The New Atlantic Cable.

The quietude and marked apathy with which we hear of the progress of the laying of the new Atlantic cable is in singular contrast with the excitement, bell ringing, and all sorts of public rejoicing that was attendant on the progress of the first efforts to connect Europe and America by telegraphic communication. We read now the daily bulletins announcing the progress of the work without any doubt as to its final success, and with scarcely any interest in it. No doubt much of this is due to the fact that the problem is no longer a doubtful one; that having been done once, we are quite at ease as to its repetition, and that we are by experience better able to gauge the exact benefits that will be reached by this duplication of our means of instantaneous communication with the Old World. Yet in some respects the new cable has an interest for us that was not possessed by the old. The fact that it lands directly on our territory, and will therefore be more under our control, and that by its competition we shall be likely to obtain some concession on the enormous rates, despite of successive reductions, still charged by the existing line, are considerations to which we shall be likely to give more importance after the new cable is fairly at work. So far the cable news has been a great tax on the newspaper press, without any corresponding benefit. The leading papers are under a necessity to receive it at heavy cost, whilst its very general publication has given the public but a very limited idea of its value. What everybody has, nobody values. With the two lines, at work, it may be hoped that the newspapers will be able to make more advantageous terms than heretofore.

The Army of the Potomac.

At the recent meeting of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, General Meade who was received with great enthusiasm and prolonged cheering, made a brief but warm defense of the Army of the Potomac. Gen. Meade claimed that impartial history would yet do justice to the deeds and merits of the Army of the Potomac. The rebellion, he asserted, could never have been put down but for that army. In it had occurred fifty per cent. of the deaths and wounds which occurred during the war; and where the men die and are wounded that, said General Meade, is the army where the work is done. In alluding to the subject of Government interference by telegraph with military operations, he asserted that all history proved that where a General's operations were carried on near the Government and controlled thereby, they were ineffectual failures. This, he contended, had been the great hindrance in the want of success of the Army of the Potomac.

Don't Bathe Too Much.

Sea and river bathing are now in order, and it is to be hoped that people will not indulge in those luxuries with recklessness. Many constitutions are sadly shattered every summer by too much bathing. Bathing is a good thing employed in moderation; but immoderately enjoyed it becomes a very dangerous and damaging thing. Only the most robust and soundest system can long stand daily sea or river immersions without becoming impaired. Persons afflicted by organic disabilities should bathe in the sea or river not oftener than every other day, and in no event should they remain in the water longer than ten or fifteen minutes. Any indulgence in bathing extending to half an hour or an hour (which is more frequently the rule than the exception) is highly injurious, although the injury may not be immediately apparent.

The Newspaper Cash System.

The Wisconsin editors have have been holding a convention at which the proposition was broached for establishing a general newspaper system out there of cash payments. Why not every where? It is the only proper way. Most of country newspapers live half starved on the credit system when they might get fat and saucy on the cash system. Of all things in the world newspapers call for the cash system and it is always the best for buyer and seller. "Mr. Speaker," once said John Randolph, "I have found the philosopher's stone. It is pay as you go, sir, and be paid as you go.

A TAVERN-KEEPER, in a town of Wisconsin, employed a German blacksmith to do a certain job of work, for which he paid the cash at once. Afterward a neighbor got a similar job done on credit for a less price. Upon being asked the reason the blacksmith replied, "You zee, I've zo much scharge on my book, and I zometimes lose 'em; and zo ven I have a good cash customer I scharge good price; but ven I puts it on my book I do not like to scharge zo much, zo if I nevre gets 'em I no lose zo much.

A YOUNG girl in a village in Ardennes Forest recently killed her illegitimate child, cut it into pieces and put the pieces into the barrel in which her parents kept their salt pork. The family is said to have eaten the remains of the child without noticing what they were. Not a piece of it was left.

BULWER is now seldom seen in the House of Lords. He is an old man, looks gone, as if his day was done. He has quit writing, come down from the clouds of romance, and walks the plain old earth, "gloomy and unhappy."

PENNSYLVANIA seems to be well represented at Cornell, the new technical college. At the initial commencement the other day, out of the eight graduating speakers two were young gentlemen from Lancaster county.
