Base Ball.
The Brooklyn Eagle philosopher, in his effort to keep up with the amusements of the age, has slipped into base ball sport. He thus explains the science of the game:

The game is a great invention. It is easily understood. All you have to do is to keep your eye on the ball.

It's all about the ball.

They also use a bat. The bat is a club built on the model of the club Baroum killed Captain Cook with.

This is why the organization is called a club.

One fellow takes a club and stands on a line, and another stands in front of him and fires the ball back at him.

The chap with the club hits back. The ball flies in the other direction.

The first fellow drops the club as though he was scared, and runs like a pickpocket with an M. P. after him.

Several fellows run after the ball; somebody catches it and fires it at somebody else, when the chap who hit the club stops running.

Another fellow then takes the club, and the same man, who is called "pitcher," pitches on him, fires the ball at him and he hits back, knocks the ball, drops his club and cuts his stick for the first base.

Half a dozen fellows out on picket duty scramble for the ball.

One reliable B. B. is posted behind the club man, in case the club man misses the ball, to see that it don't go by and hit the Umpire.

When one side is out the other side goes in, and when both sides are out it is called an innings.

It is quite an intelligent game, depending entirely on the use of our legs. The first principle of the game is running.

When you are "in" you run away from the ball; when you are "out" you run after it.

It is splendid exercise; it keeps you so warm; consequently is always played in summer time.
