ACCIDENT AT THE COLUMBIA ROLLING MILL .- The tremendous crash heard at the other side. While this was going on, Col. Fly Wheel in the Bolling Mill of Maltby & Case. The Wheel, which weighs twentytwo or three tons, was under full headway at the time, and the fragments were hurled in all directions, with the velocity of lightning. Furturately, most of the men had started for breakfast, and so far as we could jured-had they been at work many lives would have been lost. How long it will take to repair the damages we are unable to say, but have been informed that a month will Wrightsville end of the bridge was barribe required to put the mill in running order.

ITS PRELIMINARIES AND SUBSEQUENTS.

The last few weeks have been replete with events of thrilling interest. As the scene of war and bloodshed has changed from the Rappahannock across the Potomac to the Susquebaana, and the tide of battle has swayed forth and back, many have been the hopes and fears which swelled in loval hearts.

The appointment and general order from Gen. Couch and the President's call for 200,000 militia, augured danger, and the reports of the Rebels marching hitherward, in three columns 90,000 strong, were truly elarming and

On the 23d Col. J G. Frick, with the 27th Regiment P. V. relieved Maj. Haldeman and the emergency men.

In a day or two men with horses and oth er valuables fleeing from the invading hosts began to come over the bridge and with each hour their number increased. On Saturday we learned that the Rebels were at Hanover and that they had cut the telegraph and burned a train of cars at Hanover Junction, on the N. C. Railway, 10 miles below York. The merchants now began to pack and ship their goods, lest they might become "aid and comfort" for the enemy.

About 81 o'clock on Saturday evening the men. City Troop dashed into Columbia and reported that York had surrendered to the enemy. The bells were rung and the men of 50 miles distant, calculated to checkmate the town were ordered to take arms, when all Lee's schemes of invasion and to harl
