What does General Grant say?

Why is it, that whenever any new public measure is proposed, the inquiry is put forth, "What does General Grant say?" If you talk of impeaching the President, amending the Banking law, passing the Bankrupt bill, or adopting any other matter of importance, no man ventures an opinion without first asking "What does General Grant say?" Gen. Grant has never distinguished himself as a jurist, a statesman, or a financier. He has proved himself a great and valiant soldier, and all honor and praise to him for it; but his success in arms has not made him a lawyer, nor a legislator; and yet when a question arises which would require a judge, a politician, or a Bank President to decide, the question is invariably put, "What does General Grant say?" as if he knew everything, and a little more. We desire to take no laurels from the brow of our victorious hero; but to rebuke those pitiful croakers who would refer all the affairs of the nation to a man who from education and habit cannot be supposed to know as much about them as many others; just as if winning battles made him familiar with, and master of, everything else. On the subject of armies, munitions of war, and the fighting of battles, we would give him prominence, consideration, and act with unlimited confidence; but upon other matters we believe the General would prefer not to be consulted.

IMPEACHMENT.

The demand comes from all parts of the country, north, south, east and west, unite in the cry, "impeach the President." For there can be no confidence in business, nor security for the country, so long as a man so devoid of honor and principle occupies the Presidential chair. Never before in this country has an idea taken so firm a hold on the minds of the intelligent and reliable portion of the people in so short a time.

When impeachment was first proposed in the heat of a political campaign, many of the more moderate Republicans, and their organs, opposed it—many stood against it at the idea of bringing the highest officer in the government on trial before the bar of justice; forgetting that the President, be he whom he may, is just as amenable to the laws as the humblest officer, and that the Constitution itself expressly defines for what crimes and misdemeanors, and how he shall be tried.

Others again plead, let him be guilty of some more overt act—some worse act, if he dare, before arraigning him at the bar of the Senate.

But in a few short months what a change has there been in public opinion. Now the cry is almost unanimous—"Impeach the traitor to Republican institutions; why wait for further crimes?"

What worse is it possible for the acting President to do than he is now pledged to do when the time arrives? He has proved that he will veto every act of Congress, bearing upon the rebellious South, or tending to the supremacy of loyalty. What if Congress is able to pass these bills over his veto; how can they be enforced against the combined powers of treason, and the Presidential Commander in Chief of the army and navy?

Andrew Johnson is committed by his own words to do all in his power to prevent loyal men from getting the mastery in any of the rebellious States, and having proved himself to be as obstinate as he is unprincipled and perfidious, we can well believe that nothing but his impeachment will make re-construction on a true basis possible.

If he regards the present Congress as "a body hanging on the verge of the government," will he not look on the next in the same light? Led on by such advisers as W. H. Seward, and many of the leading rebels of the South, vulnerable to any extent through his vices and passions, traitorial by nature, his course in the future, if not checked, can be as readily foretold as the setting of the sun. It is not possible that any right can be secured to the loyal men of the South, with Andy Johnson in power. The orders of the President bind General Grant and every other officer of the army and navy, and should he resort to force with the Congress of the people, they must accept their orders from him, or resign.

Let the impeachment resolutions now before Congress be pushed at once; let the President be tried "for combining with the rebellious population of the South to resist the legislation of the national Congress, and for other high crimes and misdemeanors." 'Tis useless to enumerate these misdemeanors. From his infamous speech to the mob of rebels and their friends, at the Presidential mansion, February 22d, to the present time, Andrew Johnson's whole course has been such as to degrade the American people in the eyes of the whole civilized world. The loyal people of the whole country demand this course. The blood of thousands, murdered for their loyalty, cries aloud from every Southern State. Let Congress heed the cry, and do its duty regardless of the resistance threatened by the journals of the South, and the Copperhead agencies of the Associated Press, and those other dear friends of our country—the English journals—who threaten in the same manner that they threatened ruin if we should resist the rebel forces marching on Washington, in 1861. This oratory is to be expected; we heard the same threats at every period of the war, when the government meditated any vigorous movement; the game of bluff has been played out. The body of the Northern people stand firm, determined to press forward, the only policy that can lead the nation to honor and safety. Let Congress do the same.
