An Editor in Trouble. A Velocipede school is in operation over the Belfast Journal. The editor who does not appear to Javorably impressed with the situation says:

If the building comes down, and our cold remains are found among the ruins, let our friends remember that we died at the post of duty. Let no one who ever rode a velocipede come to the funeral. Wanted-A man gifted in swearing, to express our sentiments on velocipedonkeyism, the man who invented the machine, the man who brought them here, the fools who ride them and the landlord who lets a hall over a printing office for such an infernal

Coloring Marble.

Some months ago an inventor in New York, while seeking some means of making barrel staves imprevious to petroleum, accidentally used a piece of marble to wedge the barrel he was experimenting upon, into its place in the vat containing the solution with which he was trying to fill the pores of the wood. On taking out the marble he noticed that it was beautifully stained, but threw it aside without further abought. About a month later he picked it up, examined it, tried to wash it clean, failed, broke it with a hammer stroke, and lo! the color had pexetrated the whole mass. The discoverey has been pushed on, and it is now claimed that six hundred different hues can be permanently imparted to marble.

A Reform in Court Dress.

Another time-honored British institution has fallen. The court dress is to be altered, and her Majesty's male subjects may heuceforth enter the royal presence in trousers instead of the traditional small clothes in which so many generations of statesman and courtiers have admired themselves and been admired. The form of the new uniform, says the Spectator, "_is. except in some non-essential details, the form of every-day dress, and so is the color, but modifications have been introduced a to material and ornament. The alternative dress, for levees in particular, is ordinary modern full dress, spoilt as to form by a ridiculous gold embroidered straight collar and gilt stripe, but improved by the substitution of velvet for broadcloth." Young swells are aghast at the idea of wearing velvet trowsers, and conservative Tory squires shake their heads and cite the innovation as a new proof of the rapid tendency towards democracy. But the world will move en, and probably in two centuries and a half from the present time the loyal Englishman wishing to pay his respects to his sovereign, will be permitted to do so without tricking himself in a costame which would be ridiculous elsewhere than at a royal levee.

It is also announced that there has recently been adopted a slight revolution at | Selling Very Low, always the Largest Stock the Tuilleries, where deputies have been admitted to dine with the Emperor in plain evening dress, and without donning the usual court uniform. The Paris Jockey Club is said to be contemplating a serious change in another direction, and to be about to propose a light colored frock eoat, lace handherchief, &c., to supersede the present evening costume.

A Big Swindle.

Under the above caption we find the following in the New York Josening Mail: Smokers of the old fashioned "cut and and dry" tobacco are beginning to find that the new system of putting all tobacco in packages so as to have " met all the requirements imposed by law" lacks the simple requirement of being fit to use. The plan gives the large dealers an opportunity to impose on retailers and their customers, by putting up the filthiest compounds that can be called tobacco, which is dampened to such a degree as to make it weigh well, that it becomes musty and makes even the veteran smoker turn from it with loathing. The law was enacted because of the large revenue expected to be derived from it, but the manufacturers of the cheaper brands are making use of it as a cloak to one of the biggest swindles of the age. Heretofore, a purchaser could have the privilege of examining the article before purchasing, but now he must take the risk of a scaled package, that previous experience teaches him is most probably a law-protected humbug. This "buying a pig in a poke" may be all very well for the revenue, but it is death to the buyers. The law has barely got into effect yet, but fortunes have already been made from this national swindle. We have seen several specimens of the article, purchased at different places. and in each and every case the tobacco was such as no dealer would think of weighing out for a customer, or would even allow it to be in his store in bulk.

Notice to Office-Seekers. Applications for office under General Grant must be made to the Cabinet officer in charge of the department in which the office is solicited. The President will not consider any such applications until they have passed through the head of the department to which they pertain. The President does not intend to take upon himself the drudgery of attending to the cases and papers of office-seekers. All concerned in this business will please take notice, and fail not at your peril.

The Albany Evening Journal says : "If any honest citizen has believed that Horatio Seymour really carried the electoral vote of New York State, or that John T. Hoffman was legally chosen Governor, the report of the Congressional Committee appointed to investigate frauds perpetrated nt the November election, must dispel that elusion. The revelations which this report makes of frauds in the metropolis, are absolutely startling."
