Original Poetry.

The Ballad of a Baker.

Joe Brown, he was a baker man,
A baker-man was he;
He was not known to want for aught,
And yet he kneaded dough.

And he was rugged, hearty, too,
And had a long life leased,
And all because he rose up with
His early rising yeast.

Never to cheat his customers
This man was ever taught;
And yet his loaves were always light,
His pie-crust rather short!

And he was generous hearted, too,
And kind unto the needy,
And neat and tasty in his dress,
Although his cakes were seedy!

With him none dared to bandy jokes,
Whene'er he sought the marts,
For well known was his repartees
Were sharper than his tarts.

And then he was a pleasant man,
In getting up a muffin,
His pastry filled the months of all,
And needs no further puffin'.

'Tis said he was a temp'rance man,
If so, I can't tell why
He mixed with wheat and cornmeal too,
A trifle of old rye.

When age at last o'ertook the man,
His flaxen grew hair and sere,
And like the cake he used to bake,
His head was frosted o'er.

And when he died all mourned his loss,
With nomenclature stout,
For he had been a friend to all,
A good man and a pie-ous.

HIS EPITAPH.

Beneath, this crust of up-heaved earth
A well-bred baker lies,
And, like the roll he used to mold
We hope at last he'll rise.

How Mike Rode the Bull.

Mike took a notion to go in swimming, he just got his clothes off, when he saw Deacon Smith's bull making at him. The bull was a vicious animal, and had come near killing two or three persons, consequently Mike felt rather "jubus." He didn't want to call for help, for he was naked, and the nearest place from whence assistance could arrive was the meeting house, which was at the time filled with worshippers, among whom was the gal Mike was paying his devours to." So he dodged the bull, the animal came at him, and managed to catch him by the tail. He was dragged round till nearly dead, and when he thought he could hold on longer, he made up his mind he had better holler. And now we will let him tell his own story as he told it to his messmates:

"So looking at the mater in all its bearings, I come to the conclusion that I'd better let some one know what I was. So I gin a yell louder than a locomotive whistle, and it warn't long before I seed their Deacon's two dogs a coming down like as if they was seeing which could get there first. I know'd who they were arter—they'd jine the bull sig'ns me. So, sez I, old brindle, as ridden it is as scheap as walking, can't you take a neck passage on that air, back o' yourn. So I warn't very long finding sundry of hims remarks could been heard, you'd have sworn that warn't nothing human in coat or critter. The bull flew round the field one dog to side and one on the other trying to clinch my feet. I prayed and cussed and cussed and prayed, until I couldn't tell which I did at last. And neither were any cuss words they were, so mixed up.

"Well I reckon I rid about half an hour this way, when old brindle thought it was time to stop to take in a supply of wind and cool off a little. So when I'd got round to a tree that stood near, he naturally helped to skin off a limb, so as I was one passenger carrin. So I jist clum up a branch a talkerating to your self sez I afore I'd be rid round that a way any longer. I was making tracks for the top of the tree, when I heard something a makin' an orful buzzin overhead. I kinder looked up, and if that warn't—well, they got it, for all heads started for our company. Some on 'em hit the dog—some on the bull—some on me, and the rest charged on brindle.

"This time the dog led off just dead, bent for the old deacon's and at 'boots,' old brindle and I could get under way we followed, and as I was only a fust passenger I had nothin' to do but steer the craft, if I had we shouldn't have run that channel anyhow. But as I said before, brindle and I next, and the hornets do'nt lay arter. The dogs yelling, brindle bellerin', and the horrible concuss and scrimpin.

"Well, we had got about two hundred yards from the house, and the deacon heard us, and cum out as I seed him hold up his hand, and turn white. I reckon he was prayin, then for he didn't expect to be called for to soon, and it warn't long neither afore the whole congregation—men, women, and children—cum out, and then all hands went to yellin'. None of em but the fust mention that brindle and I belonged to this world. I just turned my head and presented a blank to congregation. I seed the run would be in soon, for brindle couldn't get the inch from a fence that stood dead ahead. Well, we reached that fence, and I went ashore, over the whole on it's head, landing on the other side, and as there stunned.

"When I come to, some of them was a sprinkling cold water on my face, and I was not scared, cum round as see what I was. Mike Graham, father-in-law to the bull and I belonged together? But when brindle walked off by himself, they seed how it was, and cum to the conclusion that Mike CRAHAM was a scrimmage once in his life.

Gentlemen, from that day I dropped the sourting business, and when my hand is up upon this yearth, there won't be any more Kinks, and its goin' to Deacon Smith's brindle bull.
