Making Bread.

dangerous to use such an envelope, as it bim under her apron strings and ran off son and husband than the latter had took My "Ideal loaf" is made from wheat perfectly fair, and free from smut or other with him. Annie, the deserted wife and disease; not having been wet and mouldy either before or after harvesting, and not having been heated before or offer grinding; carefully kept clean after being properly ground so as to need no sifting, and, not being bolted, it retains every part that be-longs to it, and needs no addition, except cold water and a little salt.

That superfine white flour bread does not contain all the elements necessary to keep the system in order under any ordinary condition of life, is universally admitted by all who have given attention to the subject; and that there are objections to the usual manner of making bread, is also well known by all scientific men; and the question has become an important one, How shall wheat bread be made a reliable "staff of life," instead of the broken reed which it is now admitted to be.

It is estimated that ninety-five per cent. of bread used in Boston is made of wheat flour, out of which has been taken, by the process of grinding and bolting, all but about five per cent. of its muscle-making and life-supporting elements, so that fifteen barrels are required to furnish as many of these elements as one barrel of unbolted wheat meal. This will be fully comprehended by reference to a grain of split wheat, drawn under a microscope. The nitrates and phosphates are inseparable by mechanical means, being bound together by gluton, of which it is mostly composed, while the carbonates, being mostly starch, which is granular, and loosely adherent, is easily seperated from the glutinous crust by the process of grinding and bolting.

In making superfine flour therefore twenty-five per cent. of the meal goes off in the siftings, of which fifteen per cent. is of nitrates and phosphates.

Some People Live and Seem to Enjoy Health in spite of Wrong Habits of Living, An old toper, who has kept his copper hot with whisky or rum for half a century, and who has outlived all his drinking compan-ions by scores of years, cannot see that he lives because he is too tough to be killed by that which has killed all his old toper friends, but very likely thinks he should have been dead long ago but for the preserving power of alcohol. An excellent old lady of seventy-five years, who had taken green tea from her youth, till by the tannin it contained, her skin had been dried and tanned into the resemblance of what indeed it really was, dark-brown leather, said to a friend, in sober earnest, "There will probably be very few more old people in Boston, for everybody is leaving off drinking green tea."

And after Carnaro lived fifty-eight years on twelve ounces of solid food and fourteen ounces of light wines each day, containing a mere triffe of alcohol. Professor Lewes. himself a drinker of alcohol, "wonder that intelligent men, in view of such a fact, can doubt that alcohol is nutritious."

I have tried in vain to persuade a young mother, who has inherited a good constitution, and who is one of six children, all but two of whom lived to maturity, the remaining four, however, being subject to dyspepia, neuralgia, colics, and all the other sufferings induced by too heating food, to bring ip her child in obedience to Nature's laws, ving to show her that the chances (

> HOW SHALL I SAVE MY PLUMS ?- This question is often asked by those who have been disappointed in their plum crop year after year. The best way we know of is to shake the tree every morning for two or three weeks after the fruit is sit, and so catch and destroy the wicked fellows. The next best plan is to dust the tree and fruit thoroughly with air-slacked lime or ashes, and renew as often as it is washed off. Either of these plans, if properly carried out, will insure a crop of fruit.

Experience proves that grass should be cut for hay when the stalks are in bloom. The best time of all, both for clover and other grass, is just when in full bloom, and the earliest blossoms are beginning to fade. If not too heavy it can then be out in the morning, and, if carefully scattered can be hauled in the barn on the afternoon of the same day. This makes the best quality of hay. It retains more of the nutriment of grass than if it is left exposed to dews and rains for a few days, and goes much further both for fattening stock and producing milk. But when the grass is very heavy and is cut with a mowing scythe and thrown into heavy swaths or rows it will not cure thor-oughly until two days, and is not so good for food as that cured and put away in one day. Dew and moisture always effect the fibre of cut grass, and weakens the strength of hay. They also injure and destroy the sugary matter contained in the stems, and render them dry and tasteless. When a branch of hay can be twisted tight without showing moisture or juice it is dry enough to be stowed away. A little salt scattered over hay which has been caught in showerwill improve it, and render it more palat-
