Loss of the Evening Star.
The recent gales on the Southern Atlantic coast have been fruitful of disasters. The last victim of the tempest was the splendid steamer, Evening Star, which foundered on the 3d inst., 180 miles east of Tybee, with the supposed loss of nearly all on board, numbering 270 souls. The ill-fated steamer was at the time on her trip from New York to New Orleans, and had become such a favorite, and her accommodations were so good, that many persons would not travel in any other boat. Passages were engaged and paid for a month before the time of sailing, and up to the present time there had not been less than $1000 received at the office of the company as engagement of berths for her next trip, which was to have been on the 27th of October, and for which the bills and posters had already been printed.

Among the prominent passengers was Gen. II. W. Palfrey, long and favorably known as a real estate auctioneer in New Orleans, and occupying the rank of Gen. in the Louisiana State Militia. With Gen. Palfrey were his wife and child—Miss Sloo, whose name appeared in the list of passengers, was the daughter of Thomas Sloo, president of the San Mutual Insurance Company of New Orleans and niece of the gentleman to whom the original grant across the Isthmus of Nicaragua was made. D. Pretto was a member of the firm of Wolf & Co., of New-York, and Wolf & Pretto, of New Orleans. He had just returned from Europe, and was proceeding home with his wife, who had come to New York for the purpose of accompanying him on the trip back.

On board was the opera troupe of Mr.
Paul Alhaiza, comprising fifty-nine singers, artists and musicians, whom the manager had engaged in Paris. During the passage from Europe, the manager, was strongly advised to convey his artists to New Orleans by rail, but fearing that the voyage would prove too fatiguing for the ladies of the troupe, he decided upon securing their passage by the Evening Star. He did not, however, secure his own berth on board, but proceeded to New Orleans by land, thus avoiding the sad fate that awaited the members of his company.

Dr. Spalding's circus company, numbering about thirty persons, was also on board. The organization had on the vessel a quantity of paraphernalia and baggage but no horses.
Ninety seven young girls, whose ages varied from fifteen to twenty two, were among the unfortunates. These had been engaged by the matrons of saunty New Orleans maisons de joie to take apartments in their respective establishments for the winter. As to the real names of the poor girls, but little information could be gathered.
Since the loss of the Arctic, of the Collins' line, by collision with the Vesta in mid-ocean, no calamity at sea has so thrilled the hearts of the people of New York as the wreck of the steamer Evening Star. The fact that the majority of the ill-fated passengers were unprotected women intensifies the feeling throughout the city, nor is the picture of the drowning people less harrowing, that many among them were the victims of a wicked life.

The scenes around the office of the company at No. 5, Bowling Green, during Tuesday, were often of a most painful nature. Men, with pale and anxious faces, crowded the place from an early hour, and the streams of inquiries at the office all day were incessant. Women, young and old, mothers, daughters and sisters of the lost at sea, lingered around the building all day, with eyes red with weeping for their loss, yet hopeful still that some new telegram might bring them better news.
The most intense anxiety prevails at New Orleans regarding the loss of the steamer, as her passenger list comprised many old inhabitants returning from Discoveries of the last Fifty Years.

This is an age, among other things, of discovery. The human intellect has employed itself upon scientific investigation, within the last fifty years, with wonderful energy and success. Among the discoveries of the last century are:
The Steamboat—Fulton launched the first one in 1807. Now there are over three thousand steamboats traversing the waters of America.—Nearly all the rivers in the world are traversed by steamboats.
Magnetic Telegraph.—In 1800 it took weeks to send intelligence between Philadelphia and New Orleans, now it can be done in as many minutes by the electric telegraph, which only had its beginning in 1843.
Voltaic was discovered in March, 1800.
Electrotyping was discovered only a few years ago.
The printing press, capable of printing 20,000 copies an hour, is a very recent discovery, but of most important character.
Gaslight was unknown in 1800, now every city and town of pretence is lighted with it.
Chloroform is also of recent discovery.
Astronomy has added a large number of new planets to the solar system—

Discovered of the last Fifty Years.
This is an age, among other things, of
discovery. The human intellect has employed itself upon scientific investigation,
eries of the last century are:
three thousand steamboats traversing the
in the world are traversed by steam-
boats.
Magnetic Telegraph.—In 1800 it took
weeks to send intelligence between Phila-
be done in as many minutes by the electric
in 1843.
Voltaic was discovered in March, 1800.
Electrotyping was discovered only a few years ago.
The printing press, capable of print-
character.
Gaslight was unknown in 1800, now
with it.
Chloroform is also of recent discovery.
Astronomy has added a large number
