POPULAR SENTIMENT IN VIRGINIA .-- A recen 1861. brief trip into the interior of Virginia has thor- WE will oughly satisfied us that there exists no foundation whatever for the impression sought to be made by the Richmond disunion newspapers, that a considerable change in favor of their very bad cause has occurred in that State since the late election of members to their current State Convention. According to their statements the Old Dominion is all ablaze for immediate secession. Our observation was, principally, in the very county in which the change in favor of disunion is represented to have been greatest, wherein we could not hear of a single citizen who, being for the Union at the date of the Convention election, is now for placing Virginia under the usurpation of the oligarchy-not one. On the contrary, we found the people very generally utterly amazed, incensed and disgusted at the atrocity of that usurpation as developed by the means taken to confirm it in power-the entire abrogation of popular rights in the Seceded States, and the wholesale misrepresentation of purposes and policy of the Government of the United States towards the South, made pluin in its conduct since the 4th of March. We found no man there with whom we conversed upon the subject who now fails to realize that the question which Virginia is to decide is whether she will give up the assurance of the continuance of all the rights, privileges, liberties and blessings which her people have enjoyed through the Government of the United States up to this time, for the questionable condition of citizenship under the despotism of Rhett, Spratt,

Cobb, Toombs & Co. Not a man of them entertained the idea se industriously sought of late to be injected into the Virginia popular mind that the policy of the present Administration is an aggressive one upon the South. The result is, that the cause of the Union is far stronger at this moment there than previous to the fourth of March, when the course of the present Government towards the South was uncertain, and was being
