

THE COLUMBIA SPY

Our Andersonville Martyrs. A private letter from Captain James M. Moore, A. Q. M., who was dispatched to Andersonville, Ga., for the purpose of giving decent burial to the remains of our prisoners who were murdered by the late rebel authorities, says:

We are encamped within one hundred yards of the prison pen of Andersonville, and it is in the fullest sense of the word nothing more than a pen—a human pen, where 30,000 of our brave soldiers were huddled together in an enclosure not 200 yards long and scarcely 100 wide, where they were exposed to the rays of an almost tropical sun for months, resulting in the death of thousands.

How General Lee went into the War. On the Sunday when the news arrived of the fall of Sumter, a gentleman of our acquaintance, in whom we place perfect confidence, took the cars at Washington to go to Richmond. Upon the train were Alexander A. H. Stuart, William Ballard Preston, and another member of the committee which the Virginia Legislature had sent up to Washington to confer with the Government, or more properly speaking, to see what manner of man the new President was and to spy out the land.

When the train was under way, our friend was asked, "Who is that enthusiastic man?" "That is Colonel Lee," said Mr. Preston.

And this is the man who has since been commander of the rebel forces, and who is represented as having very reluctantly, and only after much persuasion, accepted the position of rebel leader.

Great Reduction of the Army. It is ascertained from official sources that on the first day of last May there were one million and fifty thousand men enrolled in the army and on the pay rolls.

Since that date there have been discharged a little over seven hundred thousand, leaving in round numbers about three hundred and thirty thousand still in the army and on the pay rolls.

Of the number discharged about three hundred thousand are now on route and at their several rendezvous, to be paid off and mustered out. The funds sufficient to meet this demand are in the hands of the paymasters, and are being paid out as fast as possible.
