On receipt of this dismal intelligence, Charles sent off a message to the authorities, ordering that the body Abbeville, S. C., Aug. 21, 1858.
Should be placed over it to prevent any persons approaching the spot until he should himself come thither in person. On his arrival he caused the dead body to be opened, and in the stomach was found the missing diamond, which, it would appear, the faithful page, at the first intimation of an attack and probably by a preconcerated arrangement with his master, made in anticipation of such an emergency, hal swallowed to prevent its falling into the heads of bits.

It was supposed that he had been followed all the way from Brussels by pcrsons who had obtained information (in all likelihood from the Flemish money-lenders themselves) of his having redeemed the jewel; but that no favorable opportunity of plundering him of his precious charge, without chance of detection, had offered until his arrival at this secluded spot on the forest-clad confines of Burgundy. Whatever degree of credence may be attached to this parration, certain it is that a diamond ans wering this description was in the possession of Charles in 1476, when, after his celebrated defeat at Granson, it fell, with the rest of the valuable contents found in his camp, consisting of massive gold plate pearls, and jewels of priceless worth-in short, the most enormous wealth that ever accompanied the march of an army-into the hands of the victorious Swiss, who, to show their contempt of these vanities, parted with the diamond for a trifle, and sold the sumptuous plate as pewter. This diamond, then the largest in Europe, subsequently found its way into the crown of France. where it figures to this day; such at least, is the received opinion. After this, the episodical incident of the "Terriffic Duke" ordering the page's body to be opened in search of the missing jewel, is a feat incomparably more innocent in its nature than is that recorded of Mahomed II. Emperor of the Turks, who, we are credibly informed. was a great amateur of fruit-gardening, and once commanded the bodies of twelve of his pages to be opened while living, in order to discover which of them had eaten a favorite melon which had been purloined from his conservatories at Constantinople.

WHAT THEY SAY IN SOUTH CAROLINA

until the 2d of August. 14 days afterwards.

The difficulty in cutting it open with the best tools that could be procured, convinced us of its power to resist the attempts of burghars, and when it was opened, we found the interior, to the astonishment of all, entirely uninjured by fire.

This test has so fully convinced us of the enpalditties of your Safes, that we would not part with the one we have in use for a large sum, were we delarred the privilege of getting another. Respectfully yours.

W F Would not so often call attention to.

Harper's Weekly if we were not well satisfied that it is the best family paper published in the United States, and for that reason, and that alone, we desire to see it un'ermine and root out a certain kind of literature too prevalent, which blants the morals of its readers, whilest their tasts for sensible rending, and is altogether bad in its effects.—Now London Advertiser.

As Harper's Magazine has done nuch to drive out the yellow covered literature, so we should be glad to see this new Weekly take the place of those papers which depend for excitement on poor, trashy novels.—New York Ecangelist.

Harper's Weekly abounds in original matter, spicy piquant, instructive and entertaining. It has, and deservedly, a very large and increasing circulation. It is a tip top family paper—Boston Journal.

It (Harper's Weekly) is the proper size for binding, and an excellent opportunity is afforded for any one who wishes to preserve the history of the country as it is made, to do so by filing Harper's Weekly—Pontica (Mich) Jacksonian.

Its fresh leaves, its clear type, its entertaining variety, its severe but just criticisms upon the tollies of the times, its elegantly written and instructive arricles, and its able correspondence, all combine to make it the model newspaper of our country, and one that every family must prize. Its condensed weekly summary of Foreign and Domestic intelagence is allogether superior to that contained in any other journal. Being published too, in a form for preservation and binding, it taken cure of as it deserves to be, it will be found in future years as welcome a companion for the family and fireside as the day on which it was first perused.—McConnelsville (O) Inquirer.
