Connecticut.

It was very amusing to see the Democratic papers on last Monday evening, whole leaded columns devoted to exultation and jubilation over the election in Connecticut. Roosters which had lain quietly hid away among the "Pi" for long years, (except when occasionally trotted out to herald the election of some Borough constable or town-crier.) were called into requisition again, their feathers smoothed down, and the almost forgotten phrase "Great Democratic Victory" placed in their willing beaks-for what why, forsooth to let the benighted world know that in the Great State of Connecticut, the Democrats-by dint of almost superhuman effort, backed and sustained by the circumstance of raving for their gubernatorial candidate a man of immense personal popularity, great wealth, and the most extensive business connections of any man in the whole State, and withal, a man against whom nothing could be said except that he was a Copperhead of the milder type,-with all these advantages had actually carried the State ticket by the overwhelming majority of some 500 to 700-hip, hip, hurrah!!!! Even in Connecticut, per contra the Legislature remains Republican, although by a reduced majority, but that majority, though small, is composed of working men, and Governor English can effect nothing, except in a negative way, i. e. by vetoing such acts as are obnoxious to the Democracy, a la Johnson.

Returns from Cincinnati, Dayton, and other towns, show increased Republican majorities, and demonstrate the fact that the people are awake to the issues involved, and are not going to allow the Democ racy, (pardon the misnomer,) again to wield the power they have so long abused. Missonri.

St Louis .- Mr. Thomas, Radical, was elected Mayor by 1500 majority. St. Joseph.-Mr. Davis, Conservative, was cleated Mayor by a small majority. Our readers must not confound the word conservative, as used in Missouri, with the same word as used in Maryland; in Missouri it merely implies a less radical republican.

Colorado Territory.

Denver City and Central City.-In both these places, the whites and blacks voted together without any disturbance, thus making universal suffrage a fixed fact in the history of that embryo State. It is a rather anomolous circumstance, but at the same time a very instructive chapter in our National History, that the allies of the Southern Traitors and Rebels, i. e. the Democracy of the North, are so much more slow to "accept the situation" and aid in the work of reconstruction, than of the problem may be found in the fact that these allies are "out of harm's way," their State governments are firmly established and they can bluster and fume and prescribe political quack nostrums to their Southern patients without fear of the medicine reacting upon themselves: but these same patients are not quite so : patient under the administration of the medicine as formerly, and even presume to dispute not only the medical skill of their former Physician, but even their sincerity. Yes, the South is at last opening their eyes to the real issues involved in the war, and to the patent and long recognized fact that to the conqueror belongs the right to dictate terms to the conquered. That when a great country like ours has carried to a successful issue, a war against her very existence as a nation, she has a right to demand guaran tics against a repetition of the same attempt on the part of the same or any other persons. Individuals may diemust die-so that personal guarantees are only temporary, therefore to make those guaranties permanent, they must be State guaranties, and as State Laws may be passed one year and repealed the next, the only security lies in making those guaranties part and parcel of the constitution of each of the seceded States, and as even these constitutions themselves are susceptible of change, it plainly follows that Congress has the rightnav. that it is the imperative duty-of Congress to fall back upon her inherent right of demanding, as a condition precedent to the admission of any State into the Union, the adoption by said State of a Constitution, Republican in form and principle, and also her rights to enforce obedience to said constitution on the part of the citizens of said State. These facts are recognized by the Southern leaders, and they are address. ing meetings throughout the South, urging upon the people the necessity of adapting themselves to the new order of things, and "helping to build up the nation which they vainly endeavored to destroy," (this sentence is quoted literally from an address to a meeting composed of white and black citizens, delivered by an ex-General of the Confederate army.) Thus the real statesmen of the South, see that they, by the suicidal war which they suffered themselves to be inveigled into by the false promises of their Northern Allies, have placed their future status completely in the hands of their conquerors, and that their true interest, both material and political, lies in "making a virtue of necessity" and accepting such terms as the aforesaid conquerors may, in the plenitude of their power, and the magnanimity of their hearts, see fit to of fer. They suffered themselves to be deceived by these same trencherous allies twice, (not heeding the old adage, "if a man deceive me once, shame on him, if in rushing into war on the promise of the aid which these allies were afraid to give. and secondly, by refusing, on their assurance of better terms, to accept the Constitutional Amendment-they now find that the conquerors, to make themselves safe, demand still harder terms, which these same allies rail out against as Litterly as ever; but they have deceived the South for the last time, as their eyes are opened once for all, and they have determined to take their case into their own hands, dismiss their false advisers, and proceed to the work of reconstruction in the way laid down by the Representatives of the people.

Oh, it is a delectable treat to read the editorials of some of the Southern Journals. Why a Radical Editor in the North need not rack his brains for the purpose of proving how falsely the Democracy of the North played the South, before, during, and since the war-he will find it all laid down in the aforesaid editorials, and the peculiarly beautiful feature of the case, is that those sheets which were the most radically and violently secesh at that time, are now the most bitter in their denunciation of their false allies in the North. So we would say to all the Copperhead fraterity, both editors and readers. "Gentlemen, when you have extract-"ed all the little comfort that you can "out of the overwhelming majority of 500 "in Connecticut, and wasted all the wood-"cuts and double leaded leaders that you "intend to insert in the jubilation, then "for appearance sake 'assume a virtue, if "you have it not,' and, greviously accepting the inevitable, get out of the way of 'the wheels of progress, which you are 'vainly struggling to obstruct, and aid your Southern friends in the good work which they appear to have entered upon in good faith, viz: the work of re-vital-'izing the South; but let us warn you 'against entering upon the good work in

The School Law.

We are pleased to note that the Legislature has referred back to the State Superintendent, the proposed amendments to the School Law, with a recommendation that he re-model it to suit the views of members, as expressed during the frequent discussions that were had upon it. We hope that Mr. Wickersham will mature his bill, (if any change is to be made in the Law at all,) in time to allow of its being published generally throughout the State in advance of the meeting of the Legislature, so that its provisions can be discussed, and our representatives can know before they are called upon to act on it, what the wishes and opinions of their constituents are upon the subject.

We quote the following from poor Caudle's eighteenth "Lecture." in which he is berated for "Bowing to a pretty woman:"

"If I'm not to leave the house without being insulted, Mr. Caudle, I had better stay in the house all my life.
"What! Don't tell me so let you have one night's rest! I wonder at your impudence! It's mighty fine, I never can go out with you, and—gooodness knows!—it's seldom enough, without having my feelings form to peices by neople of all sorts. A set torn to peices by people of all sorts. A set of bold minxes! What am I raving about? Oh, you know very well—very well, indeed, Mr. Caudle. A pretty person she must be to nod to a man walking with his own wife! Don't tell me it's Miss Prettyman—what's Miss Prettyman to me? Oh! you've met her once or twice at her brother's house? Yes, I dare say you have—no doubt of it. I always thought there was something very tempting about that house—and now I know it all. Now, it's no use, Mr. Caudle, your beginning to taik aloud, and twist and toss your arms about as if you were as innocent as a born babe—I'm not to be deceived by such tricks now. No; there was a time when I was a fool and believed everything; but—I thank my stars!—I'ye got over that.

"A bold minx! You suppose I didn't see her laugh, too, when she nodded to you! Oh. yes. I know what she thought me; a poor, miserable creature, of course. I could see that. No—don't say that, Caudle. I don't always see more than anybody else agreeable it might be to you; I must have the use of my senses. I'm sure if a woman wants attention and respect from a man, she'd better be anything but his wife. I've always thought so, and to-day's decided it.

"No; I am not ashamed to talk so—certainly not. A good, amiable young creature, indeed! Yes, I dare say, very amiatorn to peices by people of all sorts. A se or bold minxes! What am I raving about

"No; I am not ashamed to talk so—certainly not. A good, amiable young creature, indeed! Yes, I dare say, very amiable, no doubt. Of course you think her so. You suppose I didn't see what sort of a bonnet she had on? Oh, a very good creature! And you think I didn't see the smudges of court plaster about her face? You didn't see 'em? Very likely; but I did. Very amiable, to be sure! What do you say? I made her blush at my ill-manner? I should like to have seen her blush! 'Twould have been rather difficult Mr. Caudle, for a blush to come through all that paint. No—I'm not a sensorious woman, Mr. Caudle; quite the reverse. No; and you may threaten to get up, if you woman, Mr. Caudle; quite the reverse. No; and you may threaten to get up, if you like—I know what color is, and I say it was paint. What do you say? I may say my worst? Ha! don't tempt any woman in that way—don't Caudle; for I wouldn't answer for what I said.

"Miss Prettyman, indeed, aud—oh, yes! now I see! Now the whole light breaks in upon me! Now, I know why you wished me to ask her with Mr. and Mrs. Prettyman to tea! And I like a noor blind fool.

nie to ask her with Mr, and Mrs. Prettyman to tea! And I, like a poor blind fool, was nearly doing it. But now, as I say, my eyes are open. And you'd brought her under my own roof—now it's no use your bouncing about in that fashion—you'd had brought her into the very house, where—"""Here," says Caudle, 'I could endure it no longer. So I jumped out of bed, and went and slept somehow with the child-ren."

The Flood subsiding—Distress—A new Rail Road—The Big Bridge, and a Bigger one in Robeling's Brain—The Light Hour Law in Illinois—St. Patrick's Day in the Queen City—Drowning the Shamrock—Public Baths—Samuel Washington—Miscegin-ation. CINCINNATI, March 25th, 1867. EDITOR OF SPY .- The flood in the Ohio iver, and its many tributaries subsided to ligh water mark. The bottom farms, along he river banks have been much damaged: and the "washings" have in some instances removed acres from a single farm. Or chards have in this way been destroyed; and farm houses, which before the flood stood several hundred yards from the river bank, are now found in dangerous proximity to the still wild and turbid stream. The Kentucky, Tennessee, Camberland, and ower Mississippi rivers, have still been nore destructive to man's wealth. Thousands of people have lost all their earthly ossessions, by the sudden and unprecolented rise of their waters. Many of these are left in a dying condition, for the common ecessaries to sustain life.

The businesses of this city have long felt he necessity of increasing the facilities for trade and travel, between Cincinnati and Southern Kentucky, Tennessee, and the neart of the late Confederacy. Louisville, has thus established prosperity in business which should have been secured to Cincinnati, by extending a system of railroads to the centre points of southern trade. Seeing and feeling this unpleasant fact, a road has been located by careful survey, and put under contract to be completed in eighteen months; the initial point being Covington, (with which we are connected by the large its terminus, twenty-five miles from Louis ville on the Louisville and Frankfort road. present, by rail, is a long and tedious ride, ncluding a change of cars, is necessary You are compelled to travel half the dis ince, included in the four boundary lines of a square, of which Cincinnati, Lexington

The new road will cut the square diagonally. There will be a great deal of heavy grading on this road, as it includes five and many deep cuts. Four of these tunnels are between La Grange and Verona, and the fifth is between Verona and Covington. When brain, money, and muscle are engaged, however, power is ominpotent.

The birth of this enterprise, may be attributed to the construction of our "big bridge," as without the union of Cincinnati and Covington, by this bond of wedlock. no such healthy offspring could have been born. Speaking of the bridge, let me tell you quietly, it is a great thing, and is so esteemed by the people of the Queen city. It is without a rival in the world, so far as the length of the span is in question; and, as for durability, I think it will stand, when that "broken arch of London bridge" upon which McCaully places "the weary traveler from Nova Zembla, to sketch the ruin of St. Paul," shall have crumbled into indistinguishable ruin. But, "why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" This claimed pre-eminence will soon be eclipsed by the architect, who has another bridge in his brain, which he says. as he sees it, take it all in all, will be the grandest structure in the world. Mr. Robeling has, or is about to undertake to build the greatest of bridges, between New York and Brooklyn, at Fulton Ferry. It will be twice as long, and twice as wide, as our bridge over the Ohio, and will be the erowning achievement of his life.

The State of Illinois has recently legalized 'eight hours' as the tenure of a day's work. The workingmen of this city are holding neetings which are very largely attended, expressing themselves in favor of a similar law in Ohio. It meets with a hearty opposition from the " Commercial," who takes ground that labor needs no such law, and that capital will buy labor, only when it is profitable. The controversy seems to me, to be narrowed down to this question: "Shall labor, or capital, be supreme to govern?" Now capital is the product of thor, and its individual accumulation only shows a loss of balance in the distributio of just rewards. Cotton is not King. And he negro is a man! If all the capitalists in the Nation, were, by one fell swoop, swept rom existence, God and Nature would respond to the questions of labor, and Man would live, better perhaps, though in a astoral condition, than he does to-day. But let the arm of labor be paralized universally, and then tell me, who can give the extent of the calamity to the world.

As labor is now regulated by capital, very ittle time is ufforded the toiling man, either to improve his own condition, or those depending on him for a support. His mind, aside from so much of it asis engaged in his business, receives but little culture. And when a man is worn to the quick, by the frictions of excessive labor, he loses that fine sensibility for the amenities of social life, which so much charm and endear the home circle to his heart.

The Irish and German Catholies of this city celebrated St. Patrick's day, (Sonday,) by marching in one of the largest processions of the kind over seen here. A large number of fine silk banners were distributed throughout the procession, and all the music that could be engaged in the city, and from adjacent towns, was likewise scattered along the line of marchers. Banners and badges all wore the devices of the church, acting as patrons of this procession; but the music was an alla podrida from "Old Dan Tucker," to "St. Patrick's day in the Morning." In the procession, there was commendable order, but after that fell to pieces, and the restraints of command were removed, there was a good deal of drinking and fighting, as was shown by the police reports next morning. As the fighting was among him since, themselves, however, it may be considered a part of the celebration, and only subject to a general criticism. "Drowning the Shamrock" was the cause of the fighting, and everybody knows or ought to know, that that is the celebration. The legend connected with this observance, is somewhat as follows: When a true son of the sod meets a fellow-countryman on "St. Patrick's day in the morning," each shouts' out "my Patrick's pat," but the one who gets out the greeting first, has the pleasure of drinking, in fact, of "drowning his Shamrock," at the expense of the other, and then, not to be selfish, he treats in turn; and the two friends, trying thus to overtake each other, keep up "drowning the Shamrock" from "St. Patrick's day in the morning," till "St. Patrick's day in the

Everybody has heard the story of the Arkansas planter, who died soon after he took to putting "greens" into his whiskey. The chroniclers make no such record of Irishmen, who annually drown their Shamrock : for the custom alluded to, is to put sprig of Shamrock in the bottom of a tumbler, fill it with "potheen" and drink it off the first thing, on St. Patrick's day in the morning. But seriously, this public observance of the 17th of March, has done much to degrade Irishmen, and keep Ireland en slaved by perpetuating customs, which right-minded men think, would be " more honored in the breach, than in the obser vance." namely, the habit of stupefying the brain with whiskey, to prepare them for the pious remembrance of a man, whose name has become the historic patronym of Irish religion. Can a more destructive and deplorable debauchery be instituted among men, than that which destroys the mind and morals of a naturally great people upon this their annual Saturnalia?

Our city Councils have before them a bill, which contemplates the construction of floating bath-houses, for the use of the neople. It is to be hoped that an ordinance will be passed, and that such liberal provisions will be made for its maintainance that such portions of the population who have no home conveniences for bathing, may be amply provided for in this way. Cleanliness may not be Godliness, but i goes hand in hand with civilization, and it is questionable whether any high degree of morality or refined sentiment can obtain among a people who neglect the purity of their person, and who are strangers to the exhiberating effects of friction along th spinal column. A few days ago an octagenarian was buried in this necropolis of our sister city of Newport, named Samuel Washington, His grand-father, Samuel Washington, was brother to General George Washington, our first President. The deceased had been living with his son-in-law, Dr. McKinzie, in Delhi, in this county, for many years, and at the time of his death, was the nearest remaining relative of the "Father of our Country. Recently a rather queer case of miscegination occurred at the table of a first-class hotel, in a neighboring town. Two Southern ladies, blooded to be sure, sat opposite to each other at dinner. No. 1 recognized No. 2 as "a person of color" mildly put, and requested the proprietor of the hotel to invite her to leave. No. 2, however, told her story, and it turned out that the indignant "White lady" was a full half-sister to the "pale olive tinted beauty." Both ladies are respectably married, and fill their place in society, as well as could be wished. They were born on the same plantation; had the same father, but one had a white mother and the other hadn't. And thus the difference is, you see. Twixt tweedle dum, and tweedle dee.

Mr. Grace—Dear Sir:—Having been afficied grievously for several weeks with a severe absecss upon my side, I used several remedies for its eradication without receiving any relief, until I applied your salve, which effected a speedy and permanent cure.
I therefore feel happy to certify my confidence in its virtues.

Page's Climax Salve, for burns, scalds, scrofule salt rheum, sores, broken breasts, frost bites, chib-lains, stings, bruises, cuts, swellings, &c., whether ipon man or beast, is the most wonderful article ever produced. Other good articles alleviate; this cures. It allays inflammation, cubdues paid, and reals without a scar. It is worth its weight in gold o any family, and should always be on hand. It is arranted to do what it says every time.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS & PHOENIX BITTERS.

Were first used in private practice in 1825. They were introduced to the public in 1835, since which time their reputation has extended, until they have a sale in excess of all other cathartic and purifying nedicines. There is hardly a family among civilzed nations who have not personal evidence of their beneficial effects. Their great success is owing to their uniform reliability in cases of consupation bilious and stomachic diseases, whether of long or short duration. They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and harmless to the gentlest infant one ingredient opens the pores of the skin; another s diuretic; and stimulates proper action of the kidneys; a third is emollient, loosening phlegm and humor from the lungs; other properties are warming and cathartic, and cleanse the stomach and bowels com unhealthy secretions. Their combined effect is, to regulate the impaired functions of the system and to produce health. It is not asserted Moffat's Pills are a cure-all—that they will cure all complaints -but under ordinary cicumstances they may be relied upon to cure nervous and sick headache. tiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, liver and billous complaints, colds, scurvy, general weakness dc. And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair. REPARATOR CAPILLI.

REPARATOR CAPILLI.

For restoring hair upon bald heads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and foreing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practicioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of the hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witnesse. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It certainly is difficult, as ninetenths of the different Preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Cappilli; it will cost you nothing unless it fully comes up to our representations. If your Druggist does not keep it, send us one dollar and we will forward it, postpaid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned to you on application, providing entire satisfaction is not given.
