To avoid disasters when walking on railway tracks, a Boston paper furnishes the following information to persons who will desist in the bad habit: "First-never go on the right hand track, for then the train approaches you in the rear. Second-when driven from one track never go to the other or between the two, but down the bank on the left side." These rules will not work, however, on all railways. Many roads do not'" keep to the right," but on the contrary run their trains on the left hand track. The Reading, Camden and Amboy and others, leading out of this city, "keep to the left." The best rule to obseve about walking on railway tracks is not to walk on them at all. DEDICATION .- The church built by the U. B. Congregation at Mcuntville, was dedicated on last Sabbath, the 27th ult., at which time a large assembly was present to witness the ceremonies of the day. The ceremonies were conducted by Bishop Weaver, of Baltimore; assisted by Revs. Baltzel, Pastor of that charge; Mark wood, of Columbia; and Stehman, Witmer and Hershey, Local preachers. The morning exercises were opened by an .address by Bishop Weaver, after which donations were taken towards defraying the church debt, amounting to one thousand dollars ($1000). In the afternoon an address was deliverd by ex-Bishop Markwood, after which another collection was taken; which amounted to an aggregate sufficient to cover all expenses. The edifice is certainly an improvement to Mountville, and a credit to the trustees; who did all possible to urge a hasty completion. The church was erected by J. Sneath, who manifested considerable knowledge of taste in architecture. It is comfortably furnished, and is provided with all necessary heaters and chandeliers of most appropriate style. The church is also divided into two apartments-basement and auditory. The basement will be occupied by the Sabbath School, and for the use of protracted meetings, &c. The auditory will be used only on special occasions. A very fine steep le is added to the threch, with a good-sized bell. In general everything is complete and satisfactory.

PROF. J. MILLER COWAN, agent for Fowier & Wells, and one of the most powerful nesmerizers of the day, will commence course of lectures in our borough, in Odd Fellows' Hall, commencing Friday evening, Dec. 29th. First night free.

His experiments in mesmerism create the greatest excitement and amusement. In his lectures on Psychology, he will explain the mysteries of the soul. He will also give lectures upon Phrenology, Woman's Rights and Woman's Wrongs, Love, Courtship and Marriage. The intellectual and the fun-loving will both be entertained. Season tickets transferable, will be sold for only 50 cents; Single 25; Caildren 10. Accidents.-George Miller, residing near Silver Spring, met with an accident a few days ago, while engaged in erecting a pie co of machinery at the iron works of Grubb & Co., his hand being crushed badly. The fingers were mutilated to such an extent as to necessitate amputation, which was performed the same day by Dr. G. W. Berntheisel. The case is progressing favorably.

RAILROAD MOVEMENTS .--- Last week Messrs. Malthy & Co., purchasers of the Gettysburg Railroad Company, arranged with Mr. Swope, the trustee, the full amount of the purchase money, $181,000. The management of the road will remain in the hands of Judge McCurdy, the Sequestrator, until a formal deed to the purpaser has been executed by the Supreme Court. This will require several weeks. The Supreme Court will then appoint an Auditor to distribute the funds among the bond-holders, and upon the Auditor's report being confirmed by the Court, trustees will be prepared to pay out the money, not before. So that it will probably be some months yet before the bond-holders realize their money.-Star and Sentinel.

A chicago lady writes to the Tribune, propounding a question of solemn import, and also suggesting the existence of certain habits on the part of the husbands of that ambitious city, which is probably not altogether imaginary. She asks: "What is that fearful maelstrom called business, which swallow up the perest and best of married men, after dark? Where is it located, and what, oh what do they do there? Is it some infernal chowder that witches stir? They come thence with mysterious particles of boiled lobster sticking to their silken beards; the dust of Kenosha crackers on their lips. Odors strange and undefinable cling about them; they walk in tortuous ways; their speech is thick; they exaggerate. Is this business chimera of ubiquitous presence to be tolerated, wh n it invades our homes and thrusts midnight vigils apon us? We know this is a legitimate calling; for when our husbands leave us after tea to go down town, they look weary and dejected, and when they return near morning they are livelier than crickets. But how we yearn to know where the partners of our bosoms are, that we might share the dangers of their 'business.' It is not at their offices, for these are always dark. Doubtless some dreary, subterranean retreat, piled with ledgers and hardcush ioned chairs, receives those self-sacrifcing spirits, and all for us, for us!"

WEATHER CALCULATIONS .- The character of the weather during the coming winter has been the subject of many predictions recently, and, as a matter of fact and interest also, the general belief, as expressed by the various writers, is that the win ter will be a very cold one. Truly, many of the signs and reasons stated seem to warrant their conclusions.

The months of October and November last year were colder than the corresponding months usually are. October and Nov-ember last, the weather had been quite moderate. The latter part of the summer of last year was very dry-a drought preprevailing to a serious extent-with the winds prevailing from the north and west generally, hence the cold weather in the

The past summer was also very dry, and droughts prevailed in many of the states; but the winds prevailed from the south and west generally, and hence the warm summer and quite moderate weather so far this fult. The spots on the sun may be the first cause of these peculiarities. Dry areas and northerly winds favor very cold weather in the winter season, and southerly winds, with or without dry areas, produce the opposite result.

My belief the coming winter will be as remarkable and probably as erratic as any of the seasons have been during the past two or three years, and I predict short periods of very cold weather, and comparatively long periods of quite moderate during the winter. There will be certain stormy periods, when northerly winds will prevail, producing very cold weather, and certain other and longer periods, when southerly winds will prevail, producing moderate, and comparatively warm weath

Editor Spy :- Last week was Quarter lessions week. We dropped into the Court House repeatedly, to witness the various and rapidly varying scenes of tragedy, comedy and farce which were being acted out of the great drama of real life. There is nothing that can call so forcibly to one's mind the truth that "all the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely play-

The place enclosed by the railing, the Judge's bench inclusive, may be regarded as the stuge. To the left of this is the dress and family circle; to the right the prisoner's dock, jurymen benches and the region presided over by the sheriff and officers. We can easily fancy to be what is called in stage parlance, the lumber room; from which the necessary articles of stage fur-niture are supplied. The balance of the house is devoted to those who have come to see the play; some to contribute their mite to the performance, and others merely to enjoy the exquisite torture of the victim, who is flayed alive by the skillful cross-examiner. Then to complete the resemblance, there is the orchestra, composed of very youthful musicians; who enliven(?)the occasion by displays of most extraordinary endowment of voice. But Front Street, he may in the future be found | the lawyers are the real actors, and all the Gunnison's first-class Shaving, Hair | departments of the actual drama, from the highest of comedies to the weightiest of ner of Locust and Second streets, where he tragedies, are represented very often in the single person of one of these versatile geniuses; who will assume the role of Toodles or Orthello with alike indifference indeed we have seen the first of these acted in a manner so real and life-like, as to set at defiance the inimitable achievements of Clark or Barney Williams.

When they urtain rises, which is emnounced by that old veteran Mr. Zahm, in stentorian tones, the lawyers come filing in from the private door to the left of the Judge's bench; and as each steps into the charmed circle, he halts; and calling up into his countenance a look of wisdom and most profound discernment, which he conceives to be the exact fac-simile of the model from which it is copied, to wit: Coke, Littleton or perhaps Jerry Black, who was here a short time ago, and which would certainly have done justice to Solo. mon, or the traditional owl, he proceeds to take a seat and double up like a jackknife, or spread himself out upon the table and chairs ad libitum. The newest members of the bar, show how perfectly at home they feel, by occupying the front seats, and exceeding all others in the attitude of their pedal extremities.

Thus far we have seen only what may be called the stock actors; but now the door of the main entrance swings open, and there advances up the main aisle, with graceful stride, and look of conscious authority, the Hamlet of the play, with Fidus Achates at his heels, who notes the homage of the crowd and acknowledges their plaudits; to all of which his master affects the loftiest disregard. But, lo! a second Hamlet appears, who ignores entirely the pretensions of the first, and with his hands thrust into his pockets to his elhows, and compensating in voice, and frown, for a deficiency in size, he "struts and frets his hour upon the stage;" until wonderful to relate, a third, a yery Roscius, comes stalking in, the upper part of his body inclining oackward, about six inches over plumb, and after surveying the audience, with a calm complacency through his spectacles, for a moment, advances with true stage step to the front; and immediately his rivals succumb to the inevitable decree that, "A substitute shines brightly as a King, Until the King be by, and then his state Empties itself, as does the inland brook Lute the main of waters." This week the Common Pleas is in session. As very few besides the parties immediately interested, and their witnesses, are in attendance, for lack of an appreciative audience, the personal identity of these really distinguished attorneys, has undergone such a change, that we almost failed to recognize them. Several new octors have shown themselves; men of talent, who would not be appreciated in the Quarter Sessions, but in matters of law, before the Judges, are wonderfully efficacious.

The Quarter Sessions is a filthy place, filthy in every respect; the atmosphere reeks with dirt, the ventilation is neglected; and that rank compound of villainous smells, that old Faistaff, was compelled to endure covered up in the clothes basket, is as nothing in comparison; no nostrils that are not of cast iron construction, can withstand it; and we think one whiff would convince Miss Olive Logan, that there are insuperable obstacles to ladies of refined consibilities, entering the profession.

Several little by-plays of an extremely amusing character occurred last week one was, where a young man was convicted of stealing a sum of money, with which he purchased a gold watch and chain, found on his person, and produced in court. A part of his sentence was to restore the stolen property to the owner; and when the District Attorney proceeded to hand over the watch and chain, the learned counsel, for the prisoner, stoutly resisted; and contended that, as the property stolen; was in the shape of money; and as the articles in question were not stolen, but regplarly purchased; and moreover-and or this point they were peculiarly eloquentas they themselves had received these articles from the prisoner, as a slight token of his appreciation of their labors in his behalf; that therefore they belonged to them. The Judge refused to decide the point in dispute, but granted a rule to show cause; whatever that may mean. If the watch and chain were not stolen before, they are certainly at present in great jeopardy. The Æolian Quintette of Columbia, which sang at the concert in Fulton Hall, on Thanksgiving evening, gave great satisfaction; all who were present, are enthusiastic in their praise, and express a wish to hear them soon again. The star performances on that occasion were Miss Cynthia Bare's Solos, and the Orchestra music. The most intolerable bore was a base solo, and in response to an encore, the inevitable "Ivy Green." "Shades of the Naiades and Dryades preserve us from future in-

Of the party at Roberts' Assembly room, on the 25th ult., we have nothing particularly to record; except that it was an added specimen of those splendid assemblages of grace, beauty and wit, for which this particular coterie is celebrated.

Matrimony is now epidemic here. Our friend, Maj. Reincehl, fell a victim on Thanksgiving day, and has gone to that country, from whose bourn no bachelor returns. No one can tell what a day will bring forth, or who will be the next offering at the "shrine of Hymen." There is great consternation among the bachelors; but the ladies, God bless them! seem to take a philosophical view of the matter, and bear up with astounding equanimity; indeed, with the spirit of self-sacrifice, for which they are noted, they express themselves entirely regardless of their own safety, so long as the sacrifice of one of their number necessitares the immolation of one of us. ded specimen of those splendid assem-

MAD CAT .- A few days ago a strange cat was observed in the rear of Frederick Bucher's yard, which by its singular pranks, was supposed to have been seized with a fit of hydrophobia. Mr. Bucher procured a long pole and commenced a vigorous onslaught upon the intruder. His catship showed fight, and for a while held his antagonist at bay. Fred finally re-treated, hotly pursued by the exasperated feline. The crisis becoming desperate, re inforcement was sent for. Capt. Amos Bartch soon came to the relief, armed with a rifle and other destructive weapons Several volleys were fired at the cat, which put an end to its belligerent demonstrations. The cat-astrophe created quite consternation in the neighborhood. [For the Spy.]

About a year ago a man calling himself Clyde Miller, visited Catasaqua, Lehigh county, Pa., where he met Simon McKeever, a lad about twelve years of ago, and engaged him to accompany him to Ambama as a clerk, stating that he was building a railroad and wanted a boy to keep books for him.

He consented to go in that capacity. Miller then stated that he would like to have two other boys to work in the cook room, and Simon, at his request, engaged two of his companions, Robert Mctoole and Rob't McNeil two boys about fourteen years old, to accompany him. Miller had with him agang of fitty railroad hands. They arrived in Alabama after a week's travel, but they were unable to tell the exact local-arrived in Alabama after a week's trayel, but they were unable to tell the exact locality or the name of the railroad to be constructed, but said it was near the centre of the state.

On arriving at their destination, Simon, instead of being used as a clerk, was placed in a cook-house with his two companions, when he was taken sick with fever and ague. After a sickness of two or three weeks, the seaundrel Miller discharged him and his comrades and drove them away neuniless. They started without a cent in penniless. They started without a cent in their pockets, and all suffering with lever their pockets, and all suffering with lever and ague, on their weary tramp home. On their way his two companions died (one in a hospital), but he does not know in what town it was, and the other t a farmhouse in Green, county, Tennessee.

Simon succe ded in reaching a town in Tennessee, the name of which he does not remember, but he says it was over 500 miles from where he started, and there he was taken to a hospital, where he remained for weeks. He recovered somewhat from his illness, and procured a situation in the cabino in on the steamer Cairo. SILENT SEWING MACHINES "I give my hearty preference to the Willens & G.bbs Silent sewing Machine"
FANNY FERS.

"The weight of a reliable evidence being over-whelming for that of the Willeox & Gibbs Silent Sewing Machine, I decided upon it, procured it, and consider that satisfied." GRACE GREENWOOD. "I have the Whoeler & Wilson, the Grover & Baker and the Willook & Gibbs Sewing Machines in my family. I use the Willook & Gibbs Sewing Machines in my family, I use the Willook & Gibbs most frequently, thinking it far superior to either of the other."

Mrs. HERRY WARD BEIGHER. "My wife would not accept a Sewing Machine of any other patent as a qui, if she must receive it on condition of giving up the Willeax & Gibbs Rev. OLIVER CRASE.

"The Willeox & Gibbs is the only Sewing Mahine whose working is so sure and simple that could venture it to introduce it into Syria." Rev. A. T. Phart, Missionary American Board. "We have used various Sewing Machines within our family, but it is the wammons opinion of the household, that the Willeox & Gibbs is the best of them all."

Rev. J. S. Molme
