Nathan Tilley, in the employ of Messrs Morgan, caught a severe cold hast fall, and has since been troubled with a constant cough, which threatened to terminate in consumption. He tried one bottle of "fach's American Compound." He diese was instantaneous, causing him to expectorate large particles of hard yellowish matter, one in particular so large as to attract the attention of the whole family. From this indicant he appropriate the properties of the vegetables and the whole family. These facts are known to many besides the Messrs, Morgan, of Amoru.

Buch's American Compound owes its success to the mirristic curative properties of the vegetables which compose it. It contains a Compound Fluid Extracted floats Prop of Caner Root," now first given to the Public, that long known to the Indians as a never failing cure for Scrotallas, Consumption, Humors of the Blood, and chrome discusses in any part of the system. In this day of trashy and corrupting reading, with which the "dash" newspapers abound, we are pleased to see a Weekly Journal that has a high, moral and medicelsal aim, that can afford to be independent of sect or party.—N. Y. Observer.

The illustrated paper has been established four months, and is been many an institution like the magazine. In external appearance at is faulties. No journal published in this city, or, perhaps, in the country, can compare with it. It is printed on the finest and whitest of paper, and with clean, sharp cut type, so that it is quite a luxury to look upon, for eyes wearted and haif blinded with the villatinous printing of many of our city dailies. We are heartily glad to see it make its appearance. It is immensely above the level of the common run of illustrated newspapers, and, we believe, will do a good work if it shall take their place. As Harper's Mingazine has done much to drive out the yellow-covered literature, so we should be glad to see this new weekly take the place of those papers which depend for excitement upon poor, trashy novel, because it nims at and his that warrage requirement for family reading, which this enterprising house so well comprehend. Its articles are brief, timely, and devoid of partizanship; it is as marvellously cheap.—Beston Transvenible, it is marve necerate and complete picture of the age in which we live.

It will also give a due share of attention to the taste, the mangination, and the feelings. Its regular consents will embrace Tales, Incidents of Travel and Adventure, Sketches of Character and Social Life, and Issays upon Art and Alorais.
