OUR HARRY.

BY J. WILLIAM VAN NAMEE. He was our first, the blue-eyed darling! He gathered first our hearts' fresh dew; He filled our souls with love o'erflowing, Love strong and sweet, and dear as new. We watched with care each infant gesture, And radiated back each smile; While from the warm depths of our being Rich love come forth in floods the while.

Other sweet darlings came to bless us; Other soft fingers closed round ours; Other red lips yearned to caress us,
And others strewed our paths with flowers. But, O, they were not like our Harry, The tender bud, the firstborn bloom! No music cheered us like his prattling-

And we are near the lonesome grave; Yet still the love of old is in us, We bless our God who Harry gave. To us he is not old-our Harry, He is our dearest ido! still; He holds within our hearts that chamber
