guides. At all events, when the offence is found to be a first one, and when youth or hope are still on the side of the erring, a chance, an opportunity, should be afforded, ela, kind words should be uttered, encouragement for better things should be mingled Stout with gentle admonition, and thus in many cases highly gratifying, heart-cheering results would ensue. We may give an illustration from real life: Not many years ago, an aged female, miserably clad, presented herself at the honse of a professional gentlemen, one of the most distinguished of our citizens. She had with her a basket of tapes, thread, and other trifles of the kind. She asked for the gentleman of the house, and on being told that he was absent, inquired for the lady. The latter on making her appearance, was touched by the miserable aspect of the poor woman; and promptly purchased a few of the articles in her basket. The stranger then begged attention for a moment to a tale of sorrow. She said she had not tasted food since the morning of the proceeding day; and worse, she had a helpless son at home, who had been without sustemance of any kind, still longer. But she had come, not so much to ask for bread, as to implore mercy. She had another, an erring, but be-loved son in prison, and she desired the husband of the lady to exert himself to procure his discharge. She was told that the gentleman would be home at a particu-lar hour, when, if so disposed, she might call and feel certain of seeing him. She bowed her thanks, promising to roturn, and did so accordingly at the time designated. "Well, may good woman, said the gen-visit. What do you want me to do for you?" "It is a hard thing for a mother to select between two children. But Charles, sir, is far the less guilty than his brother. "I received a tolerable education, and pos-sessed a small property. In an evil hour I married the object of my affections. I say an "evil hour," for, alas, my husband be-came dissipated and squandered the means that I brought him, and left me to struggle with poverty as best I could, while he pur-sued his dissolute and vicious courses. His example has been the ruin of his children. Edward followed the footsteps of his profil-gate father, rather than the counsel of his unfortunate mother, and strayed far, far from the path of rectitude and houor. Charles was of gentle, annible disposition ; but possessed less intellect than his bold and desperate brother; while Nicholas has been rendered by disease, an helpless object of pity, and incappule of taking care of him-self. Such, good sir, is the sad story of my family. Such is a brief picture of my posi-tion and misfortunes. A man may have a quarter of a million of dollars invested in bank or railroad stocks, or in railroad bonds, and receive therefrom an annual income of ten or twenty thousand dollars, yet his name will not appear and has no right to appear in the list. He pays the same rate of tax upon his income as those whose means are invested in houses and lands, merchandise, or government bonds, but it is paid in the aggregate by the company or institution where his money is invested. When this fact is properly considered it will doubtless be found that there is far loss ground for complaint and cen sure than has been generally supposed, and that the objection to the income tax based upon this reason has been greately over rated.-Lancaster Express. The Copperhead Nomination. What first occurs to us concerning th nomination of Packer for Governor is, that it was a cruel piece of business, and will prove a tremendous crusher to Cass, who, it is not too much to say, had his affections quite set on the nomination, in the firm belief that he could be elected. It is our duty, we suppose, to afford the unfortunate and lisappointment all the consolution we can and we desire to be understood as saving that we do sincerely regret General Cass's failure, for we should have taken especial pleasure in seeing him defeated at the polls is he surely would have been, and as Packer is bound to be in October. We suspect that General Cass has been slaughtered, and in blood as positively cold as the weather and circumstances would admit of. We think it will turn out that Cass is a victim to a variety of things and circumstances ; but chiefly because he confided in those who were not sincerely for him, but regarded him simply is a good enough candidate to sell out at :

round price. It pains us to take this yiew of the case. But we are compelled to say that we trace here the source of the dry rot which developed the fatal weakness at the instant of the greatest strain. We are too full of grief over the fate of our favorite to say much to-day except that our indignaion towards the scamps who cried Cass up till he would fetch a good price, and then basely betrayed and sold him out, is simply inexpressible! General Cass (by the way, where did that title come from, seeing that Cass resigned a good way before he reached it, and made no effort to earn it when there was a chance?) we say Gen. Cass may forget and forgive, but we shall -never.--Pittsburg Commercial. NOVEL weapons were lately used by husbaud and wife in Trenton, N. J., in a quarrel, while at tea in their house in Cal-oun's lane, The man, stung into a passion by the sharp and bitter tongue of his wife. rst picked up a boy and flung him at her; but this novel missle, after flying howling through the air like a screaming shell, brought up against the stove, and exploded in a series of terrific yells. The man then natched up another child and hurled it at against the wall, and the uproar became Ireadful. The father was then about to seize the baby, when the wife, who had een somewhat astonished at these extraordinary proceedings, picked up a coffee pot filled with beverage hot from the stove, and hurled it with so true an aim and s vigorous an arm as to bring the infuriated man to the floor and to terms at one and the same time. The children fortunately were not seriously hurt.

THE jaunty suilor collar is much worn the has been arrested. But it surely admits of some palliation when all the facts are taken into view. I hope, sir, that you, ani-mated by some consideration of the miswalking suits of buff linen are quite fashionable.

I told them that when I got ready to leave place, I wentested. They said : "Doth not like us?" I also said : "I doth, I doth." I also said : "I hope your intentions are honorable, as I am a lone child, my parents being far, far away." They then said : "Wilt thou marry us ?" I said : "Oh ! no ! It cannot was."

Again they asked me to marry them, and gain I declined, when they cried : "Oh! cruel man! this is too much! Oh! oo much !" I told them that it was on occount of the muchness that I declined. BRIGHAM YOUNG'S FAMILY. The last picture I have to show you represents Mr. Brigham Young in the bosom of his family. His family is large, and the olive hranches around his table are in a very tangled condition. He is more a father than any man I know. When at home--as you see him-he ought to be very happy, with sixty wives to minister to his comfor and twice sixty children to soothe his distracted mind. Ah! my frinds, what is home without a family?

> A Balloon Trip Good for Dyspepsia. Professor S. D. Thompson, who made a balloon voyage at Memphis, last week, writes as follows : "The highest altitude attained by the balloon, as shown by the barometer, with the proper correction made for difference of temperature, was 11,670 feet. We experienced no difficulty in breathing, nor any unpleasant sensation, except from the cold, the thermometer having sunk to 50 deg. Fahrenheit.

"Among the other phenomena observed, I might mention that the balloon, in ascending, always assumed a whirling motion from right to left, while, in descending, it whirled from left to right, and when the barometer indicated an equipoise, it mained stationary, turning in neither direction. From this observation I am satisfied that latitude and longitude can be calculated in a balloon at night by means of nautical instruments. "We took with us four watches, all being English levers, and in good order. At the height of two miles two of them stopped, while the other two continued to run. The pocket compass which Dr. Bell furnished me, and which was a very delicate instrument, became completely depolarized, and as since been gradually regaining its polarity, though it is still worthless.

" The effect of the ascension on my own system is remarkable, and very interesting to me as a matter of speculation. As soon as I returned to Memphis my friends remarked that I looked much more ruddy in the face than before. I can scarcely get before, and with the keen relish of a child. I attribute this to the expansion of the veins and cells of the body on the rarified air. whereby the fluids of the body circulate with his wife. This one struck with a dull thud greater freedom. Professor Wise was a confirmed dyspeptic before he began ballooning, but this effected a complete and radical cure. From the great change pro duced upon my own system, I should not resitate to recommend a balloon voyage to any one suffering from a disordered stomach or liver."
