[Written for the "SPY."] Hope and Faith.

BY THE LATE L. AUGUSTUS JONES. Hope is the anchor of life; It cheers us in every care;
It supports us in turmoil and strife, And sustains us in hours of despair; It points to a future more bright, Tis a beacon that shines from afar, And we hall it with fondest delight.

As the mariner hails the north star. In youth 'tis our guide through the world, When trials and sorrows overwhelm Our life barque, whose sails are unfurled, Then hope smiling stands at the helm; In manhood it still lures us on, Giving courage and strength to the heart; When our joys and our pleasures are gone, Its cheering beams never depart.

Faith is the guide to the soul! It points with its finger above, When affliction's waves over us roll. To the mansions of rest and of love. Far brighter than hope is its beam.
When the soul from its carth tics is riven, It guides us o'er Death's chilling stream And anchors us safely in Heaven.

A Kiss. Let me kiss you for your mother-For your sister—cousin—aunt— Or for somebody or other Whom I long to kiss and can't. I could wish my love beside me

As I've you beside me now: But the pleasure is denied me, So I'll kiss you anyhow. I adore the lady dearly (I assure you that I do,) Can you understand me clearly That my kiss is not for you?

In your keeping I may leave it, As another's—not your own; So I beg you'll not receive it As a gift, but as a loan. You have silken, yellow tresses, While my love's are black as night; And your eyes—e'en Love confesses— Are a dozen times as bright,

But I covet from another What another cannot grant; So I'll kiss you for your mother— Or your sister-cousin-aunt!

Miscellaneous Beading.

He had black eyes with long lashes red cheeks, and hair almost black and almost curly. I see it all, as plain as if it were written in a book. My little boy is lost and my big boy will soon be. Oh! I wish he were a little tired boy in a long white night gown, lying in his crib, with me sitting by, holding his hand in mine, pushing the curls back from his forehead, watching his cyclids droop, and listening to his deep breathing.

If I only had my little boy again, how patient I would be! How much I would bear, and how little I would fret and scold ! I can never have him back again; but there are still many mothers who haven't

A bushel of Indian corn contains more nutriment than a bushel of wheat; but corn meal should not be ground fine or it will not keep sweet. There is no grain that can be put to so many good uses and served up in so many different ways, as corn and corn meal. First we have the green corn, roasting car and soup in the early, and the dried corn soup and hominy the balance of the year. These dishes every good houseite mixture. It the is cheapest and most wholesome food that man can live on, and should be on the table of both rich and

With a sledge-hammer, break the bones into pieces of one, two or three inches; take a hogshead tub, put in two or three inches of hard wood ashes, the same depth of bones, then ashes and bones until full; pound or press solid as convenient; till with water or urine, all that it will absorb. If done in the spring or summer, by the following spring it will shovel out lecomposed, the bones being as soft as chalk. Then add all your hen manure, shovel and rake it over once a week for three or four weeks before planting time; by that time it will be finely powdered. Put about equal to a handful of compost into a hill, for corn, potatoes, squashes, melons, &c., when it will be found to forward the crops to a wonderful degree.

FATTENING ANIMALS of all kinds lay on flesh very rapidly as the weather grows cooler. Keep beeves and sheep in pasture as long as the feed is good, but yard them at night, and feed twice a day with grain, if they are to be marketed soon; otherwise simply feed so as to be sure they are constantly gaining. Pigs should have cooked food, and plenty of it. Push forward their fattening as rapidly as possible, for at no season will they gain faster. Keep them clean, and give them Rail Road warm, sheltered nests. Poultry also gain very rapidly, and it is best to fatten them on scalded meal, with corn, wheat screenings, and other food in addition, at daylight in the morning and late in the after-

> COAL OIL FOR RHEUMATISM .- I wish to inquire if your readers are aware what a valuable remedy the common coal oil is in rheumatic cases? I have been using considerable of it lately, and have found almost immediate relief from it. It is surprising how supple and free from pain it will render some of our old stiff backs. suffering from all sorts of "cricks," and the weight of divers scores of years. So very valuable a remedy deserves to be more generally known, as its cheapness and abundance renders it generally accessable. Care should be exercised in using at night before lamp or fire light, as it sometimes explodes.—Co. Gent.

Hops .- A gentlemen who writes from owa that he raised three tons of hops last year from four acres of ground, and sold them at fifty-one and a half cents per pound, making some $3,000, and sells the roots for $20 per acre. And we do not see why they cannot be cultivated just as successfully in other parts of the country, especially in the fine truck lands of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and in some parts of Pennsylvania. The revenue of a single form alone, at the above rates of production and sale, would be immense.

MINCE PIES -Take a pound of beef, free from skin and strings, and chop it very fine; then two pounds of suct, which likewise pick and chop; then add three pounds of currants, nicely cleansed and perfectly dry, one pound and a half of apples, the peel and juice of a lemon, half a pint of sweet wine, half a nutmeg. and a few cloves and mace, with a pimento in fine powder; have citron, orange and lemonpeel ready, and put some in each of the pies when made.

GRANARIES .-- Clean out, and make vermin-proof in some way—best by setting them on posts capped with flut stones or in pans. After grain is in, care must be incessantly exercised, lest by some heed-lessness the steps are left down, or in some other way mice get in. After that, operation.

Cows and Butter -Fall butter may e nearly as good as that made in June. As the pastures fail, feed a little grain, with turnips and pumpkins, removing the seeds. which act on the kidneys and almost uniformly decrease the flow of WATER.-Bring water to house and barn by pumps or by pipes from springs. The pipes must be sunk below freezing, and the pump or spout also protected.

TIMBER.—Cut for building purposes. for fence posts, rails, etc., and for whatever purpose durability is required, and lay it up for seasoning.
