Conflict of Authority in East Tennessee.

A conflict of authority occurred between the civil and military authorities at Danbridge; East Tennessee, under fhe following circumstances: A. party of soldiers, under orders, killed the guerrilla Thornhill, some months ago. These men, under an act of Congress, were tried, acquitted and discharged by courtmartial. They were indicted before Judge Swan, in. the Circuit Court of Jefferson county, for the same offense. and by him remanded to prison. General Thomas ordered their release. The order was disregarded, and the force sent to release the prisoners captured by the Sheriff possc comitatus and imprisened. Gen. Stoneman has sent two hundred men under officers, to release the prisoners and arrest all who resisted General Thomas' order. This will include the Judge, Sheriff and many citizens. The military have taken possession of Danbridge and will remain until all troubles end .- Cincinnati Commercial.

ONE MAN KILLED ANDTWO BADLY

Report of the Coroner's Jury held by Deputy Caroner, Daniel Culley About half past seven o'clock on Fri lay evening 29th ult., as we had finished pressing our edition, our citizens were startled by a loud report, causing the windows, in all parts of the Borough, to hake. Everyone rushed out to see what was the cause, but no one could tell. . A messenger soon arrived with the startling intelligence that the boilers at Cordelia Furnace, situated about two miles from Columbia, on the R & C. R. R., had been blown up. The excitement was intense, and the road was soon filled; with all manner of vehicles, and persons on foot, wending their way to the scene of the disaster-

Two were bursted completely. The half of one was carried about five hundred yards into a neighboring field, and the other was 475,235 50; debt bearing no interest, lodged against a large wagon, demolishing it completely. The debris was scattered in all directions, for hundreds of yards around the Furnace. The houses in the vicinity were shaken, as though Secretary McCullough contemplates by an earthquake, breaking all the windows, and many dishes in the cupboards. Children, seated on chairs, were thrown violently on the floor.

John Lutz was instantly killed. He was engaged in filling, with Shiffer, and was blown from that over the Casting House, striking the Bell, carrying it with him. He was found in a run, about one hundred yards off, with his head and one arm blown off. He leaves a wife and several children to mouth his loss ters, but she, fortunately and almost miraculously escaped, without injury. The Furnace belonged to our townsman, Col. C. S. Kauffmin, and great regret is expressed for the unfortunate afthe summer and everything put in the most complete order for the successful manufacture of pig iron. Now everything is a shapeless mass of ruins, and signed for this great catastrophe.

At the Inquisition held on the 31st day of December 1865 upon the body, of John M. Lutz, killed by the explosion of the boilers of Cordelia Furnace on the evening of Dec. 29th. The following testimony was elicited:

JEREMIAH CONKLIN, Affirmed. JEREMIAH CONKLIN, Afirmed.—

Am assistant Engineer, and have been so employed since last April. Never was Engineer previous, but had been employed about the Furnace for the last three years. On the evening of Dec. 29th, went on turn at 5,45 o clock, and found the pressure indicated by steam gauge 85 lb., to the square inch. The Furnace was making gas freely, the water in the boiler flush at the first gauge, and lowed at the second.—At a quarter of 7 o clock had 110 lb, of steam, then opened the flue doors and removed the weight on safety valve beam further in, and turned on the two pumps until the water appeared in the upper gauge, at about twenty minutes to So,clk. gauge, at about twenty minutes to 8 o.c.lk. the pressure was about 55lb., turned pumps off, and sat down on chair in engine house right of a negro to be a co-laborer with a you;" but before John could recove from the shock she are high put in "the she hen explosion took place.

JOHN DAUM, sworn.—
Am principal Engineer, left the Furnace at 5,30 o'clock, had 80 lb. pressure, the water flush in middle gague, generally carried 80 lbs. of steam—the safety valves blow off at that pressure. After a high pressure the safety valves sometimes stick when coming down, have carried over 100 lb. pressure. The gauge worked right. is pressure. The gauge worked right as far as I knew. Have been Engineer at the Furnace for two years, and employed at it for twelve years. Cannot tell the cause of the explosion, did not trust the boilers as they make all. There was planty of water in were old. There was plenty of water in the boilers when I left. When speaking of pressure I mean as indicated by the steam gauge. Always regulated the boilers so they would fill alike. The boilers were well supported. After the explosion when I first say the numer they were turned of I first saw the pumps they were turned off. I never used both pumps at the same time. Mr. Kauffman instructed me not to carry more than 80 lbs. pressure.—The chair in engine house was not broken nor injured.

HENRY MAY, Sworn.—
Came to the Furnace about 6 o'clock, was in casting house a little after 7 o'clock the boilers exploded; after things became quiet, ran from the Furnace, found Lutz, close to a run, he was lying on his face much mutilated.

B. A. PRICE, Affirmed.—
Am present manager of Furnace—examined the valves which stopped the water on and off the pumps, as soon as the debris was removed, they had not been disturbed since the explosion found them all together with the injector turned off. Do not think there could have been sufficient water in

John Best, sworn.—
Am a boiler maker-was acquainted with the condition of boilers at Cordelia Furnace—replaced these boilers about fifteen months ago, and put in one new in addition—at the request of Col. C.S. Kauffman, examined all the old boilers—their condition was good, with the exception of the head of one boiler which I replaced with a new one. In making connections with a new one. In making connections with the mud drums I had an opportunity with the mud drums I had an opportunity of examining the condition and quality of iron in old boilers and considered it good. From my experience as a boiler maker and knowledge of the power of steam. I am satisfied that the three exploded boilers were good or they would not have made such havoc. The use of the boilers during the last fifteen months would not inpair their quality—haveno recollection of Mr. Reid having me to place a patch upon a defect in one of the boilers which he had discovered—would not like to carry 110 lbs, pressure on any boiler of same 110 lbs. pressure on any boiler of same kind. In my opinion the explosion was caused for the want of water in boilers.

Col. C. S. Kauffman, Affirmed.—
Am proprietor of Cordelia Furnace.—
The weight on the levers bearing down the safety valves is 56 lbs. each. The length of fulcrum to valve is 4 inches, and 44 inches from valve to end of lever, and the action of lever 7½ lbs., diameter of valve 3½ inches. Therefore making the jutnost pressure which could be on the safety pressure which could be on the safety valve 79 lbs., there were two safety valves of this kind. My opinion is the explosion was caused by there not being sufficient water in the boilers. I believe Conklin, was entirely competent to regulate the was entirely competent to regular testing steam and water—I always felt satisfied the steam gauge indicated more pressure than actually was contained in the boilers; and knew that it registered 15 lbs., more than the safety valve.

The following is the verdict of the jury "That the said John M. Lutz came to his death by the explosion of the foliars at the Cordelia Furnace, hay est Hempfield twp., Laneaster County, of the evening of Dec. 29th, 1855, at about 14 o'clock, the cause of the explosion being in the opinion of the Jury, from the testimony, that the boilers were not of sufficient strength to bear the pressure carried on said evening."
