not heard. One heart was at least captivated by this heroine in spite of herself. The big Prussian colonel must have his fancy captivated by this close approximation to the heroic maid of his heated brain. Among the toasts drank to Johanna Stegen, his response was the loudest, his praise the most broadly expressed.

But-overy medal has its reverse sidewhat a pity!

In the midst of all these rejoicings, and just as great things were in contemplation for Johanna, who seems to have been regarded as a second Joan of Arc, just when one may suppose the Prussian colone! was beginning to find leisure to prosecute his romantic suit, lo! the French returned and took Luneberg. Dire event! which the po r Lanebergers deplored, and which was perfect ruin to our heroine, whose temporary elevation had served to point her out as a mark for the vengence of the infuriated French soldiery. History tells us no more of her. Did education refine? Did she ever think of Caroline Burger, in the latter's obscurity, or aid the comrade who shared her peril, but not her good fortune? It is believed not. She whom we have called Caroline lived and died, obscure and humble, perhaps not less happy; even her real name was not known by the old inhabitant of the Schioss Luneberg, from whose lips this narrative was gathered years ago, and who could boast of having both seen and spoken to the famous neroine of Luneberg, Johanna Stegen, by no means the first, nor in all likelihood the last, to whom fortune has called in a fit of caprice, and loaded with numerous favors.

We call attention to the advertisenent of Samuel F. Eberlein, in to-day's Spy. H, has just opened a Grocery, Flour, Feed and Variety Store, No. 71 Locust street, between Second and Third, and asks a share of public custom. Mr. Eberlein has laid in a carefully selected stock of first class Grocery. In addition to the general business he will make speciality of the supply of Bread from the Mechanical Bakery, Philadelphin. He receives the bread and cakes fresh every evening, and will serve those who desire it at their houses. At the store he will keep a full supply. This bread is made entirely by mechanical means, is pure, sweet, and more like good home-made bread than any we have ever eaten. We wish Sam every good luck in his undertaking: he cortainly deserves the support of our citizens on personal grounds-and will not for-

Their jet black hair was brushed from the sides and back of the head, and fastened in a knot on the top of the head, by a fillet of pale pink silk. The sister now joined in a duett, one endeavor ing to outshrick the other.
