The greater treasure there all the plate of Burnside House has slipped through my fingers this night. Simon Arrowsmith, who in the fiend's name, is this One-eyed Saul, who is sich a terror to our fellers all along the Santes, especially in the neighborhood of this cussed swamp."

"It's more'n I can tell. Cap'n; but I know that he fights like a herricane, and is never still. First you hear of him at one place, then at another a long way off. He goes from p'int to p'int like a racehorse, and allers leaves his mark on the kings men. He has a barnin' hatred for Tories, and woe to them that he puts his eye on for vengeance. for they don't live long arter. Jim Poliard has got somethin' to do, I reckon. I'm glad it wasn't me that drew his name from he hat on the night we crossed our sabres over the red bluze, and swore -we sevento stand by each other to the last, in all ouses and under all circumstances." "Poor luck we've had," sneered Martin,

"though we had the advantage in p'int o numbers. There's seven on us matched agin seven; we'll see how it'il end." A dozen of us seemed to be no match for four, to-night," returned Arrowsmith, mo-rosely. "I wonder if any of our seven got

Imagine the feelings of the young girl!— Picture to yourself her trepidation, her trembling horror, at the proximity of villains whose religion was passion and plander, and whose depraced instincts harried them to the commission of enormities too shocking for the mind to dwell up in. She was like the dove hiding from the hawk the hare shrinking from the teeth of the

"All hope of the gal isn't lost yet, " said Arrowsmith, hopefully, "Herrics and Langford follered 'em, you know?"
"How fur could they foller 'em through it ese infernal meshes of wood?"

"As for as the frightened little hodie-could go. How do you think they could fight their way through such diffikilties as these? Why, they'd leave some of their clothes at every step, and wouldn't have a rag left on 'ever by the time they'd gone a dozen rods. Think how the pretty dears must have torn their soft flesh!" Arrow-mith laughed, as if the idea was a very plea-ant one. "They couldn't go a great ways, that's cortain," replied Martin, reflectively.

"They may be thin ten yards of us." as serte! Arrowsmith, with confidence. The effect of this remark was anything but agreeable to Jossie, for the distance was much less than the ruffian had named.

"We might look about some," added Ar-ownish. They'd be apt to an ggle into the fust hidin' place they come to; that's the way of the critters. When they're frightened, they put their silly heads under

"You forget that Tom Hutter, Paul Haselburst, the tall Yankee, and the nigger, started after 'em the minute we took to our heels. They've found 'em. I'll warrant, and that arch rebel, Hazelhurst, is whisperin' fine things in Jessie's ears by this time. -The days 'Il be long and the nights restless till I've covered him with the muzzle of my rifia. Little shall I sleep till he ceases to stan' atween me and Jessie Burnside." "It isn't best to let out any secrets, Cap'n, for we don't know what ears may hear us.
