The rehorsals of the band very proficient. Let us hear you often. The " Æolians" gave us -another charm ing screnade on Monday evening. These young gentlemen are very proficient in their several parts, and give evidence of how much can be accomplished by careful and patient practice. There is apparently a want of taste for vocal music with our young people generally. We have , lenty material here for several large music class es, and while we cannot all expect to be "Eolians," we can certainly attempt to cultivate the voice. "The " Æolians " have given the young people an example of what can be done; let them try with patience. and diligence to do the same. The music by the choir of the Catholic Church, on Second street, on Sunday evealing was very fine. The soprano and alto duct was the sweetest we have ever heard. The difficult masses of the Catholic church are purely classic, and when sung as they were on Sunday evening, produce an offect which only the higher music possesses. We love congregational singing, and we love to join in the grand old tunes, which our fathers inught us to sing: but we can enjoy as a treat, the rich masses which our Cotholic choir renders with such fine

LANCASTER, Sept. 20, 1809, The balloon was made on a Wheeler & Wilson lock-stitch sewing machine, Mr. Joseph Blascheck, manager of the Company having gratuitously done all the sewing, at his office. Prof. Wise pronounces the stitching to be perfect in every respect. Four hundred and fifty yards of tine cambric were used in its construction. It was cut into 36 gores, each gore measuring 221 yards in lengths; then sewed in sections of 6 gores, before oiling and varnishing; after which the 6 large sections were sewed together on the machine to complete the form of the balloon, 17,390 stitches were used for one seam of 221 yards. 740,000 stitches were used for it entire. The balloon took 40 hours th sow, and some of the seams of 221 yards were sewed in 10 minutes. If the gores were laid by lenghts, the material would extend over one-half mile.
