This pen, cannot fail to command for it at once a large circulation. The following announcement from Mr. Dickens, will convey an idea of the character and aims of the work: ADDRESS. Nine years of Household Words are the best assurance that can be off-red to the public of the spirit and objects of "All the Year Round." In transferring myself, and my strongest en-ergies, from the publication that is about to be begun. I have the bappiness of taking with me that staff of writers with whom I have labored, and all the literary and business co-operation that is all of writers with whom I have labored, and all the literary and business co-operation that can make my work a pleasure. In some important respects, I am now free greatly to advance on past arrangements. Those I leave to testify for themselves in due course. That fusion of the graces of the imagination with the realities of life, which is vital to the welfers of any community, and for which is welfare of any community, and for which i have striven from week to week as honesily as I could during the last nine years, will continue to be striven for, "all the year round." The Striven for, "all the year round."

old weakly cares and duties become things of the Past, merely so be assumed, with an in-creased love for them and brighter hopes epringing out of them, in the Present and the Future.

I look, and plan, for a very much wider cir cle of readers, and yet again for a steadily expanding circle of readers in the projects I hope to carry through "all the year round." And I ieel confident that this expectation will be realized, if it deserves realization. The task of my new journal is set, and it will steadily try to work the task out. Its pages shall show to good purpose their motio is re-membered in them, and with how much of fidelity and earnestness they tell The Story of our Lives from Year to Year. CHARLES DICKENS.
