Funerals in Brazil .- Singular Custom -When a person dies in Rio the front entrance of the house is closed—the only occasion when such a thing happens. The law requires the body to be buried in twentyfour hours. If the deceased was merried a festoon of black cloth and gold is hung over the street door; for unmarried, lilac and black; for children, white, or blue, or gold. Coffins for the married are also black, but for young persons they are red, scarlet, or blue. Few persons are actually buried in the shallow coffins of the country, their principal use being to convey the corpse to the cemetery and then, like the hearse, they are returned to the undertaker. Fond of dress while living, the Brazilians are buried in their best, and, punctilious to the last degree, they enforce etiquette after death. Hotlowat's Pills and Onthern.—Exercise your Judgment—A newer and better phi-osophy.—To pull down all absurd and antiquated notions of disease and its cures and to extablish a rational system on the roim has been the chief endeavor of Dr. Holloway through life, hence the origin of his celebrated Pills and Ointment—remedies in keeping with common sense because subservient to nature rather than at variance with her lawa like those in general use. To the stomach—we trace dyseperia, hendache and general debility—to the liver, bile, jaundice, and verlow fever, to the bowels, diarrhoa, dysentery, constipation, piles and fiatula; to the langs, consumption, &c., to the blood scrofula scurey and all cutaneous eruptions.—By keeping these organs and the vital fluid pure and no medicine yet presented for this purpose can equal the action of these Pills and Ontment, as they dive to the reat of the disorder and by extirpating its cause destroy its effect.
