One Effect of the War.

In its relation to the intellectual and moral character and growth of our peo ple this war is unlike any before record ed in the history of our waring race .-We will not now speak of the moral effeet of war, but will only say that taking the whole nation together, we are certain that its moral life is healthier and truer than ever before. There is more manhood, of christian living, of true wor than ever before. The nation is living neurer to God every day.

But of the influence of war we mopose to speak now, upon the intellectual life of our people, and of this in some of its simple and obvious forms. It is "the midnight lamp" which floods the world with sickly sentimentalities, with false morals, with rickety theclogy, and with all those harum scarum dreams of human elevation which abnegates Bible teachings .- Hall's Journal of Health.
