Keystone.—Your enigma is received.
Cannot publish without auther's mame, and it is doubtful whether we would publish it with it. An enigma to be worth anything, should be as briefas possible. For instance, when there are 42 letters in the answers, there should be only that number in the questions. Yours has 42 in the answers and 223 in the questions, and hence is five times too long, besides, many errors occur. For instance, "The name of a favorite exhibition place among the Romans," "My whole is a distinguished General of the Revolutionary War." Wonderful! "Keystone" reanimates the sleeping patriots dust, and, by an awkward combination of figures, brings to life the man who befriended his fellows in both worlds.

Lu Light.—Postry received and will be published as soon as we can find room for it. The poetry is much better than the prose. We rather like you.

M. A. S.—Your MSS. received and accepted. To Correspondents. .
