

Going Home.
Mr. J. B. Thomson, a fugitive from Philadelphia, after the passage of the "Fugitive Slave Act" and who sought refuge in Canada, has succeeded in procuring the sum of $800, with which to purchase his freedom. The whole of this sum has been raised since the first of March; and the zeal, energy, affection and talents of Mr. Thomson's wife have contributed greatly to the success of her husband's exertions. Mr. Thomson call on us on his way to Canada when the human bloodhounds were baying on his track; his good wife informed us, on Friday, the 18th ult. that Lyman Jones Esq., of Montreal, had negotiated with the man-stealer in Virginia, who claimed her husband, and who had consented to release all claim on him for $800 and as that they had the money they were now returning home. The simple story of Mrs. Thomson, commencing with the visit of her husband's "master" to her home in Philadelphia, and ended at the collection of the last $25.00 of the needed sum, was as graphic as a chapter of "Uncle Tom." Her husband, who is a smart, good looking, energetic mulatto, left Virginia eight years ago, and settled in Philadelphia, where at the time of his flight, he had two shaving and hairdressing establishments, besides owning, in his wife's right, a homestead.
One morning in September, 1852, the master entered Thomson's house, with a familiar, free and easy swagger, threw himself into a chair, placed his heels upon the table, and slowly chewing, spitting and squirting around the ceiling, suddenly brought his eye on Mrs. Thomson and asked where the "boss" was.
"He is at the shop sir."
"He'll be along soon, won't he?"
"Yes sir."
"You have things pretty nice here—seem to live pretty well for niggers."
"Are you from the South, sir?" said Mrs. Thomson to her impudent visitor at the same time, her flashing eye, curling lip, and heaving breast indicated the scorn she could scarcely suppress, in obedience to the fears which had suggested her question.
"What makes you think me from the South?" said the bully with a sneer.
"Because Northern men know better than to enter people's houses merely for the purpose of insulting them."
"Well I am from the South," said the master, "and I am come for your old man, and if I had you in old Virginia, I'd give you thirty-nine on your bare back every morning, and then rub you down with salt water, and I bet, your tongue would not wag so glib."
"But you will never have me or my husband in old Virginia." By the address and coolness of Mrs. Thomson, her husband was informed of this visitor, and escaped among the Quakers. In a few days she converted what property she could quickly dispose of into money, locked up her house, and joined her husband, started with him for Canada. Since that period, she has accompanied him, with her little daughter, through Vermont and other parts of New England, giving concerts, where they sang the touching and beautiful song of the slaves, and earning in this way the price of Mr. Thomson's freedom.
We never saw anything more touching than the joy expressed in the face of Mrs. Thomson, as she recited to us the incidents of her life, during the last few months, amongst the generous farmers of Vermont, and dwell upon the fact that her husband could now go home.
Shame, we say, to the country which repays such love as those poor fugitive have for it with whips, chains, and bondage. Double shame on the dastard laws which would expatriate them, and then rob them of their hard earnings before they can return home in peace.—And yet, in the face of such facts as are furnished in the history of this family, numerous numskulls can be found who solemnly inform us that the negroes cannot take care of themselves.—Worcester Spy.
