THE LANCASTER COUNTY DRAFTED MILI WIL.-After considerable discussion it appears to be settled that the drafted men o this State are to be allowed to form their own organizations, electing their own line and field officers. During the inclement wintry weather of last week the men have auffered considerably from want of blankets and warm clothing, and this, together with the order that they should be mustered into she old regiments produced a strong feeling of insubordination among them. The anmonneament from Governor Curtin that the man were to choose their own officers, and the recall of the details from the old regiments, satisfied the militia, and they at once proceeded with their organizations.

Soon after leaving Berlin, as usual, a stringent order was issued against depredations of all kinds. Property of disloyal men was scrupulously guarded. The troops, however, after leaving Union, disreburg and Winchester turnpike, two miles garded the order, and subsisted off the country. I presume one hundred sheep, as many hoge, and fifty calves, besides great quantities of poultry and honey, were taken without compensation, by the Reserves alone. At the outside, I do not think that half a dozen loyal families suffered from these depredations. The men were not provided these last two days with meat of any kind, and from necessity had to subsist as they did.

I am not now nor ever have been in favor of carrying on this war on the rose water plan, and do not censure our men for thus acting, although I am held responsible for acts of that kind committed by those immediately under my charge. My vision was always contracted and I never could see the act done.

Washington, Oct. 28, 1862. Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:-Sin:-In reply to the general interrogatories contained in your letter of yesterday,

I have the honor to report: First. That requisitions for supplies to the army under General McClellan are made by his staff officers on the Chiefs of Bureaus | groundless. The fact is the clothing arrives here; that is, the Quartermaster applies by and is issued, but more is still wanted. Ihis Chief Quartermaster on Quartermaster have ordered more than would seem necessary General; for commissary supplies by his from any data furnished me, and I beg to re-Chief Commissary on Commissary General, | mind you that you have always very prompt-

No such requisitions have been, to my knowledge, made upon the Secretary of War, and none upon the General-in-Chief.

Second. On several occasions. General McClellan has telegraphed me that his army was deficient in certain supplies. All these telegrams were immediately referred to the heads of bureaus with orders to report. It was ascertained that in every instance the requisitions have been immediately filled, except where the Quartermaster General had been obliged to send from Philadelphia certain articles of clothing, tents, etc., not having a full supply here.

There has not been, so far as I could ascertain, any neglect or delay, in any department or bureau, in issuing all the supplies asked for by General McClellan, or by the officers of his staff.

Delays have occasionally occurred in forwarding supplies by railroad on account of the crowded condition of the railroad depots, or of a want of a sufficient number of cars; but, whonever notified of this fact, agents under the excellent superintendence of Gen. army of the size of that under General Mc-Clellan will frequently be for some days without the supplies it has asked for, on account of a neglect in making timely requisitions for them, and unavoidable delays in forwarding then, and distributing them to the different brigades and regiments.

am of the opinion that the requisitions from that army have been filled more promptly, and that the men, as a general rule, have been better supplied, than in the case of our this town yesterday unopposed. armies operating in the West. The latter have operated at much greater distance from the sources of supplies, and have had far less facilities for transportation. In fine, I believe that no armies in the world in cam-

On the that three weeks have elapsed since that order was given.

Fourth. In my opinion there has been no such want of supplies in the army under is Provost General in the Rebel army and Gen. McClellan as to prevent his compliance with my orders to advance upon the enemy. Had he moved his army to the south side

General McClellan stated that he attack our forces at Waterloo. would require at least three days to supply the first, fifth, and six corps; that they needed shoes, and other indispensable articles of clothing, as well as shelter-tents. No complaint was made to me that his army requisitions had not been filled, and it was inferred from his language that he was only waiting for the distribution of his supplies.

On the eleventh of October he telegraphed to me that a portion of his supplies sent by railroad had been delayed. As already stated agents were immediately sent from here to investigate this complaint, and they reported that everything had gone forward on the same date, the 11th.

Gen. McClellan spoke of many of his horses being broken down by fatigue. On writing from the front at the Rappahannock. the 12th of October he complained that the rate of supply was only one hundred and fifty horses per week for his entire army there and in front of Washington.

I immediately directed the Quartermaster General to inquire into this matter, and report why a larger supply was not furnished to General McClellan. General Meigs reported to me, on the 14th of October, that the average issue of horses six weeks, had been 1,459 per week, or to remain.

8,454 in all.
In addition, he reposted to me that a large number of mules had been supplied, and that the number of these summals with Genwent across lots in an easterly direction morrow for Trenton, where he is ordered to aral McClellan's army on the Upper Potomac was over 3,100. He also reported to me that he was then sending that army all the horses he could procure.

Rebel Attack on Nashville.

THEY ARE DRIVEN OFF AFTER A REAVY BOMBARDMÊNT.

Louisville, November 7.—The Rebel threatening Nashville has been much exag-erated. John C. Breckinridge is below Murfeesboro with only 3,500 men. Sill's Division is within supporting distance of Nashville. The reported movement of Rebel troops from Chattanooga toward Murfeesboro is totally false, there being no bridge across the river at Chattanooga, and

NEW YORK, November 8.—A special despatch to the Tribune, dated Bowling Green, Ky., November 7th, says: Heavy cannonading was heard in the di-rection of Nashville on Wednesday evening and Thursday morning. Breckinridge advanced with 20,000 men, but after a heavy bombardment the Rebels retreated.

Morgan's guerillas were defeated while attempting to burn the railrand bridge near Edgefield Junction. General McCook has entered Nashville and the city is considered safe. Communi-cation between that city and headquarters has been resumed by couriers.
