[From the Charleston Courier, June 2]
About two o'clock Friday afternoon one About two o'clock Friday afternoon one of the enemy's gunboats came into Stono river and took a position from which they opened fire on Fort Pemberton, garrisoned under the command of Major J. J. Lucas. The post is under command of Lieutenant Colchel C. K. Huger. A brisk engagement of a half an hour took place, after which the enemy retired. The behavior of the garrison was admirable. admirable. FEDERAL OPERATIONS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

[From the Lynchburg Republican, June 2] CHARLESTON, May 31 .- The Courier of this morning says the enemy, in strong force consisting of infantry, cavalry and artillery, landed at Page Point on Thursday merning IN COLUMBIA, PENNA. and advanced towards Pocotaligo, within two miles of the Charleston and Savannah Railroad. Our forces at that point although inferior in numbers, held the enemy in check until reinforcements arrived, when the enemy retreated to their boats, the Confederates pursuing them.

It was thought the engagement would be resumed last night or this morning.

Two Confederates are reported to have been killed. Col. Walker's horse was shot under him per month.

At Pemberton the enemy's gunboots threw a few shell, but they did no injury. They also shelled Newtown.

The engagement lasted three hours, doing no injury to our side. One Federal ganboat was disabled. The Mercury says the mast was shot away. It was thought the fight would be resumed this morning.

When the props are knocked from under a vessel upon the stocks, it slides into its proper element. Now that we have knocked away the props of the rebollion, it will no doubt "take water."
