Grand Display of Fire Works.—The display of fire works at the City Hall, New York, on the evening of the Fourth was decidedly grand and magnificent, and of a character never before seen in that city. Early in the evening thousands of people gathered at the Park and in the vicinity of the Hall to witness the much-talked of display. By 8 o'clock every available spot was taken up by the spectators, the windows, roofs and porticos of the neighboring buildings being filled to their utnost capacity; the streets were so densely crowded with people wishing to get a glimpse of the grand sight, as to almost impede the progress of the street cars and coaches. The display of rockets. Roman candles, fiery showers of all the colors of the rainbow and other costly works lasted over two hours. Precisely at 10 o'clock the great pyrotechnic event of the evening came off, which was on scaffolding put up for that purpose and occupied the whole front of the Hall. The multitude was filled with wonder as the neat and brilliant fiery design revealing the prominent outlines of the Father of his country in colors of green, yellow, red and purple; above his head was the American Eagle with shield, at his right the Goddess of Liberty, to his left an American Indian, and all surrounded with a circle of stars and flags of bright and beautiful colors. Fire.—The Store of Robert Hayes, on the corner of 4th and Cherry streets, caught fire on the 4th inst, but was extinguished before any serious damage had been done. The supposition is that the fire originated from a fire cracker thrown through the transom of the door among a lot of brooms, which stood by the side of a barrel of coal oil, and caused the brooms to burn and then setting fire to the barrel of oil. Had the fire not been checked in a few moments the barrel would have exploded, which might have led to very serious results. The loss is estimated to be from $250, to $300, on which there is however an insurance.

The firemen were on the ground promptly, and prepared to render all the service possible. It was fortunate for that portion of the town that the fire was extinguished before it had burned through the oil barrel.

Manheim Scatinel, writing from Lancaster over the doubtful signature of 'Sunset Cox' (Shoo Fly Cox) gives his view of Columbia in the following letter; the letter is not very elaborate, but we presume it is an adventure. We know of a good many of the distinguished citizens of Lancaster, who now stand high (?) in Literary circles, who commenced their career, in no less humble a sphere than as correspondents, for the Scatingl. The write referred to says: On Monday morning last I left this city on a visit to Columbia and its environs, and, according to promise, will give your readers a short account of my travels. In the first place, I must premise that your home readers are too well acquainted with Columbia to need any elaborate description of the place from my hands. I your home readers are too well acquainted with Columbia to need any elaborate description of the place from my hands. I will therefore, content myself with merely giving a few outlines of what I saw and heard. I visited Columbia for the first giving a few outlines of what I saw and heard. I visited Columbia for the first time in the year 1857, soon after the elevation of James Buchanan to the Presidency. At that time I thought it rather an insignificant place; but on this my second visit. I found it considerably improved. This teen years ago there was only one newspaper in the place, and that a comparatively small sheet; now it has two well conducted newspapers. There are several fine churches, a large number of hotels and stores, at which a thriving business appears to be carried on. But the lumber trade, I was told, is the main stay and support of the place. There are also a number of furnaces and rolling mills, doing a good share of business. I saw no end of the Fifteenth Amendment men and women during my short stay in Columbia, and their odoriferous perfume was a little too strong for my olfactory organ. But then they are brethren and sisters, as the Spy soberly remarks. Success to the borough of Columbia.

THE Fulton Democrat tells of a violent hail storm which passed over M'Connelsburg, on Sunday, the 26th of June, doing considerable damage. It says about one-third of the Court House roof was torn off and carried on either side of the building a distance of one hundred feet. The newly built walls of the M. E. Church—the gable ends especially—were so injured by the wind and driving rain as will render necessary to tear down and rebuild a portion of them. The damage done to the Court House from the rain is serious, the ceilings carpets, &c., being injured to the extent of surpers, &c., being injured to the extent of it least $1,000. The loss sustained by the at least $1,000. The loss sustained by the uprooting of trees, tearing of signs from their fastenings, breaking of glass overturning of fences and general demoralization was annoying if nothing else, and afforded plenty of light work and a subject of conversation and debate for the balance of Sundag avaning. onversation Sunday evening.

Cut This out and keep it.—Frank Dyre, a highly respectable and intelligent farmer of Galena, Kent county, Md., gives the following as a sure cure for the bite of a mad dog. As will be seen, he has tested it with the most gratifying results:

Elecampane is a plant well known to most persons, and is to be found in many of our gardens. Immediately after being bitten, take one and a half ounces of the root of the plant—the green root is perhaps prefof the plant—the green root is perhaps pref-crable, but the dried will answer, and may or the plant—the green root is permis precrable, but the dried will answer, and may
