.—Mr. John Geesy, says the Gettsyburg Compiler, of Berwick township, this county, on Saturday last, whilst at Young's Warehouse in Hanover, whither he had gone with a load of grain, in stepping from the rubber block of his wagon into the warehouse door, (his shoes having snow on the bottom,) slipped upon the floor, and broke his right leg just above the ankle. Dr. Smith adjusted the fracture, and Mr. Geesy was taken to his home in a sleigh. He is now as comfortable as the nature of the injury will allow.

THE roof of an old stable situated on North Bedford street, caved in on Saturday last. The weight of the snow was the cause.

ACCIDENT.—Miss Edmund, a teacher of one of our public schools, fell on the ice one day last week, and sustained slight injuries.

UPSET.—A large sled, loaded with flour and feed, belonging to Mr. Wm. L. Craighead, upset on the Baltimore pike, one day last week. Very little damage was sustained.

FIGHT.—A fist-fight took place on West Main street, Saturday afternoon, between two well-known citizens. One of the party was considerably "used up."

COMIC VALENTINES are numerous in our book-stores, and the mails are already being borne down by these senseless caricatures. On Friday will be St. Valentine's day.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.—Carlisle, Pa., Feb. 11, 1873.—The Board of Health report two new cases of small pox—of a mild form—the past week.

JOHN CAMPBELL,
Prest. of Board.

RELIGIOUS.—The Rev. Mr. Robertson, of Dickinson College, will preach the next monthly sermon to the young men of Carlisle, on Subbath next, Feb. 16, in St. Paul's Evangelical Church, at four o'clock—to the service of which all are cordially invited.

PROVIDED FOR.—Capt. W. M. Porter, of Carlisle, has received a $1400 clerkship in the Executive Department at Harrisburg, and has already entered upon the duties of his appointment. It gives us pleasure to announce this appointment, and will add that no better or more deserving man could have been selected. Captain Porter was for a long time the able editor of the Carlisle Herald, and in that capacity did much to build up and sustain the Republican party. On the breaking out of the war he raised a company of Volunteers, with which he marched to the defence of the Union, and his military record whilst in the army reflects credit upon himself as well as upon his native town. In his new position he will prove himself honest, competent and faithful.

ILLEGITIMATE BIRTH AND DEATH.—On Friday evening of last week, says the Chambersburg Opinion, Miss Elizabeth Mitchell, alias Coover, was arrested and held to account for the death of an offspring which was born to her on Wednesday of week before last. Miss Elizabeth made her appearance in this town about four weeks ago, and since took peaceable and quiet possession of a vacant shanty in one of the alleys.—Her usual appearance had been missed by the neighbors for more than a week, which aroused a suspicion that something was wrong. On investigation, a dead infant was found in her room in a nailed-up box. The physicians who made the examination, came to the conclusion that it had been born alive and that death had been forced. Her own account and story was of a different and rather conflicting character, and she was accordingly arrested by officer Houser, and is now in prison, together with a man named McCray, who, we understand, confessed that he made the box containing the body of the dead child. The result of the inquest was in accordance with the conclusions of the physicians.

TESTIMONIAL OF RESPECT.—At a regular meeting of the teachers and members of the M. E. Sunday School (first charge) Carlisle, on the 3d inst., the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from us by death, our beloved Superintendent, Brother Jacob Martin, who for a number of years has been connected with this school as teacher and Superintendent, wh
