BY EVA ALICE. 'Tis the first welcome flow'ret,-That smiles o'er the plain, Kind heaven's bright token-Of life,-yet again; 'Tis the first to awaken From out the cold tomb. Not dead,-only sleeping,

More sweetly to bloom. Though fade the bright blossoms, When Autumn winds blow, Though withered and buried, Deep under the snow; Yet flowers in their beauty Shall greet the fair spring. And summer's sweet roses,

More tenderly cling. Though the fairest and dearest Are passing away, Yet brightly, still shineth Hope's beautiful ray, The promise comes cheering Earth's loneliest gloom, The spirit immortal,

Written for the Columbia Spy. ALCOHOL.

Its Physiological and Medicinal effects upon the Human System.

MR. EDITOR: It is my design in this communication to point out, as far as my limited time and space will allow, the ef feets of alcoholic stimulation upon the lungs in health, and its abuse as a medicine in consumption. The subject assumes importance from the fact that many have been induced to indulge in the habitual use of intoxicating drinks, the honest, but mistaken notion, that it was a preventative of the much dreaded disease—consumption The mistake has arisen in part from the similarity, of symptoms produced by tubercular consumption. Hard drinkers have languor, lassitude, irregular appetite, cough in the morning attended not unfrequently with bloody expectoration; consumptives suffer from similar symptoms. When the above described hard drinkers have died, and although they had the symptoms of tubercular disease while living, a postmortem examination has usually showed that they were free from it. This freedom from tubercular disease was erroneously attributed to their excessive use of alcoholie stimulants. Circumstances like Bryant: the above have led to the investigation and observation of facts, to ascertain the real effects of alcohol upon the lungs in health and disease.

1st. Circulation. In thirty minutes he knows that both will be welcome." after a moderate dose of alcoholic stimulant was taken, the pulse was increased in frequency without any augmentation of strength or fulness, and continued so for an hour or more when it gradually subsided, and in two hours and a half became less than natural. When the effects of the stimulation had passed off and on envelopes, in all cases, regardless the pulse sunk as much below the natural which party furnishes the paper. If standard as it had been carried above by the stimulation.

2nd. Lungs. It is the natural function of the lungs to furnish oxygen to the system, and carry off the carbonic acid gas of the expired air. Prof. Davis ounce of brandy the amount of carbonic acid gas began to decrease, and continued to diminish until two hours were past, carbonic acid gas in the expired air was caused by the stiptic effects of the alcohol upon the worn out materials of the blood by preventing their oxidation.

3rd. Heat. The temperature began to lessen at the end of one hour, and continued to diminish for several hours, the

> -A man of singularly minute observation once said to me; "I have noticed that young ladies seem to go through three stages of feeling with regard to matrimony. When they first grow up and come into society, they of course consider it the first aim of existence. but in a year or two they become different, and lose all care for it; but as they grow to be about twenty-five or so on, their old anxiety returns stronger than ever."-Emily Chester.

A PRINTER .- What a curious being printer is. He stands when he sets, and sets when he stands, and when he wishes to set with ease he always stands to be deducted from the returns on letter- erect. It is however the nature of the case which causes him to stand.

-Recent rains have washed away the thin covering of earth from the bones of 12,000 Confederate dead on the fields of Shiloh and Corinth. The Union dead were properly interred, and have not been exposed by the elements.

-The new residence of Gen. Grant at Washington is one of a block built some ten years ago by Senators Douglas, Rice. and Breckenridge, as their metropolitan residences while in office. Government had used the whole block as a hospital during the rebellion. The house adjoining General Grant belongs to Alfred Lee, a sagacious and highly respected colored man, a flour dealer and reported to be worth two hundred thousand dol-
