Like all tribes in the vicinity of the whites, the Soshone is a profes sional thief, a dextrous, insinuating bezhair interwoven with brass wire and gar and an unconscionable villain in the general leger de-main of living by his wits. Gay, gaudy colors, painted plamage, red tufts of feather work, long black coiled up in the rings of the same material and that inevitable slovenly trailed blanket make up the outward fashion of Aboriginal apparel. When I say fashion. I do not mean that their hat blocks vary in style semi-occasionally or that their dresses and coats have the latest Paris coup. No, their fashion is to adopt any style and consists of cast off clothing, flung to them by the whites. It is truly. laughable to see the grotesque strut of the Aboriginal "swell," to see him wear a lady's jockey hat and feather in the most conceited, self-important style. This he paints and covers with feathers and beads, then he betakes himself to his at the place above mentioned, where he will be at all times prepared to supply those who may tavor him with a call with till a little water gives it the consistency of a brick before baking.

J. A. COMERFORD. The New Cure for Cholera. The London correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial gives Dr. Rubini's new preparation for cholera, which consists of equal parts, by weight, of camphor and spirits, and to the power thus obtained he attributes his success in the treatment of the disease. The quantity of camphor which the water will take up is small. To obtain the "Saturated Spirits of Camphor of Rubini," it is necessary to distil spirits of wine, and get rid of so much of its water as will bring it to 90° over proof, in which condition it will dissolve and hold in solution its own weight of camphor.

With this "saturated spirits of camphor" Dr. Rubini has treated, in Naples, five hundred and ninety-two cases of Asiatic cholera without the loss of a single patient. Of these five hundred and ninety-two cases, two hundred were cured in the Royal Alms House; eleven in the Royal Poor House, and one hundred and thirty six in the Third Regiment of Wolff. That the three hundred and seventy cases treated by Dr. Rubini in these public institutions were all genuine cases of Asiatic cholera, fand some This noise was kept up all night with- "terribly severe" and that all recovered. out lull or intermission.
