FOR COUNTY TREASURER -- We an nounce elsewhere the name of Wm. Roberts, Esq., of West Hempfield Township, as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer. We think no better man could be named for that office, as he is a gentleman of veracity, strictly honest, and fair in all his dealings. He is just the kind of men we want to fill places of trust, and we hope he will be successful.

OLIVER OPTIC .- Of all the many peri odicals for children, of which there are a large number now published, Oliver Optic's Magazine is perhaps the best. It contains a large amount of reading adapted to the youthful mind, embelished with time engravings-and the printing is executed in the best style of the art. It is published weekly at $2.50 a year. Address Lee & Shepard, Boston, Massachusetts.

ELEGANT FLOUR .-- We have received some flour made from new wheat, and upon trial pronounce it the best article we have used for many a day. The bread is perfectly white, light and spongy-why chalk mark would leave a colored streak on it. It was made at Pequa Mills, Laneaster county, and if this is the kind of flour they make there, no wonder their good wives " always look handsome and good natured.

RESIGNATION .- We understand that the Rev. John Cromlish, who has had charge of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of this place during the past six years, has resigned his charge here to accept a call which he has received from New York City. The congregation of St. Paul's Church, as well as the community, will part with Mr. Cromlish with much regret. He will carry with him the best wishes of the citizens of Columbia. He takes charge of his new field.

about September next. RESIGNED .- Mr. John A. Fry, of this place who for a number of years has successfully filled the position of Express Messenger, on the Lancaster Accommodation train on the Pennsylvania railroad, resigned his position a few days since, for the purpose, we understand, of accepting a situation in a mercantile firm in Philadelphia. George Crane, son of Mr. Robert Crane, of this place, has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Fry's resignation.

ACCIDENT. Yesterday morning just as the 8.30 train east was leaving the depot a young lady whose name has not as yet been ascertained, in crossing from one car to another, missed her hold and dropped her traveling bag which contained a lot of fine cambric handkerchiefs, kid gloves, hosiery, &c., which she had just purchased at I. O. Bruner's store. The wheels, made a sad wreck of them, when she immediately stopped the train and "proceeded" to the same store to-replace the damaged articles, as she was well aware of the fact that Bruner always keeps a full line of those goods and

U. S. PATENT OFFICE AGENCY .- We wish to call attention to the advertisement with the above caption in to-day's paper. The advertiser has been engaged in soliciting Patents for a number of years with one of the best Agencies in the U.S., and thoroughly understands all the mysteries and intricacies of the Patent Office; and is, in addition, an accomplished and skillful draughtsman. Inventors will consult their own interests by putting their cases into his hands and having them thoroughly attended to at moderate charges. Mr. Frank S. Taft. of New York, is the Agent.

FARMERS' HOME JOURNAL .- This is the name of a new, large sized eight page agricultural paper, just started at Lexingon, Ky. It is devoted to the interests of the husbandman, mechanic, art, education, science and refined literature. It is gotten up in handsome style printed on clear hold type, and filled with just the kind of matter that is wanted in all family circles. We speak for it a generous support, as such a paper must take with the masses. It is published at $3 per annum. Our friend J. A. Reynolds, Esq., a terse and spicy writer, is connected with the editorial department of the paper; which fact alone is enough to give the Journal influence and popularity. Here's our po, brethren.

THE DOWNFALL OF THE "WATER-FALL."-Things have changed. The cannon ball appendage hitherto worn by the ladies and termed a "waterfall," has seen its best days. It is now on the rapid decline, after, figuring in different positions, from away down the back done up in a neat sack, up to the top of the cranium, resembling a very large wart. It has shaped it-self into a hundred different attitudes, from eighty degrees downward to eighty degrees upward. But it is going and joy go with it. It was never very attractive, and its demise' will be bailed with delight by every lid-miler of the beautiful. The ladies have stuck to it until they could no longer find a new sticking place for it on their heads, and in the wilderness of their despair they have abandoned it for the more beautiful roll. The new style resembles that of some ten years ago, and the hair dealers are shaking in their boots over its advent. Ordinary store hair will not answer for the new style, and the ladies blessed with a good supply of the natural air are in ecstacies over the fact that they now can be more from the wearers of the false.

Home News On the subject of furishing local items for the press, the editor of a New England paper makes the followingremarks:

"Almost every member of a community where a newspaper has been established, can do much to make the local department what it should be by contributions of fresh items which may be gathered in each locality, and communicated with little trouble, and they who neglect this duty so useful to editors and so desirable to the public, is responsible in part at least for a meare supsponsible, in part at least, for a meagre sup-ply of domestic news in their journal. We trust that our friends throughout the county will heed these remarks, and FLATTERY .- An incident occurred in this town on Monday evening last, and will serve to show the dangers of flattery. A well known young gentleman who resides not far from our office, called on very fine young lady, who was engaged at the time in making soap, but when she saw the gentleman coming, left to make her toilet. In the meantime the young lady was inquired after. Her mother excused her and told what she had been doing. In a few minutes the young lady came into the room, nicely dressed and ready to entertain her company. The gentleman looked at her and wishing to compliment her on her beauty, said: "Soap! why you look as if you

THE CHOLERA is raging fearfully in different parts of the country and it bepooves our town authorities to look well to the cleanliness of our borough, to see that our streets, lanes, alleys and slaughter ouses are kept in a perfectly clean condition. Let every family have their "lamps trimmed and burning," look well to their cellars, sinks, drains and out-houses; have them whitewashed and apply disinfectants and you will be proof against the scourge, which, in its most fatal form, is steadily and resistantly moving eastward. It began its march on the far-western boundaries of Kansas and has already gained the banks of the Mississippi. At Memphis, its furthest eastern point, it is known to be reging with virulence. The daily papers there have ceased to mention its ravages, but it s rumored that for the last week the deaths nave numbered as high as fifty a day.

THE NATIONAL GAME. On Monday next, the first nine of the Columbia Base Ball Club, (at least as many of it as are lucky enough to receive permission from their employers,) will visit Middletown, for the purpose of playing a match game of ball with the Oudins of that place. The O's, we are told, know their biz, and if the Columhis is not successful in mustering her full nine, we may look for nothing but a defeat. Scrub nines won't win-we've been there. Therefore we hope all the players may be able to participate.

The Mutuals, of this place, have been challenged by the Tyr (ants) oleans, of Harrisburg, to play a match. It is very doubtful whether they will accept it. However, ve know of no two clubs better suited—in orincipal-to play together. The Mutuals, after challenging the second nine of the Columbia, now refuse to play.

DWELLINGS SHOULD HAVE A SOUTH-ERLY ASPECT .- No dwellings are so pleasant, because so healthful, as those which have a southerly aspect. People who live in houses looking chiefly to the north and east, suffer seriously, if not sensibly, from the imperfect running of the air; the unkindliness of the aspect imparts itself to the occupants; that the heart should look southward, our windows should do so. No one can say how much sickness and debility, how much ill temper and moroseness are not owing to self-imprisonment in dark streets and dull counting houses, and back parlors, into which a sunbeam never enters. "Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun." School rooms, most of all, should be on the sunny side of the house; no sensible school-muster ever places them anywhere

PERSONAL .- We extract the following rom the Philadelphia Railway Train, in reference to Col. Thomas A. Scott. Vice President of the Pennsylvania Central Ruilroad. Mr. S. was formerly a resident of Columbia, where he has many friends, and s highly popular:

is highly popular:

He is now in the prime of life, though his physical energies appear somewhat exhausted by the fremendous exertions of his mind. Hud he other than an iron frame, long ero this his biographer would have written in memoriam instead of in vita, for had Mr. Scott had not possessed a constitution fur superior to most men, his labors years since would have broken him down. Among all men where Mr. Scott is known, the general opinion is, that few persons think more rapidly or execute with greater force and directness of purpose than he, and the opinion of Captain Berthoud of Mr. S. was, that he was lightning." Berthoud remarked that he had been interrogated by many men as to the thoud of Mr. S. was, that he was "lightning." Berthoud remarked that he had been interrogated by many men as to the best route for the Pacific road across the Rocky Mountains, but Scott was the only man who had not asked him nonsensical questions. Rapidity is the Jeading characteristic of Mr. S.'s mental operations; and it had been asserted by some of his friends, that he finds a conclusion and afterwards gives his premises; be this as it may, few men have blundered less than he, whether they have arrived at their conclusions by intuition or a concatenation of reasoning.
We have often thought that the facial appearance of Scott resembles that of Whititeld, the distinguished revivalist, and we think that had Whitfield been called to the Pennsylvania Railroad when the stages ran to the Mountain house, and continued to think and act as Mr. S. has for the last twelve years, the saintly look of Whitfield would have been changed to the "fire and action" expression of one of our most distinguished railroad men. It is only, to a few that Mr. S. has given evidence that he possesses those qualities that make men loved by their fellow-men. All concede him 'remarkable intellect and untiring energy, but many assert that he is wanting in those human sympathies which endear man to man. But this idea of the character of Mr. Scott originates from the fact that few men know him intimately, and that he man to man. But this idea of the character of Mr. Scott originates from the fact that few men know him intimately, and that he does not carry his heart in his coat sleeve. We have known him in his kindness—we have known him in his sympathies, and never have we known a man whose heart could be so easily reached by genuine distress or friendship. Mr. Scott's labors are not yet completed, and his friends predict for him a career commensurate with, if not superior to, his past achievements, as one of the leaders in Railroad progress.

THE OLD STATE RAILROAD FROM PHILADELPHIA TO COLUMBIA. - Since the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, by purchase, came into possession of the Old Main' Line of Public Works, the railroad between this city and the Susquehanna river at Columbia, where the canal connects with it, has been constantly improved, till now it is in very much better condition than ever before. The road is double track, heavy rail, and well ballasted. The bridges, on one, have been renewed, and when the new structure now in process of erection over the West Brandywine at Coatesville shall have been completed, the new series will cover all the intersecting streams between the Schuylkill and the Susquehanna To those who passed over the railroad to Columbia twenty years ago, a ride over the ame road now, is suggestive of many and marked contrasts. And when the curvature between Haverford and Valley Creek shall have been reduced, according to plan and policy agreed on, the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania Railroad will have been thoroughly improved and modernized. to undergo constant increase and to attain enormous totals; already, since the Connecting Railroad was opened, it is attract-ing much business which heretofore sought its destination over another route. And when it is considered that the Philadelphia division is the east end of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's system, and that whilst the Pennsylvania Railroad technically terminates at Philadelphia, it has a powerful ally which gives it a joint mileage to New York, as against all possible combinations via Allentown, it is easy to realize, proximately, the importance of the Old State road as a link in the transportation chain which unites Pittsburg, Philadelphia and New York, and which includes the entire mileage of two powerful corporations .-Philadelphia Mining Register.

On the night in question, Mr. B. was called away on business to a store in the neighborhood, and being detained somewhat and not returning at the hour expected, his family concluded not to wait for him and accordingly retired. About ten o'clock Mrs. B. heard a noise down stains, and upon getting up and looking for the cause of it, discovered a man attempting to force his way into the house. The scoundred had an axe in his hands, with which he was assailing one of the windows, and had already made an opening almost large enough to effect an entrance. Mrs. B; picked up a loaded gun which fortunately chanced to be in the room let drive at the rascal, when he dropped the axe and songht escape in lasty fight.

· [For the "Spy.?']

Mr. Ramdo:—A week or two ago an article appeared in the Sry, headed "Thoughts for the People"—the title of which, and the sign-manual appended, inferred that your readers would be entertained with a series of articles on social and political science; and when compiled, would supercede, and with our enquiring youth, occupy and take the same place in imparting and diffusing general and diversitied knowledge, that the popular works of "Chambers' Information for the People," had so well done for the past twenty years. The author, "More Anon," in his first subject, somewhat compendiously treats of the science of street making, bridges, culverts, the duties of Borough authorities, etc., etc. This subject your readers would have been pleased with had he given it more claboration, and continued the subject in the second article of his series. Your readers surely have been proved discovered in a feet of the Second tinued the subject in the second article of his series. Your readers surely have been much disappointed in reading the second article or essay, to find the author abruptly leaving the subject of streets, bridges, &c., &c., and his "Thoughts for the People" become a general disquisition on spinsters and colonels, setting squadrons in the field, the division of battles, &c., &c. Judging from the two articles now published, your readers will scarcely expect that "More Anon's" series, when compiled, will equal in merit that of Chambers': neither will they receive the general approval from the public, which the essays on polifical economy, of our distinguished countryman, Henry C. Carey, Esq., is now receiving from all nations interested in political science.

[For the SPY.] Borough Extensions.

Mn. Editor:—I perceive by the last few numbers of your valuable and interesting numbers of your valuable and interesting paper—I believe that is the approved modern style of begining an article—that there are differences of opinion as to the propriety of opening additional streets in the borough of Columbia; and also, that your contributors don't feel willing to rest their respective cases squarely upon their merits, but find it necessary to descend to rather uncourteous language to one another on the subject. Now, this should not be. A subject of public interest should be discussed calmly and dispassionately, without the appearance of any personal feeling in the matter, if the person is desirous of making converts to his way of thinking.

In the particular case in point viz:—the opening of additional streets, or the extension of already-existing ones, for the purpose of increasing the area of the town, and providing additional facilities for building, and by that means inducing additional population, and, as a consequence, additional prosperity: I think there should be but one opinion, and that one concurring in the wisdom that suggested the proposed extension; for it has been conceded on all hands that the limited area in the market as building lots, acted as a serious draw-back upon the improvement of the borough.

But there is often times "a wheel within a wheel," and that timer wheel is just all there is the times the timer wheel is labeled within the times wheel is purposed to the particular these the temperatures.

visible, but in this case the inner whee plainly visible through the transparent cov ering afforded by the outer one, and the op ering ufforded by the outer one, and the opposition of your correspondent is not to the extension of the town, (if I understand the case,) but to his being called upon to pay for it. Now, the question nrises, isheright, or is he wrong in that opposition? I will give you my opinion—unasked—so I will charge-you nothing for it. It is this: The person or persons benefited by any public improvement, should pay for that improvement out of the appreciation of their property caused thereby. This is a plain principle, recognized and acted upon everywhere else. In Philadelphia and everywhere else, except Octumbia, when a new street is opened, graded, curbed, or paved, or in any other way improved, so as to enhance the value of the property fronting upon, and contigu ed, graded, curbed, or paved, or in any other way improved, so as to enhance the value of the property fronting upon, and contiguous to the said street, the cost thereof is assessed upon the owners of the property, thus appreciated in value, just in proportion to that appreciated in value, just in the particular and it that the ease will prove itself by the reduction ad absurdum. Suppose a case.—A owns a block of building lots in the northern part of the borough, worth $500 each, and readily saleable at that price, on account of the limited number of lots in the market; the borough Conneil determine to open or extend a street or streets, southward or eastward, by which farm land (worth $300 per acre.) is brought into competition with A's block, as building lots, and A's property thereby depreciated ten, fifteen, or twenty per cent. (for we all know that in this matter as in all others, the rule of supply and demand determines prices.) should A be taxed to depreciate the value of his own property, or should the cost of the street opening be paid by the owners of the farm land? I think this fuestion, properly considered, can receive but one answer, viz: the answer which it has already had in the practice of all other corporations; and I further think, that when it once practically receives that answer from our Borough Council, they will find the opposition to the indefinite extension of the town, to vanish like mist before the morning sun.

The subject of the above announcement, truly says the Express, was warmly endeaved to a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who are called upon to mourn her early departure from their midst, to take up her abode in "another and a better world." Rarely gifted with grazes of mind and person, she won the hearts of all with whom she came in contact. Her aniability of disposition, her generosity of heart, and her sound, practical common sense of the duties of life, made her an especial favorite with both young and old; and her death has caused a void in the circle in which she moved that cannot easily be filled. Williams in them as operator. In March, 1866, I took 1961, Williams as a partner, and continued him as such up to April 5th, 1867. Williams went by the name of "Lesber Williams," and was called by that name by nearly all of his acquaintances. As such my name has been imposed upon. Sinceour dissolution, I understand doing all he can to injure my room. I would respectfully refer to Messrs, Batton & Kennedy, of the Carlisle Volenter, and Mr. A. K. I hope the public will not believe his assertions of my character, until they have referred to the above named gentlemen in Carlisle.

The Rooms are now open and in charge of H. C. Lesber, who will be happy to receive all of the old qustomers, as well as new ones.

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY: THEIR FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS AS AN

The rapid progress of the Union Pacific Railroad, now building west from Omaha, Nebraska, and forming, with its western connections, an unbroken line across the continent, attracts attention to the wiles of the First Mortgage Bonds which the Company now offer to the public. The first question asked by prudentinvestors is, "Are these bonds secure?" Next, "Are they a profitable investment?" To reply in brief:

1st. The early completion of the whole great line to the Pacific is ascertain asany future business event can be. The Government grant of over twenty million acres of land and fifty million dollars in its own bonds practically guarantees is. One fourth of the work is already done, and the track continues to be laid at the rate of two nilles a day.

2d. The Union relific Railroad bonds are issued upon wint promises to be one of the most profitable is function and ithe country. For many days it is must be the only line connecting the them to and Practic; and being without completion, it can maintain remanentive rates. the Atlantic and Pricine; and being Without competition, it can maintain remunerative rates, 3d, 576 miles of this road are finished, and fully equipped with depots, locomotives, cars, &c., and two trains are dully running each way. The maintains for the remy sing 1d, in lites to the eastern base of the recent from tains are out-hand, and it is under contraction be done in September.

#th. The net enthings of the sections already insighed are secretilizes water than the gold in inished are sexcallines greater than the gold in-terest upon the First Morigage Bonds upon such sections, and I not another mile of the road were built, the part already completed would not only my interest and expenses, but be profitable to ompany. . The Union Pacific Railroad bonds can b the Company.

3th. The Union Pacitic Railroad bonds can be issued only as the road progresses, and therefore can never be in the market unless they represent a boas file property.

6th. Their amount is serietly limited by law to a sum equal to what is scrietly limited by law to a sum equal to what is scrietly limited by law to a sum equal to what is scrietly limited by the U.S. Government, and for which it takes a second lien as list security.

7th lies west of the main is only $16,000 per mile.

7th. The fact that the U.S. Government considers a second lien upon the road a good investment, and that some of the shrewdest railroad in the country have already paid in five million dollars upon the stock (which is to them at third lien), may well inspire confidence in a first lien.

8th. Although it is not claimed that there can be any better securities than Governments, there are parties who consider a first mortgage upon such a property as this the very best security in the world, and who sell their Governments to reinvest in these bonds—thus securing a greater interest.

8th. As the Union Pacific Railroad bonds are interest.

3th. As the Union Pacific Railroad bonds are offered for the present at 30 cents on the dollar and accrued interest, they are the cheapest security in the market, being 15 per cent. less than U.S. Stocks.

10th. At the current rate of premium on gold they pay

Over Nine per Cent. Interest.
