of these rascals either escape entirely unwhipped of justice, or have mere nomiual damages imposed upon them with costs, And yet the crime of which they are guilty, properly considered, is one of the highest known to the law. There is no offence more destructive of the best interests of society. It poisons, to a greater or less extent, every fountain of public health and prosperity. It assails every class in the community; youth with its warm blushes and buoyant heart; manhood with its high impulses and bounding energies, and old age with its wrinkled brow and palsied hands. None are exempt from its malicious and vindictive attacks. It enters the bowers of beauty, and plucks the roses from its check. It looks in upon the door of innocence, and the flowers which grow upon its threshold wither and die at its approach. It is a sin, abhorrent to man and condemned of heaven. It stands arrayed against the eternal canon of the Almighty, delivered amid the flames and thunders of Mt.
