Whose gnardian planet, evening's silver star,
Illumes thy golden coast!

Of savinge beauty sint: How brought, oh, painther of the splendid hide,

To know thy Master's will! No more thou sittest on thy tawny hills, In indolent repose; Or pour'st the crystal of a thousand fills

The ploughman drives his share,
And where, through conons deep, thy streams are rolle

The miner's arm is bare! Yet in thy fap, thus rudely rent and torn, A nobler -red shall be: Mother of mighty men, thou shall not mourn

Thy lost virginity! Thy human children - bull restore the grace Gone with thy fallen pine-; The wild, burbar, e beauty of the face Shall round to classic lines.

And Order, Justice, Social Law shall carb Thy untained energies;
And Art and Science, with their dreams superb,

Replace thine ancient case. The murble, sleeping in thy mountains now, Shall five in sculp ures rare; Thy native oak shall crown the sage's brow-

Thy bay the post's hair. Thy tawny hills -hall bleed their purple wine, Thy valleys yield their oil; And Music, with her eloquence divine,

Per-uade thy sons to toil. Till Hesper, as he trims his silver beam, No happier land shall see. And Earth shall find her old Arcadian dream

All about a Coin. [CORRESPONDENCE OF THE N. Y. JOURNAL

COMMERCE. You publish this morning an article on coins and coin collecting. I am given to the love of curious coins myself, and nothing tempts me farther than the prospect of American coin, a pine tree shilling, Granly copper, or other memorial of our own country. It was such a prospect that led me out of my way on the homeward trip from the cality whereof I need not mention with preme long ago that if I would come and see Olls for sale by the bushel or larger quanpers, and some of them were rare and curious, and were valuable additions to my collection.
