Poetry. The Parting Word. BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES I must leave thee, lady sweet! Months shall waste before we meet Winds are fair, and sails are spread Anchors leave their ocean bed; Ere this shining day grows dark, Skies shall gird my shoreless bark; Through thy tears, O lady mine. Read thy lover's parting line. When the first and sun shall set, Thou shalt tear thy locks of jet: When the morning star shall rise, Thou shalt wake with weeping eyes When the second sun goes down, Thou more tranquil shalt be grown, Taught too well that wild despair. Dims thine eyes, and spoils thy nuit All the first unquiet week

from Matilda:----

Thou shalt wear a smileless check; In the first month's second half Though shalt once attempt to laugh Then in Pickwick thou shalt dip, Slightly puckering round the hp, Till at last, in sorrow's spite, Samuel makes thee laugh outright.

While the first seven mornings last Round the chamber holted fa-t. Many a youth shall fume and pont, "Hang the girl, she's always sut!" While the second week goes round, Vainly shall they ring and pound; When the third week shall begin, "Martha, let the creatures in."

Now once more the flattering throng Round thee flock with smile and song But thy lips unwean'd as yet, Lisp, "O, how can I forget" Men and devils both contrive Traps for entching girls alive; Eve was duped, and Helen kiss'd,-How, O how can you resist

First be careful of your fan, Trust it not to youth or man; Love has filled a pirate's sail Often with its perfumed gale, Mind your kerchief most of all, Fingers touch when kerchiefs full; Shorter ell than mercers clip

Is the space from hand to lip. Trust not such as talk in trones Full of pistols, daggers, ropes; All the hemp that Russia bears Searce would answer lovers' prayers; Never thread was spun so fine, Never spider stretch'd the line, Would not hold the lovers true,

That would really swing for you Fiercely some shall storm and swear, Beating breasts in black despair; Others murmur with a sigh, You must melt or they will die; Painted words on empty hes. Grabs with wings like butterflies: Let them die, and welcome too, Pray what better could they do?

Fare thee well, if years chace From thy heart love's burning trace, Keep, O keep that hallow'd seat From the tread of vulgar feet. If the blue lips of the sea Wait with icy kiss for me, Let not thine forget the vow, Scal'd how often, Love, as now.
