What French Brandy is made of in New York.

An investigation into some of the illicit master work, and that is all. The grand distilling operations which have been effect of the whole as seen from below, carried on very extensively in Gotham a distance of two hundred fect, I have clicited the fact that French brandy is manufactured from the worn-out rollers which printers use to ink their types .---Now this same capital invested in a use- ceived; an artist's peneil dedicated it, These rollers are made of glue and molasful business would bless the community and it would require an artist's pen to ses, and it appears that when they are no longer fit for use they are taken and boiled, to separate the glue from the saccharine matter contaided in them, and the onuch," (now at this Navy Yard,) gave latter substance, by distillation. is conevening last week.
