Democratic Perplexities. The shrewdest politician or the most prescient sage is, at this, time, unable to predetermine, or even to prognosticate, the probable political attitude the Democratic party will assume during the Presidential mpaign. This ignorance of their men and measures is experienced, not only Ex-President James Buchanan's among the most vigilant sentinels of the Republican party, but equally so among even the most trusted leaders of the Democratic party. The very foremost of these the apostles of the faith, manifest such dubiousness, versatility and instability that, were, it not for the amusing antic they perform, their condition would excite our sympathy. Not one among them though many are blatant and boisterous. able to presage one of the fundamental planks of the forthcoming platform. Whether the United States bonds should be taxed, or redeemed in coin or paper, or be repudinted; whether internal taxes should be levied; whother there should be a tariff on imports; whether Andrew Johnson's reconstruction policy should be en-dorsed, or whether Congressional recon-struction should be sanctioned; whether the right of suffrage should be enjoyed by the whites only, or by them and intelliger or property-holding blacks, or by all, irre-spective of race, color or condition, are questions of vital moment, and they must receive some response, from the National Democratic Convention, which meets in New York City on the 4th, of July. Thus far the spokesmen of the party have been huffling and dilly-dallying, neither accept ing or rejecting, neither affirming nor negativing the positions assumed by the Repub lican party, but are proclaiming to-day some plausible expediency, rejecting the policy of yesterday only to resume it again to-morrow, wholly without ballast and with no anchorage in immutable principles, they drift hither said thither, relying upon the fitful moods and ephemeral impulses that may chance to pervade their troubled spirits when they shall assemble to counsel with each other. No one presumes to predict what oracle shall be consulted; whether to confirm the consistency of Pendleton, or assuage themselves by the promises of Johnson, or adapt themselves to the records of Hancock, or yield to the seductive harlotry of Chase, or return again to the com-forting complacencies of McClellan. Each of these has adherents who are confident they can shape the figure-head of the party There are those in the party who are singu larly, foolhardy, and occasionally make known their proclivities and affinities, but by some instrumentality are soon induced o retract; and should they again, by freak or motive, proclaim their life-long predilections; they, are so severely rebuked that their silence is admirably secured., Can observance of the amenities of political rec titude. With proper discrimination none will be in danger of being deceived by the diurnal alternations of hot and cold, black and white vagaries of the Democratic party. And we assure all who have the patience to observe their thousand and one evolutions, that the platform they adopt will be sus ceptible of all the immaginable constructions that the necessities of their straightened and perturbed condition demands.

WHEN DEAN SWIFT was lost for a subect to talk or write about, he invariably pitched" into the Catholics; he called nem his "Cheshire Cheese," for the reason that they afforded him a theme upon which he could, at any time, make an intellectual meal of. Some Copperhead editors are a good deal like him; when lost for a subject about which to write, they recur to the "Union Leagues," and attempt to fasten the responsibility of all the frauds in the country upon them; when in truth and in fact the Copper-Johnson rascals are the nead and front of all the "rings" which have for their object the robbing of the government—of course a few minor rascals n the Republican party, (some of whom reside in this county, and are members of the "whisky ring,") have been "taken in" and get a modicum of the stealings-but the principal robbers come, from the Copperhead class, as will be clearly shown by the committees now investigating the frauds upon the government, at Washing-

In their vaporings they attempt to bring discredit upon an organization known a the Grand Army of the Republic, because the members thereof periled their lives in defense of their country, and refuse o affiliate with the men who are now 'cheek by jowl" with the traitors who attempted to make a despotism of this Reublican land; and are now endeavoring to do by covert and secret means through the organization of the Copperhead party, what they failed to do by gunpowder and ead. These model editors have no word of condemnation for that notorious political organization kown as the Ku-Klux-Klan, which sends it midnight assassins forth Corruption of all kinds, whether found in nightly throughout the South, to murde Union men or drive them from the land. All the holy horror exhibited by these vir tuous editors, and their flings at the Loyal

The Chase Movement. The movement to pominate Chief Justice Chase for the Presidency, by the New York Convention—a scheme ridiculed and laugh ed at a few weeks ago-seems to be acquir-ing a strength and power that places it within the range of reasonable probabilities. The Chief Justice is said to have expressed himself as being in accord with the Democratic party, in all save the suffrage question, which he favors leaving to the States for decision. He opposes the present reconstruction policy, favors universal amnesty, and on the financial question thinks it can be met in making greenback as good as gold by a speedy return to specie payments. It is thought the New York Convention will successfully kill off Pen dleton, Huncock, English, Hendricks and

Blair, and then accept Chase as "the man for the crisis." Crooked are the ways of politicians. "" In a Dilemma. The Democracy are just now in a dilem ma. "A portion of the party are willing t swallow a General, even if he did fight i the Union army against their friends, while another portion are dead opposed to a sol dier upon any terms: "Then, again, there are those who are willing to take Chase with all of his abolition and negro suffrag antecedents, while the dyed-in-the-wool three-ply Copperheads, speak of the Chie Justice with the greatest contempt. McCoole and Coburn. McCoole and Coburn, notwithstanding heir present predicament, have not given up the idea of fighting, and have ordered the stakeholder to keep the put-up until they are liberated. They hope soon to be at liberty, but if they have to serve their time out, they will, as soon as discharged leave Ohio and make all necessary arrangements for the encounter to come off in Virginia, as there is no law in that State against prize-fighting. Only a few persons will be posted as to the place where the "mill" will take place, so that the authorities cannot get wind of the location. It is reported that McCoole and Coburn cleared $9.000 each through the sale of railroad ickets. They chartered the trains in partnerships, paying two dollars for each person carried. Their rate for the trip was ive dollars for each passenger.

General Tyndale. nomination of General Tyndale for Mayor of Philadelphia, will meet the favor of the best classes of citizens. General Tyndale is a man of spotless character, nlightened patriotism, and fine executive ability. We feel assured that if he enters this canvass, it will be to serve no selfish ambition; but for the love he bears the people and institutions of this noble city, and with a desire to see rooted out of it abuses and extravagances which have disgraced it too long. It is a good sign when the politicians are forced to give way before such men, before earnest, selfacrificing workers. We know that General Tyndale has not sought the Mayoralty; the place has sought him, and if he is electedresult which is scarcely to be doubtedthe city of Philadelphia will have a thoroughly worthy head and representative.

STILL WORRIED.

Are the Democratic Copperheads about their nominee for the Presidency, and in vain glory talk of the Chief Justice as an available personage for their standard-bearer in the great battle with Grant in November next. "This true," that they have no one in their own now demoralized ranks in whom they have a sufficient confidence to place forward in this their hour of trial, but are compelled to seek a representative (?) from the old Abolition, Black Republican party of the North as a forlorn hope, hoping by thus doing to secure a sufficient number of the followers of the Chief Justice to make a respectable show of fight with the General who never has been defeated. But their efforts will be in vain; they will be overwhelmingly, ignominiously defeated, and the country will be made peaceful through those who overcame treason, and secured liberty and equality before the law to all American citizens. As the case now stands, in this city particularly, the Rebel-Copperhead Democrats are materially concerned, and their contortions are pitiable in the extreme. Bancroft & Co., Philadelphia.—This work, the result of years of incessant labor of an accomplished scholar and an able teacher, is a logical development of the fundamental principles of Language. Unlike older Grammars, it teaches the analysis and construction of sentences, just as they come from the pen of the author, without supplying ellipses. The rules of syntax, twenty-four in number, cover every known construction of good English, without being marred by exceptions almost as numerous as their applications.
